Crowd Welcomes Defeated Bison

San Diego inflicted the first defeat on the Bison football team since their junior high school years. In the record book the game was also the third time this season ND State had met the nation's number two ranked team. Earlier the Bison defeated Montana State 35-23 and UNO 18-15.

Students at North Dakota State University, Moorhead State College and Concordia College can soon take courses on any of the three campuses and pay registration fees only at their home institutions.

To some players it was the first time they had lost in their gridiron careers. Several had played on unbeaten teams since their junior high school years.

In the record book the game was the first shutout scored against the Bison since 1963. The team to do the scoring was the University of North Dakota in a 26-13 contest in 1964. The San Diego game marked the largest crowd ever to attend a Bison game in Balboa Stadium, the field which houses an American Football League team.

In the record the game was also the third time this season ND State had met the nation's number two ranked team. Earlier the Bison defeated Montana State 35-23 and UNO 18-15.

Without the pressures of being number one but the bruises to show for having it, the Bison this week must prepare for the State College of Iowa Panthers.

The SCI game, if the Bison win, would insure a third North Central Conference title and a probable bowl bid. Although no word has been received concerning a Pecan or Mineral Bowl appearance the Bison have been mentioned concerning a bowl appearance in a local newspaper.

Students Investigate Rules Handbook

Investigation of present rules and regulations listed in the Student Handbook is being undertaken by two newly formed student groups.

A Student Senate Committee on Rules and Regulations has been established by Student Body President Rodger Wetzel. The purpose of the group is to "study certain rules and regulations with which student dissatisfaction has been shown, and to present reasonable alternatives to these rules."

The complete list of rules and regulations is under study, but those on which particular emphasis is placed are the rules on dormitories, women's dormitory hours and traffic regulations.

Wetzel emphasized that the Dean of Students' office is in full co-operation with the committee and that if "logical student arguments against the present rules and regulations are presented, action to change them will be taken quickly."

Another committee is being organized under the administration of Associated Women Students and Mrs. Betty Salters, dean of women. Dean Salters approached AWS officials saying that there has been a certain amount of dissatisfaction shown with present women's dorm hours.

Joan Quick, president of AWS, stated that "male students have shown most dissatisfaction with present hours; must be noted complaining about their present hours."

She added, "the committee will investigate not only dorm hours, but will look into all rules and regulations governing women students." This includes investigation of the policies of taking overnights and on-off campus living.

"Attempts to change the present regulations will be made, if there is a definite need to do so," stated Miss Quick.
As I See It:

by Tanfield Miller

No matter how good a team is it is inevitable that they will lose sometime at some place to some one. That happened last week end; but we should not dwell on the past but rather turn toward the future.

There is another game this Saturday and there will be plenty more in the future. We will get our revenge and as Benjamin Franklin once said "He who laughs last, laughs best."

It is interesting to point out that Harvard also had an unblemished record going into last Saturday's contest and one of their alums was quoted in "News-week" as saying that being undefeated is as well as good, for who wants to send their children to a football factory?

TOO SAD TO SEE?

The saddest part of last Saturday night was the interested students couldn't see nor understand what they did hear of the game. The first problem occurred because the local broadcasting networks were being their normal petty selves and refused to come to an agreement for the benefit of the community.

The trouble started, as I understand it when WDAY leased the equipment and the time but could not obtain a release of the cable and hence the signal from California. The second string defense tackling our offense and somehow never learned that Linderman wasn't really Schmitz. Even that anti-Bison Sportscaster (?) Jim Adelsen could have done better and that isn't saying much.

IT REIGNS RED TAPE

Some time in the recent past the powers that be around campus got together and decided that there was not enough red tape entangling students' organizations. After all, last year these beloved boys only succeeded in killing one group, the ski club.

So what did they do but hit organizations where it hurts, in the wallet. When we returned this fall we were greeted with the pleasant news that in order to obtain student funds, any group must first go through student government channels saying how many paper clips would be needed for the next year.

This is nothing new and is quite understandable. But the budgets are finally approved the real work begins.

