University's Profile Is Prepared

by Tanfield Miller

A team of five visiting academic inspectors will be on campus May 15-19 to check the scholarly credibility of the University. The group represents the Commission on College and University Standards of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

For several months the administration has been preparing the necessary reports for the first accreditation review since World War II, although the revision is supposed to be conducted once every seven years.

The Institutional Profile, a two part overview of the University and its various components, is the major document to be presented when the review begins. The booklet outlines the purpose, history and plans of the University and then goes on to analyze all facets of University life.

The second part of the work is a statistical analysis of NDSU. The profile deals with students, their admissions, studies and campus life; the faculty; their pay; research projects and working conditions; and the University in general, its budget management, extension services and physical plant.

The profile also includes a self-evaluation report from the dean of each college and department as well as the various administrative heads. Schematic drawings of the links between the administrative departments are also part of the report.

James Nickerson, the University's vice-president and one of the authors of the profile, expressed his opinion as to the outcome of the Nickerson revision. "We tried to present a broad overview of the University as a whole," he said, "and while we, of course, tried to depict the strength points of NDSU, the profile also analyses the weaknesses."

The report pointed to the comparatively high quality of the entering freshmen. In 1962 the entering students were in the top 44 percent of the nation, and by last year it had increased to the top 38 percent while still maintaining an admissions policy which is not selective. More than 90 percent of the new students came from the top one-half percent, while less than one percent came from the bottom quartile, the profile stated.

NDSU graduates have also done well over the past twelve years. Six students have received Rhodes Scholarships, sixteen have received Fulbright Grants and one graduate won a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship.

The attrition rate has remained nearly constant over the past five years. Dropout rates have been one-half of one percent. Nearly one-half of the freshmen leave during their first year, while another 40 percent do not make it through their junior year. The attrition among seniors is around 4 percent.

$25,000 Refunded

Business Office Returns Funds

A line of students extending from the Business Office to Putnam Hall, collected money from North Dakota State University rather than paying as usual.

The 1965 Higher Education Act was recently declared unconstitutional, making a refund necessary for students who have attended college in the past year.

On Friday, April 22, 880 students collected up to $320 apiece. Morning Monday 230 had the checks in kind at the line remained steady. Assistant Business Manager Ron Corliss reported that over $25,000 had been refunded by the end of the day.

Students may collect their refund anytime before July 1, 1967.

In comparing student's major fields on this campus with the national averages it was found that there is a comparatively low number of students enrolled in the major fields of faculty. The majors accounted for half the national average while the university popular field of political science and history showed a deficit of 36.6 percent and only 3.6 percent of NDSU students majoring in these fields.

The enrollment in the more scientifically oriented courses required a percentage nearly 50 per cent higher than the comparable statistics.

The library was statistically dealt with in one section of the profile and Nickerson commented that he expected that this was one area which would be closely scrutinized.

Other data which was dealt with in depth was dispersion of the 11.3 million dollar annual budget and the geographical distribution of the students. In addition to more than 150 foreigners attending NDSU, every county of North Dakota is represented, as well as nearly every state.

A review of the faculty found that with almost 300 teachers for the 9000 students, the professor-student ratio was a normal 16.1. In the liberal arts, such as English, history and mathematics, great numbers of chairmen were analyzed as well, with no consistent findings.

"The visitation team will be free to roam at will throughout the campus," Nickerson added, and we expect that they will talk to a number of students and faculty in their review. We are not discouraged by the fact that there have been occasional weak points which will be closely checked and because of the trouble that the University will be enough to overcome them," he concluded.

"We believe in a separate but equal philosophy as far as poetry is concerned," was one of the comments made recently by poet Kenneth Pitchford and his wife Robin Morgan, who has also achieved notable poetic success.

They are proud of each other's work, but are also each other's most severe critics. Pitchford commented that when they criticize each other's work, they try to "objectify" their comments and give impersonal judgments as much as possible.

"I think this is healthy," Morgan commented.

"We share the same thing in subject matter. Both have written poems of political and social criticism. We are concerned with what is innate in man and what is learned and whether what is learned is what ought to be learned. They are strongly individualistic in their opinions and have been involved in several political movements."

