Refund Of Fees Set For Friday

by Jim Glynn

Money will return to the pockets of North Dakota college students.

A portion of registration fees collected over the past year will be refunded as a result of the 1965 Higher Education Bonding Act being declared unconstitutional.

Beginning Friday, April 22, students who have attended North Dakota State University in the past year may pick up their refunds at the business office.

The business office will have the power to refund the fees until July 1, 1967. On that date any funds remaining undrawn will be returned to the state treasury department. Dr. Kenneth Raschke, commissioner of higher education, explained, "Further claims can then be made to the North Dakota Department of Accounts and Purchases."

A list of students and the amount that is to be refunded to them has been prepared by the business office. Students may claim their refunds by presenting proper identification at the business office.

According to Ron Corliss, assistant business manager, "Examples of acceptable identification are driver's licenses, selective service cards or Fargo identification cards." Student activity I.D. cards will not be sufficient.

Students will be asked to initial their name on the list and they will then be given a check for the amount owed to them.

The amount of refund will depend upon the number of quarters and summer sessions each student has attended in the past year.

For each quarter attended $5 will be returned. For each summer session attended $2.50 will be returned. The highest claim possible will be $20 by any student who has paid fees for and attended both sessions last summer and all three quarters of this school year.

Last week after Dr. Raschke had consulted with the state attorney general's office and the department of accounts and purchases, the funds for the rebates to students were made available to the universities and colleges of the state.

Plans For Choir Summer Tour Changed

Officials planning the proposed charter flight to Europe for North Dakota State University's choir have been forced to try an alternate plan. According to George Schmidt, flight coordinator, they were successful in selling only a few of the 30 seats that had to be sold between the original deadline of April 1 and the extended deadline of April Canadian airline will be approximately twice as slow as the originally scheduled airplane. In addition it is expected that accommodations will not be as luxurious nor will the ride be as smooth. Schmidt cited these as a few of the reasons why the cancellations are expected.

This week Schmidt will contact everyone who signed up for the trip and make refunds for those not willing to travel in the prop airplane. Robert Godwin, choir director, will poll his choir and instruct them to find out the sentiments of the parents who were planning on taking the tour.

Confirmation of whether the tour will be made is expected next week.

English Competence Studied

by Joe Satrom

The Faculty Senate Scholastic Standards Committee reported on studies concerning English competence among North Dakota State University students to the faculty representatives Monday.

According to Scholastic Standards Committee Chairman Jack Carter, the committee made no direct recommendations to Faculty Senate but the committee did point out several means by which English competence among students could be improved.

The Scholastic Committee report stated, "Improved English competence among students beyond English 103 may be achieved by:

(a) the use of at least one essay question on every examination (in courses having reasonable enrollment) and its scoring for grammar composition, spelling, etc. by the professor;

(b) the registration of students deficient in English competence for advanced English courses;

(c) the distribution of English 101, 102 and 103 over the first 7 quarters of attendance at NDSU."

Carter stated, "It is hoped that English competence will enhance the students chance of excellence in other courses."

Before making their report to Faculty Senate the committee discussed the possible requirement of an "English Qualifying Examination" for graduates of NDSU.

According to Carter a study by English instructors, Dr. John Hove and Dr. Catherine Cater revealed that college educators are divided in their evaluation of the benefits of the Qualifying Examination. No action was taken concerning the examination.

HTSIBWRT Buttons Appear

"HTSIBWRT" buttons are being worn by the Blue Key members to advertise the spring production "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Several other publicity gimmicks are being planned. Cigars with "How to Succeed" bands will be handed out on downtown Fargo streets; World Wide Wickets Corporation stock certificates will be mailed to influential Fargo business men; and Frank Bernhoff, AS 4, Blue Key Publicity chairman, will wash windows for publicity pictures.

Rehearsals are being held three to four hours a day, seven days a week in Festival Hall. All the lines are learned, the blocking is done, and the choreography and songs are great, according to Gary Pfeifer, AS 4, student director.

Scenery, consisting of back drops and movable flats, is now being constructed and 17 duplicate dresses are being sewn. They are deep pink chiffon over tafeta and are worn in the number "Paris Original" by Sue Peterson, AS 2, and the chorus girls.

According to Pfeifer, two humorous incidents have occurred: Mary Foy, AS 2, considers one of her costumes too "scant" and Ray Lacina, AS 3, orchestra director, is puzzling over the kazoo part in the musical score.

Bob Challey, CH 3, and Rodger Wetzel, AG 4, Blue Key members, attended the road show of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" in St. Paul last weekend to see how some of the details in the production were handled.

Tickets for the best seats at the production will be on sale at the Food Service Center from 4:30-7 p.m. April 20-22, 25. Tickets may be reserved until a later date.

The tickets which are priced at $2, $2.50 and $3 will also be on sale at the information desk in the Memorial Union and at Daveau's in downtown Fargo.