NOW THE SNOW'S EVEN RED

Out to greet us this come the new yellow sheet. When groups want the money they have to take the form, fill it out in at least quadruplicate and have everyone from Joe Alken to John Quincy Adams sign it. In other words if the Assistant Dean of Students for Organizations and Activities or whatever his title is, doesn't like the pink shirt you are wearing he can conceivably keep you out of the coins.

More likely, since his signature is needed twice on the slip, he can simply "not be in" once and that shoots that.

But after all why should we complain. Just think if you are the treasurer of your organization you can have the privilege of visiting a member of the administration very often.

IT'S NICE ON THE OUTSIDE

Each week this office is deluged by many papers from other campuses and it irks us to read every few weeks about another campus trying something new like no hours or coed dorms. So we have been discussing the possibility of sending these clippings over to the Kremlin so they can see how people are living on the outside.

SENATE ON THE MOVE

Next week the illustrious Student Senate is holding its stimulating meeting in the lounge of Wible Hall so that students can see what they actually do. (?) It may prove quite interesting.

The group of young turks are going to once again remedy the whole question of what they do by moving to abolish the body. Last time they almost succeeded and it appears that they may just have enough support to do it this time.

During the last week another sore spot about their role came to light when several of the Senators were notified that students would no longer run homecoming but since it is for the alumni the administration is taking over the administrative duties.

Whether there is much truth to this or not is still questionable but the mere rumor was enough to make some people again question the powers and purpose of Senate.

THEY'RE NOT THE ONLY ONES

Maybe everyone, not only Senators should look into their purpose and goal, then they may succeed some day.

Cold Weather Realism Prevails In ROTC Maneuvers

By Glenn Solberg

"Don't go to sleep or you'll wake up to death," uttered a shivering Army ROTC cadet while riding in an Army troop transport en route to Saturday's ROTC field maneuvers.

At 0500 hours 5 Nov. 66 (5 a.m., or 5, 1966) 130 sophomores, juniors and senior ROTC cadets were loaded into trucks and transported to Camp Davis on Lake Anoka near Valley City, N. D., where the officers-to-be were in charge of nearly all of the operations Saturday.

"Considering the weather, Saturday's maneuvers could be termed as being quite successful," stated Major D. O. Rumpel, a member of the Army ROTC faculty.

He added that "cadets discovered for themselves that weather conditions will not always be ideal and will not always be suitable for their upcoming summer camp."

According to senior cadet Dave Baesler AS 4, the purpose of Saturday's maneuvers was to "acquaint sophomore and junior cadets with some of the Army's fundamental practices while in a realistic setting, and prepare them for their upcoming summer camp."

Faculty members observed and offered helpful suggestions to the ROTC seniors who were in charge of nearly all of the operations Saturday.

"You flag, bayonet fighting, hand to hand combat, intelligence, gun fighting, basic fundamentals of first aid, communication, and map reading and the use of the M-1 rifle."

He added that "cadets discovered for themselves that weather conditions will not always be ideal and will not always be suited to the likings of combat participants."

Students Don't Realize Implications Of Pledge

Students enrolled in the College of Agriculture are in need of a refresher course in their responsibilities to the honor system used in the college. A story several weeks ago "Crib Sheet Turns Up In Examination" exposed an incident in the College of Agriculture which involved more than a few cheaters.

A story several weeks ago "Crib Sheet Turns Up In Examination" exposed an incident in the College of Agriculture which involved more than a few cheaters.

The apparent cheater was the student who accidently submitted his "cheat sheet" with his examination. The appearance of the cheat sheet was more than just a coincidence; it was a deliberate attempt by the student to gain an advantage in the examination.

The apparent cheater broke the basic rule of the honor system which is that of "receiving aid in writing this examination." Unapparent cheaters, but equally as guilty, were those who by not reporting the incident gave aid to the cheater in writing the exam.

The guilt by observation clause of the honor system is the key to effective operation of the system. Professor David Nelson, the victim of the cheating incident, reported that students observing the incident "didn't bother to report cheating students." Students who fail to report cheating they have observed under the honor system are in essence the reason why the system isn't completely successful. If more cheaters were reported, through fair and equal means, it is possible that students are less likely to carry out dishonest practices.