"It is not to say, however, that their poetry expresses the same ideas," Pitchford added. "A poem read by Pitchford to a group of students and faculty members Tuesday evening, is an answer to Robin Morgan's poem, "The Improvisor.""

Morgan commented she worked on "The Improvisor" for over a year. She considers it a good poem, but also said the final answer questions on "anything anyone wished to ask."

"We believe in a separate but equal philosophy as far as poetry is concerned," Pitchford commented he has been greatly influenced by his former teacher, Dr. Catherine Cater, who is presently a professor of English at North Dakota State University. Robin Morgan said she enjoys reading the novels of Albert Camus and Franz Kafka and the poetry of Wallace Stevens and Stephen Crane.

"Pitchford's advice to those who write poetry is "to read and think all you can. Don't worry about criticism. No one person can tell you if you are capable of becoming a great poet. More than anything else an artist should have determination. Will is often a test as to whether a poet will be successful.""

"Both believe reading their own work to an audience is valuable because the response of a live audience helps them judge the success of a particular work. Pitchford particularly enjoys the reactions of young students because he feels at home with them and because they are "the most active type of audience.""

If you do, don’t settle for less.

If you will complete your first two years of college this spring and have not had ROTC training, you now have a special opportunity to earn an Army officer's commission in the next two years. You can qualify to fulfill your military obligation as an officer while you study for a college degree in a field of your choice.

"North Dakota State University controls the second largest fleet of vehicles in North Dakota," stated Mr. Daryl B. Schleinchenmayer, NDSU purchasing agent.

With approximately 133 vehicles owned by the three divisions of the University, only the North Dakota Highway Department tops NDSU in the number of vehicles owned by a state agency. The University proper owns 20 vehicles, the Extension Service 14 and the Experiment Station 99.

According to Erling Thorson, superintendent of buildings and grounds, "except for the Experiment Station vehicles located at branch stations, all vehicles owned by the University, the Extension Service and the Experiment Station are serviced at the NDSU maintenance shop. The University employs full-time a mechanic just for this purpose."

Vehicles controlled by the University itself include ten service pickups, four large trucks, two police vehicles, garbage truck, utility truck, rental station wagon, food service panel wagon, geology field wagon and a car for the president.

The Extension Service claims 13 sedans and one station wagon. Only 8 of the 99 vehicles owned by the Experiment Station are sedans. The remaining 81 vehicles include trucks, pickups, station wagons, scouts and panel wagons.

There is not set time for trading of the trucks and pickups, but each sedan is traded when it has been driven between 80,000 and 90,000 miles. All vehicles are purchased through the low-bid system. University owned sedans are in the price class of Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth.

College departments and organizations, such as the athletic department and debate society do not own vehicles. When organizations and clubs such as these need transportation for small groups they rent sedans or station wagons from any of the three university branches at cost of eight and one-half cents per mile.

"Figuring the present total worth of all University vehicles would be an almost endless process," stated Fr. Fred Green, NDSU property control officer.

"Our system of inventory and the constantly changing value of items by depreciation make it difficult to give even an accurate estimate."

You can qualify to fulfill your military obligation as an officer while you study for a college degree in a field of your choice.

Through a new two-year Army ROTC program you will receive leadership training and experience that will be valuable assets for the rest of your life, in either a military or a civilian career. You will receive an allowance of $40 each month during your Junior and Senior years. If you desire, you may request postponement of your military service while you complete your studies for a graduate degree.

Most large business and industrial firms prefer the college graduate who has been trained and commissioned as an officer—who has the ability to organize, motivate and lead others—and who has had experience in accepting responsibilities beyond his years.

You owe it to yourself to investigate this important opportunity.

On Resignation Story
Senator Secretary Says Writer Erred

The new Senate Secretary is Jennifer Riden. She and I will take care of this spring while I show her the duties of the office. She will take it over officially as Secretary Quarter, 1966.

It is my opinion that no sena­tor should announce a practice of taking notes of Senate meetings. Perhaps the one would correctly report which ques­tions were passed and failed.

One cannot be dominated by any outside power or organiza­tion. We are not a simple publicity sheet for the University nor are we a sister organization to any Senate. We, as a newspaper, must operate independently.

The statement that Galt "has no present address," is interest­-ing - in view of the weather re­ports from Fargo... The truth is that for the first quarter his ad­dress was 1130 North University Drive, Fargo, and for the cur­rent term his address is 1008 West Main Street, Fargo.