Disciplinary Actions Rate Remains Low

Cases involving disciplinary action are continuing to run at a comparatively low rate according to Dean Scott, assistant dean of men. In the past several weeks only two cases involving six students have been reported.

Four men living in one of the residence halls were placed on disciplinary probation for gambling in the dorms. The students were, according to Scott, playing penny-ante poker in violation of both University regulations and state laws.

The other cases involved two men who were reported to have broken into the coin slots of the washing machines in the Reed-Johnson complex.

Commenting on the judicial board established in the men's halls last year, Scott reported that they are now functioning quite well. "The action which they recommended to be taken in the cases they have heard has been appropriate and has been approved by the University," Scott continued.

He concluded by saying that the number of applications turned in for positions on the board exceeds last year's total.

Applications for counselors in the men's halls were also reported to be numerous. "The caliber of those applying this year is high," Scott reported. The counselors carry on the necessary paper work in addition to maintaining order on the floors and assisting the students.

The alternate plan suggested by Schmidt consists of taking an airplane from a different airport and a different town. Instead of the originally scheduled flight from Air France airline in Minneapolis, a prop plane originating from Winnipeg has been secured for the flight if the passengers consent.

Schmidt said that this plane will accommodate 95 passengers. He added that, including the choir, approximately 120 seats had been sold for the original flight by the jet which held 150 people.

Schmidt explained that he didn't anticipate any serious problems with the overflow of people and that probably even more than 30 people will cancel their reservations.

Schmidt said he did not know what they would do if more than 90 people still wanted to take the trip.

What's Happening In Art And Drama

by Jan Weible

Oscar Wilde, the ostentatious and controversial author who rocked London and most of the world with his scandalous behavior during the Victorian Age, referred to "The Importance of Being Earnest," as a trivial comedy for serious people, noting that "its first act is ingenious, the second beautiful, and the third abominably clever." The play satirizes birth, love, marriage, death and respectability - everything that man considers important.

Perhaps more than any of his other works, the play reveals Wilde's lifelong assault upon commonplace life and commonplace values. The play received much unfavorable comment when it was first produced and it disappeared from the stage following Wilde's imprisonment. George Bernard Shaw found it "heartless"; nevertheless, the play was revived early in this century and has survived as a universal favorite.

Written in 1894, "The Importance of Being Earnest" is the supreme embodiment of Wilde's wit and artistic theory. "Don't let us go to life for our fulfillment of our experience," Wilde commented. "It is through art, and through art only, that we can shield ourselves from the sordid perils of actual existence."

This play will be given at 8:15 p.m. April 27-30 at the Little Country Theatre. Tickets at $1 are on sale at the Little Country Theatre, Daveau's and the Memorial Union information desk.

Director of the play is Ron Mrnak, instructor in speech and drama.

Kenneth Pitchford and his wife Robin Morgan, both noted contemporary poets, will present selected readings of their work April 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall of the Memorial Union. Pitchford, the author of more than 70 poems and three stories which have appeared in 50 national magazines, was born in Moorhead and attended Moorhead State College and the University of Minnesota where he studied under Allen Tate. He was awarded a Fullbright Grant for the study of poetry at Oxford.

His first book of poems, "The Blizzard Ape," was published in 1958. "The Beholding," a novel, and "A Suite of Angels," another book of poems, which Allen Tate called "the best I have come across for a long time," are scheduled for publication in the spring of 1967.

Pitchford's poetry is highly lyrical and exemplifies unusual imagery. Paris Leary made this comment on his work, "I know of no other American poet who marries an incredibly accomplished technique with the passion and substance of sincerity."

Pitchford's wife, 25-year-old Robin Morgan, works as a free lance editor in New York and is presently completing her first book of poems, entitled "War Games."

Pitchford and Robin Morgan plan to meet with interested students during the week of their visit. They will also give readings on April 25 at 8 p.m. at the Moorhead State College library.

This evening at 9 on KDSU, Richard Lyons will read and comment on several of his original compositions. Lyons has published two books of poetry, "Eclogues in Blue" (1944) and "One Squeaking Straw" (1954) and is currently working on the third, "Above Time." The poems are in the pastoral tradition but they deal with contemporary situations and social criticism.

"The Island," a Japanese film portraying a family's struggle for survival as the sole inhabitants of a small island will be shown in the Memorial Union Ballroom April 22 at 8 p.m.

Bridal Show Set

In spring a young man's fancy may turn to sportscars and motorcycles, but young women still turn to love and weddings.

Coeds will have the opportunity to see the latest in wedding fashions Thursday, April 21 at the annual Bridal Show sponsored by the Student Union Activities Board.

The show, entitled "The Courtship of Marilyn and Dave," will be held at 4 p.m. and at 8:15 p.m. in the Memorial Union Ballroom. Marilyn Walkinshaw, AS 1, will model bridal wear and Dave Johnson, AS 4, will model ensembles for grooms.