Why then don't students report other students who are abusing the honor system? Students, through lack of orientation into the implications of the honor system, don't realize their role.

For the honor system to work effectively students must both know and realize the implications of the pledge "Upon my honor, I have neither given nor received aid in writing this examination." IAS

To the Editor:

Is Mr. John Schneider a member of the North Dakota State University student body? If I was a member of the student body I sure would wish he wasn't. I was literally shocked when I read his story on the front page of the Student Senate meeting Oct. 26. I read his story from start to finish and furthermore, how it ever made the front editor the title in the Oct. 26 issue of the Spectrum. How it ever made the front page is beyond my comprehension.

I think most members of the Bison student body agree that they played a good team when they met the Sioux Oct. 22. We have here recent the Bison are a good ball club - they proved it with the tremendous comeback victory. But, the news story on the front page by Mr. Schneider was a tiresome and nasty as one could make it.

First of all, both student bodies (UND and NDSU) have a grand time poking fun at each other's pep clubs, namely Badgers and Golden Panthers. But, in a news story you don't call one of them a male cheerleader, which Mr. Schneider did.

For the last two years, the Bison have beaten the Sioux three years each point. Some say that anytime you win a big game, it was a good game, whether it was by one, three or nine points. Realistically speaking, the Bison barely squealed by, Right? But did you see in any newspaper in the Grand Forks area a headline even mentioning the Bison "squeaking by"?

You have a great football team, but you are great only because the caliber of clubs you have are bad. So far this year, you now have met a number of football teams in the nation. You beat two of them, and at one time of this letter, you have to admit you were a stepped-down program. "Squeaking by?"

Student Supports Honor System

The story which appeared in the Oct. 26 issue of the Spectrum on page 10 "Crib Sheet Turns Up In Examination" misled readers to think that the honor system in the College of Agriculture wasn't working.

After attending this institution for three years and taking a variety of courses in a number of colleges I can testify that the honor system is working.

The fact that one student or perhaps several students are misusing the privileges offered by the honor system is truly unfortunate, but this small fraction should not be allowed to blemish the systems image.

Any program involving human characteristics such as honesty, sincerity and initiative have long been abused by participants. Motor vehicle laws and the right to vote have been severely misused.

The disadvantage of the honor system is the opportunity it gives to those who have no idea how to cheat. I feel this fault is far outweighed by the following advantages.

1. The opportunity for a student to demonstrate his honesty in his classwork.
2. The family-student relationship in the classroom which evokes through the moral trust of an effective honor system.
3. The ultimate goal of establishing a high code of values in the graduate of the College of Agriculture.

The above list could also include an advantage for faculty members who, under effective honor system, are free during examination periods. The job of watching examinees take a test seems a most tedious task.

The fact that Professor Nelson is going to watch his students, "Any program involving human characteristics such as honesty, sincerity and initiative have long been abused by participants. Motor vehicle laws and the right to vote have been severely misused."

And now a question for Mr. Schneider. What are you going to write about when the basketball season rolls around, how small the hoops are in the Sioux arena? Lowell Ridgeway, Sports Writer, North Dakota Student

School Plans Mixed Housing As Coeducational Experiment

Mixed housing facilities should be introduced soon at the University of Alberta at Edmonton. Director of housing and food services, Derek Bone, told a meeting of parents and students that one of the advantages of a new residence building now under planning is the provision of mixed coeducational housing to U of A.

"An experimental period in mixed housing could be put in effect in the existing two towers this year," Mr. Bone said.

He suggested the first step toward mixed residences could be a change in housing regulations which would permit male and female students to mingle in existing residence lounges. Visitng privileges are given to residence dwellers on Sundays but, "a stepped-up program is headed to ensure the occupancy of both sexes in residence halls." Students are adults in every sense of the word and should be treated as such.

"Parents don't attempt the type of segregation in the home," Mr. Bone said.

He was joined in his opinion U of A's Dean of Women. M. N. Grant, speaking at the meeting, welcomes experimentation with co-ed housing.
Army ROTC Drill Team To Guard Soldier's Tomb

The Army ROTC drill team is taking part in a special Veterans Day ceremony on Nov. 11. The drill team will guard a replica of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier which is in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D.C. The tomb will be erected for the occasion in front of the post office. It is to be similar as possible to the tomb in Arlington. White crosses will be set up around the tomb to add more authentic background.