How can a writer state, "A political science major, he has no immediate plans for the fu­ture?"

"Of course"? Obviously one who is enrolled as a full-time stu­dent in a university has im­mediate plans involving 50 reg­ister, reports, exams, etc. ex­cepted by the university faculty of every student.

Senator Secretary says: "One has no "immediate plans for the future outside of avoiding the draft" contradicts everything the writer has stated previously in his own report.

Surely a person who presents himself with a petition to dom­inate at the local draft office is not avoiding the draft. He is meeting it head-on. There is a difference between protesting military conscription and being a draft-dodger.

There are other manifestations.

To the editor:
An occasional typographical fluff is to be expected in any paper. Gross misstatement of facts one would not expect in a university publication.

The article by John T. Sch­neider, "Pacific Student Plans Anti-Viet Nam War Protest" con­tained several glaring errors. A little objective research would have avoided these.

New Left" Is Depicted

The Minot Daily News described the New Left as, "A movement with such energy and belief that it has been criticized as dangerously radical and as the vanguard of a new democracy."

Several New Left members said, "Some are bearded and dressed as shock troops, the self-styled scholars in action," while others are clean and neatly attired, all are ... at the Minot paper "ND Daily News." Larry Remele, AS 4, titular spokesman for the group at Minot State University, said that the Minot Daily News story referred to a demonstration at the Minot Daily News. Larry Remele, AS 4, titular spokesman for the group, started the discussion with the SDS phrase, "The New Left is being propagated in the area and on campus." He claimed that they represent the citizens. "We are against all forms of right and freedom." Galt and Remele are presently in the decision to bomb Viet Nam? He claimed that they are not an intellectual movement. They see the American society divided into an upper third which benefits from the so-called welfare state; and a lower third, an oppressed, voiceless, despairing group composed of Negroes, Puerto Ricans, Indians, and white Southern migrants. They contend that America is not governed by democratic consent but by the establishment. Galt and Remele are presently considering the establishment of an SDS chapter on campus. They are also contemplating a free university seminar which they claim has the backing of several NDSU faculty members.

Collegiate Rodeo Team Begins Season

Thrills and spills were experienced by the North Dakota State University Rodeo team as they began the collegiate rodeo season April 29-30 at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan.

Rodeo teams from the Great Plains Region, consisting of North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, will compete in five rodeos to earn a berth in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association finals at Vermillion, S. D., June 30-July 4.

Calf roper Jim Aanrud, AG 4, was elected team captain for this year's team. Other members include Doug Hanson, AG 1, calf roping and steer wrestling; Curt Kelling, AG 1, bareback bronc riding, saddle bronc riding and steer wrestling; Clayton Kelling, AG 2, bareback bronc riding and hit riding; Gene Neuens, AG 2, bareback bronc riding, bull riding and steer wrestling, and Byron Andre, AG 1, bull riding.

The team will participate in rodeos at the University of South Dakota, Vermillion; Northern State College, Aberdeen; South Dakota State University, Brookings and Black Hills State Teachers College, Deadwood.

According to Aanrud, the teams are rated on the basis of a point system. Two teams from each of the five regions across the United States will qualify for the NIRA finals.

"This is the first year that NDSU has had a full team since 1961 and we are looking forward to a successful season," Aanrud concluded.

John Johnson, assistant professor of animal science and NDSU Rodeo Club advisor, will accompany the team.

Guerrillas Attacked Students
On Field Problem For ROTC

Hit and run sniper attacks were a unique experience to North Dakota State University ROTC company on a new type of field problem. The problem was designed to give some insight to guerrilla warfare, stated Cadet Lt. Allyn J. Bovovsky, AS 4.

This action was part of a field problem which took place on April 16. It was held at Detroit Mountain, which is located at Detroit Lakes, Minn. Those participating were juniors and seniors.

The field problem began as a tactical road march to Detroit Mountain, the suspected base of the guerrilla band. Hit and run sniper attacks on the route reduced the strength of the company according to Bovovsky.

The company tried to outrun the guerrillas by conducting a night attack on a known position. It was partially successful.