Clothes from Fargo stores will be modeled by 11 female models and nine males. At a coffee hour in Crest Hall after the show, articles for weddings will be displayed.

The show is being presented by the SUAB House and Hospitality Committee of which Susan Palmer, HE 2, is chairman.

Groups Will Perform At Music Convention

The concert choir and the Orchesis dance society will perform this weekend in Festival Hall at the annual convention of the North Dakota Federation of Music Clubs.

Most of the dance numbers will be those scheduled for the Orchesis' show which was canceled due to the recent blizzard.

The concert choir will sing part of the repertoire they have rehearsed for their upcoming European tour this summer.

The convention will begin Friday noon.

Fraternity Parties Produce Singing Trio

Three North Dakota State University fraternity brothers known as the Denny-Paul Trio have been performing at banquets, conventions and parties of community and campus organizations since they formed last fall.

The three, Dennis Anderson, AS 4, Dennis Lilleberg, PH 2 and Paul Anstett, AS 2, first started singing together during their fraternity fall rush parties.

"The three of us happened to be in charge of organizing some entertainment for our rush parties, so we took it upon ourselves to work up a couple of songs and skits," commented Anderson.

"After that we had requests for performances from a number of other campus organizations. From then until now we have sung at least twice a week for various campus, community, and professional groups. We've even managed to land ourselves a job singing every Saturday night at the Moorhead Holiday Inn," said Anderson, who is in charge of the group's business arrangements.

Arrangements of songs done by professionals, such as the Brothers Four, the Mitchell Trio and the Smothers Brothers, are most frequently used by the Denny-Paul Trio. The group also claims some original novelty numbers.

Anderson and Lilleberg do the vocal arranging, and Anstett, who plays guitar and piano, does the instrumental arranging. Most of their songs are done in three part harmony with intermittent solo and unison parts.

When asked if their singing had in any way affected their studies there was a unanimous "yes." "In fact," replied Lilleberg, "We've had to turn down a number of jobs these past few weeks due to the fact that we've had to devote more time to our studies and extracurricular campus activities."

Anderson and Lilleberg are members of the concert choir, and both had parts in last year's "Annie Get Your Gun." Lilleberg also has a role in this year's Blue Key production "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Anstett stated, "We haven't become rich by performing, but the money we have earned has helped in paying for our education."

Editor Resigns Post; Explains Problems

It has been said by nearly every editor that the most difficult task he encounters is that of resigning. This writer is no exception.

However, rather than subject you to a barrage of trite phrases bordering on the melodramatic concerning my leaving I would rather inform you of some of the problems an editor has and how some of them may be eliminated.

Whether the students like it or not the Spectrum will be run by a select few and undoubtedly they will always have a captive readership. Directing these select few is the editor who takes the heat, or at rare moments, the praise for his action and that of his staff.

Many of his problems arise when a particular campus organization, instructor, or student has an article that they believe must go in the Spectrum. Unfortunately not all these articles can be used. Deadlines, available space and the importance of the article must be taken into consideration.

There is also the problem of new members, new officers, scholarships and notices. People often request that these be printed without realizing the magnitude of their requests. There are over 100 organizations on campus, all of which take in new members and elect officers once or several times a year. There are almost an equal number of scholarships.

Many people fail to realize what type of information constitutes a news story and what constitutes a notice. The fact that an organization is going to meet for a Sunday evening dinner and discuss who should pay dues, etc., hardly seems of interest to the entire student body, however, it does warrant a notice. An understanding of these facts would make an editor's job much easier.

Lastly, there is the perennial problem of where to draw the line between views, publicity and advertising. Every week the Spectrum receives a barrage of mail describing some grander European tour or something similar to be held during the summer. Each is seeking its own free publicity.

Not all of an editor's job, however, concerns gripes and troubles. By virtue of this position one has the opportunity to meet people affiliated with almost every phase of this University and many other interesting and important people.

It might also be said that the rewards of being editor are perhaps a direct result of the problems one encounters. Whatever the anxieties or rewards of the editor's position, it is certainly an experience worth having.

Grade System Is Faulty

(ACP)—The present stratified system of grading should be abolished, says the "Technician," North Carolina State University.

The "Technician" said in an editorial:

Instead of the 4.0, 3.0, 2.0, a system of pass or fail based on oral and written examinations at the end of the semester or year should be instituted.

The need for the eradication of the present system is shown quite clearly during exam time when students begin cramming, cribbing and crabbing with the hope of passing or making a higher grade.

The grade therefore is used as negative reinforcement; if you don't work the grade will be low and if you fail, you might not be able to return to school. Another factor is the Selective Service, which bases draft deferments partially on accumulative grade point averages.

