

Nationwide Movement

Viet Nam Moratorium Set Oct. 15

Nationwide opposition to the Viet Nam war will result in widespread demonstrations and rallies scheduled for October 15. Student President Butch Molm has called for faculty to call off classes at NDSU and for students to attend anti-war functions scheduled for the Union Ballroom Wednesday.

Speakers, music and films are scheduled for the ballroom show. The film Hanoi 13 will be shown, and music will be provided by Jim Miller and James Dean.

Roland Dille, president of MSC, will plant a tree Oct. 14 as a memorial to war dead. Though not officially part of the nationwide moratorium, the action is deemed to coincide with other actions.

At Concordia a convocation is planned, and the January 19th movement is planning a rally.

Action in area colleges is neither concerted nor well-planned. According to a staff member of the Concordian, "Classes at Concordia will be held as usual. I doubt there will even be a strike."

The same attitude prevails at NDSU, where the moratorium has received no backing from the administration or student government. Some faculty here have expressed their intent to call off classes for the moratorium and some may take part in the ballroom events.

Nationally the movement is sponsored by two groups — the Viet Nam Moratorium Committee and the New Action Committee. The two groups are relying on tactics similar to those employed during the "dump Johnson" movement of last year, namely boycotts, teach-ins and large rallies.

The difference this year is the support the anti-war movement is getting from the populace. In addition to over 500 student presidents and editors signing the call for the moratorium, large numbers of off-university groups are also planning boycotts of business functions for the day.

Even school administrations are joining in. Rutgers University has announced it will officially observe the moratorium. The Colorado School of Mines has announced it will join the movement.

Leaders feel that President Nixon will find it difficult to ignore the protest if it comes from a wide range of groups — students, administrators, labor unions, businessmen and even some Republican members of Congress, such as Senator Charles Goodell, R-N.Y.

In addition to the October 15 Moratorium, other anti-war actions are slated for this same period. They include a two-day death march from Arlington Cemetery to the Capitol Oct. 13-14, and concurrent marches to "bring the troops home now" by the New Mobilization Committee

November 15 in Washington and San Francisco.

Nixon's Reaction

To Demonstrations

WASHINGTON — (CPS) — When asked about his reaction to planned anti-war demonstrations this fall, President Nixon in a recent press conference showed determination to follow his present course.

"I have often said that there's really very little we can do with regard to running the university and college campuses of this country. We have enough problems running the nation, the national problems."

Though noting the existence of anti-war sentiment in the nation, the President said that the administration expects a certain amount of demonstrations.

"However," Nixon said, "under no circumstances will I be affected whatsoever by it."

"I think," the President continued, "we're on the right course in Viet Nam. We're on a course that is going to end this war."

"But it will end much sooner if we can have to an extent, the extent possible in this free country, a united front behind every reasonable proposal."

Board of Appeals Confers, To Issue Temporary Permits

by Kim Osteroo

The new Traffic Board of Appeals met with the Campus Committee last Thursday to discuss problems in traffic control.

Leading off the discussion was the subject of temporary parking permits to be issued to students. A small fee for each permit was considered and met with the approval of most of the members present.

Dave Deutsch raised a question concerning the authority of the Appeals Board. Campus Committee member, Bob Thorson, responded, "The discussions of the board will be definite. However it could be reviewed by the campus committee." It was made very clear the board was not just a puppet of the campus committee.

Spittler answered questions concerning the legality of the campus police since the campus was annexed into the city limits. None of the traffic regulations on campus conflict with any of the city's traffic laws according to Spittler.

"We have the go ahead from the attorney general for the campus to formulate and enforce traffic regulations on campus," added Thorsen. "We try to cooperate with the Fargo police as much as possible."

When asked who bears the risk of damage to towed cars, Spittler replied, "The cars are towed at the owners risk, this is written in the rules and regulations pamphlet handed out when the kids get their stickers."

The validity of this was questioned however when it was noted that all new cars completely lock-up when the ignition key is removed. A front end dolly was deemed of great importance to avoid damage and subsequent negligence charges.