The drill team will guard the tomb from noon until 5 p.m. and will change the guard every 30 minutes. The change will involve three guards every time. The cadets will take turns throughout the day.

Previous to guarding the tomb the drill team will march in the Veterans Day parade. Then they will go directly to the tomb from the parade.

The ceremony will be concluded with the lowering of the flag at 5 p.m. The flag will be flown at half mast throughout the day.

It’s trade-in time for tired old myths.

Like the one about business. Especially big business. That it is beyond the rugged individualist’s wildest daydream to enter this holy of holies because he’ll lose something that’s very sacred — like his independence.

Sure, it can happen. If a guy or gal wants to hide, or just get by, or not accept responsibility, or challenges.

We’re not omniscient enough or stupid enough to speak for all business, but at a company like Western Electric, bright ideas are not only welcome, they are encouraged. And no door is shut. Create a little stir, go ahead, upset an old applecart (we replace shibboleths at a terrific pace — we have to as manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System — in order to provide your Bell telephone company with equipment it needs to serve you.)

There’s an excitement in business. True, we’re in it to make a profit, but working to find new and better ways to make things that help people communicate is very rewarding and satisfying. Did you ever hear these wry words of Oliver Wendell Holmes? “Never trust a generality — not even this one.”

That’s how we feel about the generality that claims you’ll just become a little cog in a company like Western Electric. You might, of course, but if you consider yourself an individual now, odds are 10 to 1 that you’ll keep your individuality. And cherish it. And watch it grow. Even at big, big Western Electric.

You know, that’s the only way we’d want you to feel. If you feel like coming in with us.

You'll work in small groups where initiative and ability get maximum exposure. And if you desire an advanced degree and qualify, Boeing will help you financially with its Graduate Study Program at leading universities and colleges near company facilities.

Often it will be sheer hard work. But we think you'll want it that way when you're helping to create something unique—while building a solid career. Visit your college placement office and schedule an interview with our representative. Boeing is an equal opportunity employer.
Housing Units Donate Campus United Fund Drive Completed

Donations have once more been sought by the United Fund campaign at North Dakota State University.

Ten students, under the leadership of Bill Daly AG 4, have visited the homes and women's residence halls, fraternities and sororities and married students' housing.

According to Daly, most of the donations were small, but many students did give to the Fund's campaign.

Daly added, "NDSU is part of the Fargo community. It is commendable when students take an interest in a city-wide project such as the United Fund.

In connection with the Poetry North program, a series of monthly poetry sessions at North Dakota State University, the first issue of a literary magazine will be published on Wednesday.

"Scop Craft," a bi-weekly publication is an attempt to stimulate writing interests of area college students, according to Anthony Oldknow, magazine advisor.

"Scop Craft," an Anglo-Saxon term meaning literature, will be sold for 25 cents at the NDSU Memorial Union. Varsity Mart, library and English department. The magazine will also be sold on the Moorhead State and Concordia College campuses.

The first issue of pages will include two short stories, five poems and a poem critique.

"I want to encourage literature in this area and hope to see it firmly in the public's mind," said Oldknow.

Forty NDSU students have joined together to produce the magazine which will accept contributions from area college students, faculty members and interested area residents.

"Scop Craft" staff members are Dennis Dau AS 3, Dennis Redman AS 5, and John Winkelman AS 4. The business committee includes Richard Johnson AS 5 and Barbara Hendrix AS 5, and publicity, Don Schmirleback of Fargo, and Greta Rygaard AS 3.
Funds To Be Distributed Differently

The North Dakota, State University Financial Aids Office is in the process of changing the school of distribution of financial aid available to the student, according to Wayne Teune, financial aids officer.

In previous years distribution of available funds has often tended to be somewhat inconsistent due to incomplete and inaccurate information regarding the financial situation of the student and his parents.