In all cases, the reinforcement is negative. Students with 3.0 or better averages tend to wear them as shields whereas the 2.0 or lower student rationalizes his low grades. And there's no certainty that a graduate with a high average is better educated than a compatriot with lower marks.

If it is accepted that the primary objective of a university is to produce educated people rather than human tape recorders or super-specialists with vast knowledge in one field and very little in others, then a grading system becomes superfluous.

When graduation time draws near, the determining factor in presenting a degree should be the total knowledge and understanding obtained by the student in his four or five years at the university. Doubtless to say, many of today's graduates would not pass such an examination, whether it was oral, written or a combination of the two.

Under such a system, a student would be judged against both what the faculty decides he should know and the knowledge of his peers. At the same time, a different approach to classroom instruction would be easily assimilated by the faculty as the constant need for numerical grades would be eliminated and more time could be devoted to guiding educational progress.

Many schools and universities have already successfully adopted such a plan. It can and will work, and although its adoption will not create an educational or intellectual nirvana, it will aid the educational process.

Architect Critic's Position Clarified

To the editor:

We wish to thank the Spectrum for coverage of Mr. Frank Kacmarcik's lecture. However, there were a few statements made which we feel were misleading and which we wish to clarify.

"Since the end of the term has slipped up on us and we've only studied from this book, we're going to have to cover quite a bit before the finals."

First, Kacmarcik is not an architect, although he has worked extensively with some of the country's leading architects; rather, he has acted mainly as an artist and liturgical consultant.

Secondly, Kacmarcik's presence as a visiting lecturer was sponsored by the Department of Architecture not the Student Chapter A.I.A.

The quote mentioning the "strange drum-like structure" is in reference to the Engineering Administration Building. The warehouse referred to the Architecture Building. Kacmarcik's comment was not that the architecture professors' salaries should be withheld until improvements were made, but that the architecture professors, if truly dedicated, should refuse their salaries until conditions improve.

Our Department of Architecture presently does not have the authority to demand quality architecture. This is one of the glaring faults of this "showplace of higher learning."

Kacmarcik's visit has provided added stimulus to our department. We also hope it has helped open the eyes of those on campus to their surroundings. Our campus does not have to "embrace the cult of the ugly." We do not have to look far to find another campus with just as much of a money problem that does have much better planning and architectural design.

Moorhead Dean Evaluates The Ph. D.

Moorhead, Minn.—(I.P.)—In his letter to the editor, Academic Dean Maurice K. Townsend of Moorhead State College attempts to clarify the competence of Ph.D.'s. "The 'Idea Series' prompts me to offer a few comments by way of clarification. The implications of the quoted paragraph from the Saturday Review, as well as the comments offered by yourselves, imply confusion on the part of colleges and universities as they evaluate the teaching skills of persons having the Ph.D. degree.

"The Ph.D. degree traditionally has been awarded at the end of advanced courses of study, having for their principal purpose the development of research skills. Over the years it has not been awarded for known or even implied teaching skills.

"Colleges and universities, then, so far as I know, have never valued it strictly in terms of education for classroom instruction.

"It has readily been admitted by many that persons who hold the Ph.D. may not be outstanding teachers. Certainly, however, persons possessing the Ph.D. degree from a reputable graduate school should have developed their research abilities to a high point of attainment and the fruits of his ability can have real value for the classroom.

"This circumstance comes about from the fact that in colleges and universities, instructors, teaching especially at the higher levels, are expected to engage in some research, limited though it may be, suggesting that a greater awareness of recent scholarly developments so gained in their fields enhances their classroom lectures or discussions.

"It does not follow that such persons can necessarily communicate their knowledges by virtue, alone, of a Ph.D. degree. It does follow, however, that such persons having communicative skills will have also a greater fund of information, a more precise knowledge of the importance of new developments in their specialties and will have acquired a reasonable sophistication about the purposes and functions of higher education.

"In some ways these expectations cannot be realized: The Ph.D.'s themselves have not graduated in every instance from particularly outstanding graduate schools, or having graduated for personal reasons, may not have exerted the energy required to insure the continued competencies their degrees imply.

"But the point of my letter, having offered these explanations, is to assure the students of this college that holders of Ph.D. degrees should be expected to have advantages in the matter of kind and depth of knowledge. Hopeful, they are, or will become, good teachers.

"For myself, I am not unrealistic in this regard. Many persons not holding doctorates on this campus are first-class teachers; many of them are sophisticated in research techniques employed in their field of specialty.

"But persons having earned the doctorate are potentially more effective, in my judgment, having had the additional research experience that a Ph.D. program demands.

"I stress the word 'potentially' because we have no guarantee that training can be realized in such manner as to have direct relationship to their classroom duties."

Easter Seal Youth Chairman Thanks Campus Participants

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who gave so unselfishly and good-naturedly in the drive for crippled children and adults. You may never know how much your pennies will do to aid a handicapped child or adult. Ninety-two per cent of your $200.88 will return to Cass County for services here.