When asked how widespread campus traffic violations were, Spittler replied, "We give an average of 35 tickets per day depending upon the weather." This amounts to around 8,000 tickets per year.

The laws are flexible and were established to "help" the students rather than harass them. "That is why we must look at the persons as well as the rule," said Holland.

"Appeals will be judged impartially in accordance with the rules," said Nelson. "Refunds of fines imposed will not be given except for a legitimate excuse."

Regular meetings of the board will be set up at its first meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 8.

"It would be very good for all students and faculty to know the whereabouts of these meetings," noted Ginger Culpepper, a spectator taking part in the discussion.

A time limit was imposed on all appeals made to the board. An offender must make his appeal within five school days after the violation in order for his appeal to be recognized. This appeal is to be made through the traffic department at the time the fee is paid. The board will then contact the person and let him know the date of his board appearance. This time requirement will appear on all tickets issued.

Four cast members of The Teahouse of the August Moon lined up in the Union barbershop to be shorn this week. Though previously long-haired, they required haircuts in order to play military personnel in the production. # MS Fair To Raise Funds For Project E-Quality Interested residents of the Moorhead-Fargo community are being asked to cooperate with faculty members and students at MSC in conducting a fair Oct. 25. The fair is a major fund raising project for Project E-Quality.

Scheduled for 2 to 10 p.m. in Nemzek Fieldhouse, the event is billed as a costume fair and patrons and participants are encouraged to dress in costumes of any kind.

The fair will feature the sale of food and beverages, books, art pieces, games and other items and services that may appeal to the general public of all ages. There will be continuous musical entertainment.

Mrs. Lois Selberg, director of Project E-Quality, said every effort is being made to encourage adult and youth organizations throughout the area to take part by sponsoring and manning fair booths or by providing manpower for various committees.

If desired, organizations sponsoring a booth at the fair may split the proceeds with Project E-Quality.

"We need help. Lots of assistance from individuals and organizations," Mrs. Selberg added.

Project E-Quality is the two-year-old MSC project which provides financial assistance to capable youths from disadvantaged minority groups who would not otherwise have a chance to get a college education. Limited student loan money and cuts in some key federal aid programs combined this fall with large increases in student tuition and fee payments, to make financing of the Project particularly difficult even though original Project enrollment goals for this year were cut.

Seats Perennial Problem

Seating at the football games is a perennial problem Ron Corliss, business manager, has had to face. The problem has grown yearly due to the success of the Bison football teams and the increased student enrollment.

This year Corliss and others spent three days contacting such places as Moorhead State College, Concordia College, UND, Mayville State College, F-M Speedway, Bemidji Speedway, Fairgrounds, Hawley Rodeo and the Indian School at Wahpeton trying to locate temporary seating.

He also placed a public announcement over local radio asking school administrators and principals for help.

There are now temporary bleachers in the southwest corner of the stadium. These bleachers will accommodate 800 people. Corliss said there would be an additional 2000 seats available for

High School Workshops Scheduled

Two workshops for area high school band and choral directors have been scheduled at NDSU in October, according to Dr. Edwin Fissinger, professor and chairman of the Music Department.

A percussion workshop, featuring a clinician from the Minnesota Symphony, is scheduled beginning at 9 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 11, in Festival Hall. Marvin Dahlgren is an instructor at the University of Minnesota and has been the principal percussionist for 20 years with the Minnesota Symphony.

Techniques for developing skills on percussion instruments will be stressed by Dahlgren in the workshop concentrating on percussion problems faced by high school directors. Dahlgren is a clinician for the Ludwig Drum Company, a specialist in jazz, and is also a member of the Guthrie Theatre Orchestra in Minneapolis. He records for numerous radio and TV commercials in the Twin Cities area.

The second NDSU workshop, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 25, in Festival Hall, has been organized as a service to high school choral directors throughout North Dakota and western Minnesota. Prof. Harold Decker, past president of the American Choral Directors Association and director of choral activities at the University of Illinois Urbana campus, will serve as guest clinician at the workshop.