Small Towns Are Becoming Ghost Towns

Do you live in a prospective ghost town? North Dakota has 345 towns which are in danger of becoming ghost towns according to Stanley Voelker, agricultural economist.

A recent study by Voelker showed that of the original 729 town sites in North Dakota 147 have become ghost towns. He attributed the cause of the de-populated towns to mistakes which occurred during the home-building period.

Voelker said, "The railroads caused a lot of these mistakes. Several railroads and numerous speculators laid out town sites every few miles along the tracks. Presently most of them are ghost towns."

Thomas K. Ostenson, agricultural economist, made this statement at the resource development seminar at North Dakota State University: "The decline in the numbers of farmers has resulted in a decline in the potential customers for small-town businesses and a decline in demand for available services of local merchants by remaining farmers. We can therefore expect a further decline in numbers of small-town merchants and in numbers of small towns."

Only 17 towns in N. D. with a population of under 500 had an increase in population. Voelker said, "Any town which has a population under 499 is in danger of becoming a ghost town."

At the seminar, Ostenson stated during the resource development seminar, "With any given level of services there is usually an inverse relationship between per capita costs and population. Therefore, people tend to employ services from larger towns. This trend has resulted in a faster than normal decline in the population of small towns."

National Road Company Plays Magic Land Of Mother Goose

The national road company of "The Magic Land of Mother Goose" will give three performances on Sunday, May 1 at 1, 3 and 5 p.m. in Festival Hall.

The two-act play features 30 fairy tale characters including Mother Goose, Merlin the Magician, Prince Charming, Raggedy Anne and Old King Cole in a lively stage fantasy of song, dance and illusion.

The scene opens upon a most depressed Old King Cole. He and his friends have many problems. His best helper Raggedy Anne has lost all her energy. No sooner does Cole reveal he needs the help of magician when the fabulous Merlin appears.

One by one Merlin sets about solving all of Old King Cole's problems. Merlin produces the Fiddlers Three and joins Sleeping Beauty with Prince Charming. During the engagement ball of Sleeping Beauty and Prince Charming, which is attended by all the characters from the Mother Goose story book, the Wicked Witch announces she will use her powers to stop the ball, prevent the marriage and freeze all the characters.

Merlin's magic powers prove to be stronger than that of the Wicked Witch and he turns her into the kindly Mother Goose. All the characters come back to life and celebrate with a spirited dance.

"The Magic Land of Mother Goose" is based on the book by Roy Fluehler and is directed by Eve Weiher.

Shower Remodeling Awakens Dorm Men

The male residents of Churchill Hall have been awakened lately by a new kind of alarm clock. It goes off promptly at 8 a.m. each morning. The feeling of many of the students seems to be that this is too early for spring quarter.

Churchill Hall is having its shower rooms remodeled. All showers have been torn out and new ones are being built with cement block. The blocks must be cut to the proper size. This is done with the automatic alarm clock, a power saw. It is placed in the center of second floor.

Mike Deplazes, AG 3, said, "It is impossible to study, relax, or sleep with that thing in operation."

The construction company has been trying to speed the project along as fast as it can by putting two crews to work.

"I never knew what it was like to hunt for a shower room in a building that has six of them, but I finally located one that works after going from third floor to first," said Herbert Ulmer, AG 2.

APRIL SHOWERS brought snow to North Dakota State University as students wade through the two inch slush.

Nothing can take the press out of Lee-Prést slacks

Not that it's on his mind right now. And it needn't be. Those Lee-Prést Lesures can't help but stay crisp and neat. No matter what you put them through. They have a new permanent press. So the crease stays in. The wrinkles stay out. Permanently. And that's without ironing. No touch-ups, either. They're made from Lee's special blend of 50% polyester and 50% combed cotton. For wash and wear...with conviction.

Incidentally, that permanent press is the only change we've made in Lesures. They still have that lean, honest look...smart, tailored fit. New Lee-Prést Lesures. Test their permanent press yourself. It isn't necessary, but it's a great way to spend an evening. From $6.00 to $8.00.

Runnerup Bison Set Two New Records

The Bison track team took second place at the Jamestown Quarterback Club outdoor track and field relays at Jamestown, N. Dak., Saturday.

Dickinson State College scored 73 points to win the seven team college division. The Bison came in second with 54 points.