I not only have you donors to thank, but a very special thanks to the men and women of the Veteran's Club. Without their loyalty, I would never have been able to even consider conducting a drive of this nature. I will never be able to properly thank these men and women for all they have done.

My gratitude goes, also, to the Spectrum for the excellent coverage in the April 6 issue.

My final thanks to Dean George Schmidt for giving me permission to conduct the drive in the Union and to use the display window and the bulletin board.

Without all of you, I would never have been able to fulfill my responsibility as youth chairman to the Easter Seal Society. Without all of you, a child may never have known the joy of taking his first step. And without all of you, two tellers and a machine would not have spent forty minutes counting 10,313 pennies!

Producing The Spectrum A Continuous Process

Nearly every Wednesday throughout the course of the year, stacks of papers mysteriously appear at scattered locations throughout campus before noon.

For the staff which publishes these reams, officially termed Spectrum but referred to by students under a host of names, their appearance is usually not a mystery. It is a culmination of many hours spent cloistered in their closet on the second floor of the Union or downtown printers smoking, yelling, complaining and sometimes working.

Work on a single issue begins, at least is scheduled to begin, on Monday, ten days before the paper is finally delivered. That day is spent tracking down rumors and other leads in a sometimes exasperating attempt to assemble enough news to fill a copy.

Tuesday the reporters inherit the task of further tracking what finally become a news lead. With their ears still ringing from the yells of the editors, the group begins a two day task of interviewing uncooperative secretaries and their doubly un-cooperative bosses.

With luck the reporters are through by their Thursday night deadline, but more often than not they drag in late Sunday to a chorus of profanity.

Wednesday night brings the editorial board, the several editors of the publication, shuffling back to the office to debate why more students than usual had read their Spectrum as garbage wrappers that day.

The editor kills the remainder of the evening shouting at the copy editors for misplaced commas or outdated dates; wondering where the managing editor disappeared to, or promising to fire the news editor if the reporters fail to have their manuscripts turned in by the following day. When it is open season on the photographers.

Sometime after dusk the following day the friendly group convenes along with numerous typists, copy readers, the business manager and her collection of ad men.

The latter part of the staff assemble the "sucker list" of merchants who bought space in the paper. They, then, by using some crazy formula, determine the size of the next issue.

Invariably the editor makes this an issue in itself, but sometime after the Memorial Union closes the bedraggled group leaves its hovel for a night at the books. The ad layouts and the proof-read and retyped copy, which is covered with doodles called copy marks, are sent by courier, the local cab service, to the printer and the whole mess is forgotten until Sunday.

That day the starry-eyed group of aspiring journalists meet again to spend the afternoon and a good part of the night waiting for someone else to do something.

All the pages except the first two and the last are wrapped up; the stories are put into place, the headlines written and re-written and again the copy is forwarded to the printers.

Monday night is more of the same. By now the ash trays are full, the floors are covered with both the paper and trash, but finally all is done except . . . another day at the printers.

Tuesday, like Monday, is passed serenely at the printers redoing what was already done several times in the office the night before. The printer struggles through the edited copy and swears at the editor who in turn yells at his entire staff; but in the end, with luck, by 2 p.m. all is done. The first issue rolls off the press and the sometime students adjourn. Some go to class, some to bed; but all, sooner or later, find themselves back in the office repeating the rarely ending cycle.

The paper is more than a job, though the editors spend as much as 40 hours each week struggling with the upcoming edition; it is more than another extra-curricular activity, though most people regard it as such; it is almost a way of life.

For those people who can only find fault with the final product, all we the editors can say is we the fledgling, learning journalists try . . . we really try.

THURSDAY: Copy reader Weible doodles.

ANY NIGHT: The staff leaves the ash trays full and the floors covered.

TUESDAY MORNING: The Editor, Al Peterson, making the final changes before the Spectrum goes to bed.

WEDNESDAY: The first issues roll off the press.

MONDAY: Linotype operator, Tom Gilles, struggles through the edited copy.

We set out to ruin some ball bearings and failed successfully

The Bell System has many small, automatic telephone offices around the country. The equipment in them could operate unattended for ten years or so, but for a problem.

The many electric motors in those offices needed lubrication at least once a year. Heat from the motors dried up the bearing oils, thus entailing costly annual maintenance.

To stamp out this problem, many tests were conducted at Bell Telephone Laboratories. Lubricant engineer George H. Kitchen decided to do a basic experiment that would provide a motor with the worst possible conditions. He deliberately set out to ruin some ball bearings by smearing them with an icky gunk called molybdenum disulfide (MoS₂).

Swock! This solid lubricant, used a certain way, actually increased the life expectancy of the ball bearings by a factor of ten! Now the motors can run for at least a decade without lubrication.