Rehearsal techniques and choral literature will be areas of special concentration during the day-long choral workshop. A concert has tentatively been scheduled in the evening. Decker has headed choral activities at the University of Illinois since 1957 and has contributed a chapter on choral repertoire to the Choral Directors Guide. He has published material on both choral techniques and literature.

There is no registration fee for either of the workshops being sponsored by the NDSU Music Department. Members of the department will assist in conducting the two workshops. For further information contact the NDSU Music department.

Tenor Recital

Robert Olson, assistant professor of music at NDSU will present a faculty recital at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 14, in Festival Hall.

Olson, a tenor, will sing a song cycle by Robert Schumann, entitled "Poets Love," an aria from an opera by Verdi, and for hymns for a tenor, viola and piano by Ralph Vaughan Williams.

Accompanying Mr. Olson will be Karen Allayaud, SU instructor of music, and Mary King Ostfeld, guest artist from MSC.

As part of a Doctoral of Musical Arts degree project, Mr. Olson will present another concert at SU later this year and to concerts at the University of Illinois Urbana.

The concert is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

the Homecoming game. These seats will remain for the duration of the year.

Dean Pavek said that one of the priorities of the SU '75 program is the construction of permanent stands for the football stadium. These stands would replace the present student and general admission sections.

Proposals are being made and evaluated, but nothing definite has been decided. The plans depend on how much money will be available. Corliss said that the construction of new stands was the next big objective of the alumni.

McGraths Herald Cultural Renaissance

Bruce Tyley
 "I guess you could describe me as a sort of North Dakota or a regional patriot," explained Tom McGrath in a personal interview. McGrath, professor of English at North Dakota State and formerly at NDSU, continued, "Primarily as a result of the three schools (NDSU, SU and Concordia), something in the form of a political and cultural renaissance will happen in this area."

"I don't know exactly when this will happen or what form it will take, but we sure do need one." McGrath feels that the three schools will spearhead the movement.

The McGraths left Fargo on a day of absence in July 1967 with the intention of taking an extended vacation. They went first to Montana, New York. There, for a month, McGrath was involved in writing—mostly poetry. "The whole trip was not particularly eventful," he said, "but would you like to hear about how our car was wrecked by a drunken Indian?" Of course.

After leaving New York, they were passing through North Carolina and Mrs. McGrath wanted to stop in Asheville, home of novelist Thomas Wolfe. As luck would have it, it was raining and the museum was closed.

"Outside of Asheville," McGrath began, "some poor white trash, his wife and a drunken Indian in an old pick-up truck ran into us and completely demolished both vehicles.

"I tried to suggest that we try to separate both cars and go our separate ways, but the other man's wife came up and warned us to be careful because they (the Indian and her husband) were likely to stab us both. In fact, She said her husband had tried to kill her twice in the past week.

"While Eugenia exchanged names and numbers with the other man's wife, I spotted a nearby river and recalled the legend that all Irish poets have the power to turn themselves into salmon, and I would have tried, but I didn't know what to do about Eugenia.

"About that time, another car full of Indians stopped, and the drunken one got in, and they roared off up the mountain. Two minutes later they came back and stopped. I thought 'Oh, great, since they were all of monstrous size, and I thought it was Custer's massacre all over again. However, all they wanted was a case of beer in the back of the truck."

After a layover in New Orleans with the flu, they proceeded to Mexico. They remained in Guadalupe for about three months with a friend who had been deported, and McGrath worked on a second volume of poetry entitled Letters to an Imaginary Friend.

Leaving Mexico, they toured the Western U.S. and visited friends. After passing through North Dakota briefly, they went to New York City where Mrs. McGrath worked in the publications office of the public library, and he continued to write and work on a film.

McGrath described New York as "not a particularly good place to work. It is probably one of the ugliest and least inspiring cities in the world."

In April, their son, Tomacito, was born. McGrath described the rather cryptic origin of the name — "Well, first, there's Thomas, mostly out of personal vanity, Samuel, after Eugenia's father and koan raised to the second power."

Asking for an explanation of that, he replied, "Koan is a Zen — Buddhist riddle in which you clap your hands, and the instructor says, 'you have heard the sound of two hands clapping. Now what does the sound of one hand sound like?"