Bison performers set two of the five new college division records. Lowell Linderman soared to 14'1" pole vault record and the sprint medley relay team of Dave McDowell, Ron Evenson, Dave Lokken and Brian MacLaren posted a 3:32.4 time.

Linderman also took a first place in the broad jump and a third in the triple jump, and was chosen as the top athlete in the college division by a Jamestown Quarterback Club committee.

Others taking first place for the Bison were Roger Grooters in the mile and two-mile, and Brian MacLaren in the 100. Other placers for the Bison were Dave Lokken with a second in the 100, John MacNally with a second in the triple jump and Howard Anderson with a fourth in the discus. The mile relay team and 880 relay team took fourth and fifth places respectively.

Ron Evenson, who ran the winning sprint medley relay team, suffered a fractured bone in his right thigh while competing in the triple jump.

The Bison have a dual meet with Valley City here today and this Saturday they will travel to Grand Forks for a triangular meet with the University of North Dakota and Moorhead State College.

Track Team Is “Average”

An average outdoor track season is predicted for the Bison track team according to assistant track coach, Larry Knoblich. The Bison will have some strong individual performances but they will lack in depth which is essential for team points.

Knoblich predicts that several school records will be broken before the season is over, but the team records might not be too impressive.

According to Knoblich, the main weakness will be in the field events. He stated that the Bison will not pick up many points in the hurdles, high jump, or weight events. Knoblich thought that this problem would be solved next year by the strong freshman team.

Inclimated weather and poor facilities have hampered the training program of the track team. The team has had to practice in the gymnasium along with four other athletic teams during the indoor season.

Squad Drops Doubleheader

The Bison lost both games of a North Central Conference baseball doubleheader to the South Dakota State Jackrabbits here last Saturday.

In the first game, South Dakota got three-hit pitching from starter Ed Maras and reliever Van Ellen and won 63. Bus Annu was the starter for the Bison.

In the second game, the Jacks used three hit pitching again and a 13 hit attack to win 112. Gary Pen- der started for the Bison and Bob Erickson worked both games in relief.

Regular starting left fielder Jerry Hicks suffered a shoulder separation in the second game of the doubleheader and will be out for the rest of the season.

This Saturday the Bison will meet Augustana here in a doubleheader starting at noon.

Affection In Dorm Lounges Curtailed

Conduct in the main lounges of the women's dormitories is a major concern to head residents, counselors, and the dorm government. Burgum, Dinan, Weible and South Weible Halls have been exposed to similar problems and have coped with them in various ways.

The major problem in the dorms concerns couples showing too much affection for each other. Mrs. Dorothy Feeney, head resident at Dinan Hall, stated, "Affection is fine, but when it is overly shown it becomes bad conduct. This can reflect on dormitory life. The girls involved don't consider this."

Mrs. Feeney also stated that it has been controlled considerably, but there are still one or two coeds who are persistent in not abiding to the rules of conduct for the lounge.

In Burgum Hall, Mrs. Emmoray Johnson, the head resident, has spoken to some of the coeds about their conduct. She stated, "When we speak to the young people, they accept what we say and appreciate it."

She stated that it's natural and good for young people to show a certain degree of affection, but never to the point where it's embarrassing for others in the lounge.

The Weible and South Weible lounge which is used also by Reed and Johnson, has coped with the problem in a similar manner. Mrs. Kay Johnson, assistant head resident, stated that if there is disorderly conduct, the coed is spoken to after her date leaves.

"The problem has decreased considerably since the beginning of the school year," said Mrs. Johnson.

Other problems in conduct include things like fellows putting their feet on the tables, eating and drinking beverages in the lounge, and in the case of Weible and South Weible Hall, the students throwing their coats on the chairs instead of hanging them on the coat rack.

Balloon Finders Get Production Tickets

Fifty balloons will be released by Blue Key members at 4 p.m. today from the Memorial Union roof to advertise the all-university spring production of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

For each balloon returned to Tom Norum, special arrangements chairman for the show, two free tickets to the smash Broadway comedy will be given. This is an effort to increase student interest in the production, for an estimate from past years reveals that only about half of the SU collegians attend the annual musical.

"Tickets for "How to Succeed . . ." are on sale at the Memorial Union and at Daveau's in Fargo for $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00."