We've learned from our "failures." Our aim: investigate everything.

The only experiment that can really be said to "fail" is the one that is never tried.

WHY WE CARRY GANT

There's more than fabric superiority in Gant. In addition, "needled into the warp and woof of every Gant shirt," there's flair, fit and show — three vital inredients that make all the difference when a man wears a Gant.

We chose Gant because they take shirt making seriously. They're hard to please (like we are) when it comes to fit of collar, its roll, its profile—how much it shows above the suit collar. They're fastidious about the way the body of the shirt drapes and folds. All must integrate to achieve that viable ingredient which gives comfort and aplomb. In substance, Gant shirts are keyed to the discerning tastes of well groomed men who appreciate quality. These men are our customers. Gants start at $6.50

Veterans Club To Sponsor Loyalty Day

Campus organizations are being asked by the Veterans Club to participate in an area wide Loyalty Day Parade April 30 at 10 a.m. The entire area will be supervised by the Fargo Veterans of Foreign Wars, sponsors of the event.

Loyalty Day began on July 18, 1958 when Congress passed a resolution declaring that May 1 of each year be designated as a special day for the rededication of loyalty to the United States and for recognition of the heritage of American freedom.

Loyalty Day was launched as a direct, positive weapon against communism. It was believed that American communists were using May Day for hate demonstrations against our country. They were accused of tearing down the patriotism and faith upon which the United States was founded.

John Davis, AS 3, coordinator for the Veterans Club, stated that loyalty Day gives citizens a special occasion to do something more patriotic and constructive than sitting on the sidelines griping.

Davis also stated that Loyalty Day is non-political. It is also not a demonstration; Loyalty Day is not directed towards any specific policy, but rather it is directed towards loyalty to our government and to freedom.

Although participation is purely voluntary, all campus groups are being asked to march in the parade. Each group should have a slogan to indicate its feeling of loyalty. The organizations may build floats, but this too is voluntary.

If members do not want to parade as an organization, they may join the end of the parade as individual citizens.

Organizations have until April 22 to make a definite commitment to march in the parade.

High school bands from the surrounding area are being asked by the VFW to participate.

The parade will begin at the Civic Memorial Auditorium and will include a march down a portion of Broadway.

Sharivar Steering Committee Formed

Jennifer Roden, AS 3, and Dave Sunderlund, CE 2, are heading the steering committee for Sharivar, North Dakota State University's annual open house, May 6-8.

The commission of campus affairs selected the two following interviews last winter. Their duties include coordinating Sharivar activities.

The steering committee consists of representatives from three subcommittees: Open House, Special Events, and Publicity. Sheldon Schooler, CH 3, and Kris Callenbach, AS 3, are co-chairman of the Open House committee. Maryann Robson, AS 2, and Gary Rosevold, AG 3, are heading the Special Events committee. Jane Bale, HE 2, and Noel Jordan, CE 2, head the publicity committee.

The business manager for the all-campus event is Dave Bakken, PH 4.

Several new concepts are being tried this year for Sharivar.

In the past Sharivar has coincided with a date which would also be the date for the WDAY Band Festival. This was done so that the large number of high school students participating in the band festival could come to Sharivar.

This year the band festival is

May 14. In the hope of getting better high school participation, letters have been sent to area high schools urging entire classes to attend.

For the fourth time in Sharivar's history, parents of NDSU students will be shown exhibits, shows, and events which will present a picture of the activities on the campus.

Parents are urged to attend any one of the three days of Sharivar, but Friday, May 6, will be set aside as Parent's Day.

If you do, don't settle for less.

If you will complete your first two years of college this spring and have not had ROTC training, you now have a special opportunity to earn an Army officer's commission in the next two years. You can qualify to fulfill your military obligation as an officer while you study for a college degree in a field of your choice.

Through a new two-year Army ROTC program you will receive leadership training and experience that will be valuable assets for the rest of your life, in either a military or a civilian career. You will receive an allowance of $40 each month during your Junior and Senior years. If you desire, you may request postponement of your military service while you complete your studies for a graduate degree.

Most large business and industrial firms prefer the college graduate who has been trained and commissioned as an officer—who has the ability to organize, motivate and lead others—and who has had experience in accepting responsibilities beyond his years.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this important opportunity.

ROOMMATES REVISITED

This morning's mail brought a letter from a student at a prominent Western university (Princeton). "Dear Sir," he writes. "In a recent column you said it was possible to get along with your roommate if you try hard enough. Well, I'd like to see anyone get along with my roommate! Mervis Trunz (for that is his name) practices the ocarina all night long, keeps an alligator, wears knee-cymbals, and collects airplane tires. I have tried everything I can with Mervis Trunz, but nothing works. I am desperate. (signed) Desperate."

Have you, dear Desperate, really tried everything? Have you, for example, tried a measure so simple, so obvious, that it is easy to overlook? I mean, of course, have you offered to share your Personna® Super Stainless Steel Blades with Mervis Trunz?