As educational expenses have risen, and more youngsters from moderate-income families have sought higher education, it has become necessary to develop a more uniform and exact method of determining who needs help and how much.

This uniform method of determining whether or not a student needs assistance and, if so, how much, is provided by an agency called the College Scholarship Service (CSS). The CSS helps the student who wants to go to college report to various colleges the financial circumstances of his family. This, in turn, helps the colleges to determine the student’s actual need for financial assistance.

The CSS determines need through the Parents’ Confidential Statement (PCS). On the PCS the parents of an applicant for financial aid itemize all family information and data pertinent to the candidate’s application for aid.

As soon as the statement is received by the CSS, it is scanned for completeness and consistency of information.

The CSS then gives a reasonable expectation of the amount the parents can afford to pay toward the costs of the student’s college education.

The determination of the amount of financial support to be expected from the parents is based on the financial strength of the family. The appropriate need figure is then sent to the colleges to provide a basis for judgment.

The college sets up a budget and makes the final decision as to who will receive aid and how much they will receive.

The purpose of the entire plan is to assure that financial aid is being distributed fairly on the basis of complete information, rather than haphazardly.

Enrollment To Bring Money

Veterans-in-college, treat your substance cards like money in the bank. Sending them to the veterans Administration will cost a check back to you every month.

For September only, however, the VA will send payments for courses worth just the college's verification of enrollment. The college should have submitted this report receiving from veterans two copies of their Certificate of Eligibility, obtained from Regional offices.

If their payments for September are delayed, veterans should be sure that their schools have verified their enrollment to the VA.

At the end of October, veterans must mail their certifications of attendance for the month to the VA. The VA will then send monthly payments to veterans on November 20. This procedure must be followed in succeeding months.

Practices the past weeks have been devoted to instructing the players as to the style of play which the Bison use.

Coach Belk viewed the upcoming season by saying, "By the time we play our first game we should be able to put a good basket on the floor."

Last season the freshman team compiled a 141 record with no loss coming in the last part of the season.

The team will open the regular season on Dec. 1 when they meet the Concordia freshman team.

The Bison fans and supporters are to be commended for the fine gesture which they made by turning out 1,000 strong at the airport last Sunday night to meet the team. It helped to lift the low spirits of a demoralized team which had just suffered their first defeat in 24 straight games.

How much it consoled each player will probably never be known but you can be sure that players and coaches alike were thrilled by it. Coming back to a dark, cold airport after a loss with nothing to greet you but the cold night air is not a pleasant thought.

Linebacker Mike Almennan summed up the welcome in this way. "It was great! We were really surprised. They let us know they were behind us win or lose. Everyone I talked to was really happy. We didn't expect to get that big a crowd if we had won. The general consensus around is that school spirit is lacking but that showed that it wasn't."

The Bison returned home a battered and bruised team. Looking at the game on video tape showed anyone that we were not outclassed as the score would indicate. The Bison stood beside the Aztecs in the statistics but an inability to come up with the big first down in 24 straight games.

Sorority Wins Campus College Bowl

Kappa Alpha Theta won the College Bowl trophy by defeating Weber 140-110 in the final round of competition, having defeated Kappa Gamma 220-40 in the first round.

Elimination for the championship took place Sunday afternoon with five teams competing: Weber, House Farm, Kappa Alpha Theta, Theta Chi and Kappa Gamma.

Also in the first round Theta Chi won by five points over Farm House 85-80. In the second round Weber beat Theta Chi 120-100 and KAT drew a bye.

The questions in this session were ones that had been selected for use in preparation for the G. E. College Bowl but were not used; hence they were new to both sides.

Canadian Farmer Finds NDSU Kicker Balloons

On the North Bay of Lake Nipissing, nearly 900 miles northeast of North Dakota State University's Daootah Stadium and the Oct. 8 Homecoming kickoff, two balloons, a green one and a gold one, were picked up by a Canadian farmer.

"A great kick-off," responded Cameron Barber of Callander, Canadian farmer.

"I thought you might be interested in knowing that North Dakota State's fame is now on an international scale." NDSU’s green and gold maintains its strength, according to Barber, whether fighting on the gridiron or backing strong north-westerly prevailing winds.