To have a friend, dear Desperate, you must be a friend. And what could be more friendly than sharing the bounty of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? Who, upon enjoying the luxury of Personna, the nickless, scrapeless, tugless, hackless, scratchless, matchless comfort of Personna, the ease and breeze, the power and glory, the truth and beauty of Personna—who, I say, after such jollies could harden his heart against his neighbor? Nobody, that's who—not even Mervis Trunz—especially not today with the new Personna Super Blade bringing us new highs in speed, comfort, and durability. And here is still a further bonus: Personna is available both in Double Edge style and Injector style.

No, dear Desperate, your problem with Mervis Trunz is far from insoluble. In fact, as roommate problems go, it is pretty small potatoes. Compare it, for example, to the classic case of Basil Metabolism and E. Pluribus Ewbank.

Basil and E. Pluribus, roommates at a prominent Eastern university (Oregon) were at an impassable impasse. Basil could study only late at night, and E. Pluribus could not stay awake past nine p.m. If Basil kept the lights on, the room was too bright for E. Pluribus to sleep. If E. Pluribus turned the lights off, the room was too dark for Basil to study. What to do?

Well sir, these two intelligent American kids found an answer. They got a miner's cap for Basil! Thus, he had enough light to study by, and still the room was dark enough for E. Pluribus to sleep.

It must be admitted, however, that this ingenious solution had some unexpected sequelae. Basil got so enchanted with his miner's cap that he switched his major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation he had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, he discovered what is without question the world's largest feldspar mine. This might have made Basil very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar. Today Basil, a broken man, squeezes out a meagre living as a stalagmite in Ausable Chasm.

Nor has E. Pluribus fared conspicuously better. Once Basil got the miner's cap, E. Pluribus was able to catch up on his long-lost sleep. He woke after nine days, refreshed and vigorous—more vigorous, alas, than he realized. It was the afternoon of the Dean's tea. E. Pluribus stood in line with his classmates, waiting to shake the Dean's hand. At last his turn came, and E. Pluribus, full of strength and health, gave the Dean a firm handshake—so firm, indeed, that all five of the Dean's knuckles were permanently fused.

The Dean sued for a million dollars and, of course, won. Today E. Pluribus, a broken man, is paying off his debt by walking the Dean's cat every afternoon for ten cents an hour.

We, the makers of Personna Blades and the sponsors of this column, will not attempt to expertize about roommates. But we will tell you about a great shaving-mate to Personna—Burma Shave®! It soaks rings around any other lather; it comes in regular and menthol.

College Bowl Team Selection Planned

Twenty students have applied for positions on the college bowl team that will represent North Dakota State University next fall.

To supplement this number, the creative arts committee of the Student Union Activities Board will ask many of the college department heads to pick two students in their respective departments who will make good team contestants.

The creative arts committee, responsible for arranging the college bowl team, is creating a faculty committee which will test all applicants and select the four team members and four alternates.

This faculty committee will serve only to pick the team. They are not the coaches for the team, although some may be asked to coach the team that is selected.

One of the coaches will accompany the four team members when they go to New York to compete.

The faculty committee and creative arts committee will decide the method that will be used to pick the final college bowl team and alternates.

According to Roger Wehrle, advisor to SUAB, the names of the team members and the alternates will probably be announced by the second week of May.

Bison Track Team Earns One First Place

Sprinter and distance man Brian MaLaren took North Dakota State University's only first place in the Corn Palace Relays at Mitchell, S. D., Saturday. The Relays were the opening meet of the season outdoors for the Bison tracksters.

Bison athletes picked up three third and two fourth place finishes in the Relays with six men participating. No team scores are kept for the meet.

MaLaren won the 100 yard dash for the only Bison first place finish with a 10.1 seconds clocking. The Bison senior ran in three relay events also.

All-American pole vaulter Lowell Linderman finished third in the pole vault in what was termed a "strong field of vaulters". Linderman set a new varsity indoor mark last week when he cleared 14'6". Henry Wadsworth of Western Kentucky, who has cleared 16'1/2", won the Corn Palace event.

Another varsity track mark fell last week when Bison miler Roger Grooters ran a 4:23.9 minute mile. The old mark of 4:26 was set by Oddvar Helgeson in 1960.

The Bison track team will enter the Jamestown Quarterback Relays this Saturday. The Quarterback Relays involve both collegiate and high school competition.

Prep Coach To Join Staff

Jim Walker, who directed Mandan High to the 1966 North Dakota Class A basketball title in his first year at that school. He will join North Dakota State University's athletic staff as a graduate assistant for the 1966-67 school year.

"We're very pleased that our graduate program is able to attract someone of Jim's caliber," commented Koppenhaver, "and he's certain to make a valuable contribution to our athletic program."

In making the announcement, Bison Athletic Director Dick Koppenhaver mentioned that Walker would be assigned duties in connection with the track and cross country programs and also work with basketball coach Doug Cowman.

Walker is a 1961 graduate of Minot State College where he earned all-NDIAC basketball honors. Before taking over coaching duties at Mandan, he had coaching stints at Kramer and Minot Model High schools, serving as athletic director at the latter institution.

New Fieldhouse Needs Students

Student enthusiasm and funds could well prove important factors in attaining a new Fieldhouse for North Dakota State University. Student Senate took a major step in support of the new Fieldhouse when they gave the NDSU Athletic Committee $1775 dollars to use in promoting interest in the facility.

The $1775 had previously been collected from alumni and students under the "Splash" program of 1964. The money was then to be used for completing the present swimming pool in the basement of the Fieldhouse. As $15,000 would be necessary to complete the pool, the "Splash" funds lacked value for such a project.

Student Senate's approval for the use of the money demonstrated that students at NDSU feel a definite need for such a facility. Student needs for athletic and recreational outlets will be further explored in a survey to be conducted by the Athletic Committee. The survey will include a number of aspects of the physical education department at NDSU.

The Athletic Committee is serving as a steering committee for generating state-wide interest in the building of the new facility. In particular, the committee is trying to effect action on the part of state legislators and other state officials in approving such a building proposal in the next legislative session.

It would seem quite simple to convince people of the need for larger more modern physical education facilities at NDSU if they could experience their present lack of a physical plant. It is doubtful that any building in town other than an all night truck stop gets more extensive use.

Recently appointed Athletic Director Richard Koppenhaver is quick to discuss the problems of scheduling activities in the small building because of interest in promoting a new facility. Koppenhaver has also outlined the possibility for expanded athletic programs in every area with a new facility.

Koppenhaver's dedication in working for a new fieldhouse is a spur for the Athletic Committee which is planning extensive publicity for the project. The committee places great value in the individual NDSU student's ability to relay the necessity for a new facility. The organization of the students into county action groups similar to those used during the name change campaign of 1960-61 is planned.

Student's realization of the need for the facility should serve as important influence in their home communities in promoting such a state-wide program.

SPRING FOOTBALL

Bison spring football candidates form the most impressive aggregation of varsity players ever to come to NDSU. The depth of the squad is probably the strongest point but other factors stand out when one observes a practice session.

Player and coach's pride and enthusiasm during practices gives the Bison the necessary environment in promoting a championship team. The quick, aggressive activities on the practice field are signs of the player's satisfaction in their accomplishments and their determination in a continuation of these feats.

SPRING FOOTBALL activities involve pushing the sled held by Athletic Director Richard Koppenhaver. Pushing the sled are Barry Showers (right) and an unidentified player.

Elementary Education Program Sought

At its meeting last Tuesday, the Fargo School Board urged that a school of elementary education be established at North Dakota State University.

The resolution, which was introduced by Robert Tallman and was unanimously adopted, pointed ed out that there is currently a shortage of elementary teachers throughout the state. He explained that the present state facilities are graduating only one teacher for every three that are needed.

Seconding the motion, Mrs.

Ray Miller said that the shortage would become more critical in 1968 when all accredited schools will be required to hire only teachers with degrees.

The resolution noted that NDSU did have such facilities from 1903 to 1931.

Mrs. Miller concluded her statement by saying that the question of duplication in state colleges should not affect the final decision. She said it was apparent that the present schools were unable to meet the demand for elementary teachers.

The resolution, along with the boards recommendations, will be forwarded to the State Board of Higher Education for action.

Senate Secretary Resigns

by John Schneider

"Back-biting and name calling" were the reasons given by Kris Dinnusson for her resignation as Student Senate secretary last Sunday evening.

Dinnusson claimed that she did not have time for the job and that she would not tolerate members of Senate talking behind her back.

A motion was then made that no person could resign a position until they have given at least two week's notice. Therefore, Dinnusson will be with Student Senate for at least another two weeks.

Joe Satrom, student athletic representative, brought a motion to Senate to remove the "Splash" funds from the bank for use in promoting statewide interest in building a new Fieldhouse.

As most of the senators weren't even in school when "Splash" was originated, an explanation was in order.

Satrom explained that in the Spring of 1964 the Commission of Athletics collected $1735 from students and alumni to build a swimming pool in the old Fieldhouse.

The pool was to cost $15,000 and, as it was never collected, the money was put in the bank under the name of swimming pool fund.

Most everyone who contributed to the fund has graduated or left school and because a new Fieldhouse has top priority before the Higher Board of Education, it is quite unlikely that a pool will ever be built in the old Fieldhouse.

Satrom was given full use of the money for his committee's campaign.

Senate also began the task of reviewing budgets at the meeting. This activity will continue when they next meet.