"Well, you go off and think about it for ten or twenty years, and when you either find a solution or give up, you find fulfillment. And what is a greater puzzle than kids anyway?"

When asked why he left SU for MSC, he replied that more money and more time were the prime motivators. "In order to be a poet," he said, "you must either be rich, have a rich mistress or several rich mistresses. If you don't, you have to work to support the habit — like a junkie.

Tom McGrath, former English instructor at NDSU and now teaching at MSC. "I simply could not do the type of work I wanted." (Photo by B. Johnson)

But unlike a poet, a junkie at least has the hope of breaking the habit."

He went on to say that he could not do the type of work at SU that he enjoyed. "Don't misunderstand me," he said. "SU has the best staff and working conditions of any school, but they already have a fine instructor of verse writing in Richard Lyons, and I simply could not do the type of work I wanted."

At present, Mrs. McGrath is working with the organization called Friends for Democracy in Greece, and works for the magazine Demokratia, the only English language bulletin of current Greek affairs. Mrs. McGrath is of Greek descent.

McGrath is now readying his two volumes of Letters to an Imaginary Friend for publication and is trying to procure the needed funds to restart publication of a literary magazine, Crazy Horse.

In ending the interview, McGrath stated that the things he missed most about being away from Fargo were last winter and the spring flood.

Our pill.

Does it really work?

If you've ever resorted to NoDoz® at 4 a.m. the night before an exam, you've probably been disappointed.

NoDoz, after all, is no substitute for sleep. Neither is anything else we can think of.

What NoDoz is is a very strong stimulant. In fact, NoDoz has the strongest stimulant you can buy without a prescription.

Caffeine.

What's so strong about that?

If we may cite The Pharmacological Basis of Therapeutics: Caffeine is a powerful central nervous stimulant. Caffeine excites all portions of the central nervous system. Caffeine stimulates all portions of the cortex, but its main action is on the psychic and sensory functions. It produces a more rapid and clearer flow of thought and allays drowsiness and fatigue. After taking caffeine, one is capable of more sustained intellectual effort and a more perfect association of ideas. There is also a keener appreciation of sensory stimuli.

Very interesting. But why take

NoDoz when you can get caffeine in a cup of coffee?

Very simple. You take NoDoz all at once instead of sipping coffee for 10 minutes. And if you take two NoDoz tablets, the recommended dosage, you get twice the caffeine in a cup of coffee.

Two tablets— isn't that likely to be habit forming? Definitely not. NoDoz is completely non-habit forming.

Which means it's safe to take whether you're cramming at night. Or about to walk into an 8 o'clock class. Or driving somewhere (even though you're rested) and the monotony of the road makes you drowsy.

One last thing you should know about NoDoz. It now comes in two forms. Those familiar white pills you take with water. And a chewable tablet called NoDoz Action Aids®. It tastes like a chocolate mint, but it does everything regular NoDoz does.

And if you've managed to stay awake this long, you know that's quite a lot.

Power And Responsibility

In the continuing confrontation between students and administrations in schools across the land, two phrases keep popping up. "Student Power" is heard from the students, while "Student Responsibility" emanates from administrators.

No phrase may be adequately judged except in a particular context, so let's look at the way the particular phrases are used.

"We want more Student Power."

"We" in this particular case refers to any student group which feels that its powers to decide its own course are being unduly restricted by an administrative rule or interpretation of a rule.

This is a perfectly understandable feeling. In matters which pertain to student activities, the spending of student money or the making of decisions which have immediate bearing on student life, the students should have a viable voice.

To make such a voice worthwhile, students must have access to all available information on a particular issue. They should be invited to pertinent committee meetings and given necessary background materials.

In order to have a worthwhile voice, students should be informed. But, let's look at that other phrase.

"Ah yes, we're all for student power, but we must also have Student Responsibility."

"We" in this phrase refers to administrators who feel they make up the corporate entity called the University. This group feels that it has certain projects which must necessarily be done a certain way, and that the judgment of "the administration" is somehow correct by Divine Certainty.

This is also a perfectly understandable feeling. Administrators attend great numbers of committee meetings, they make multi-copied reports, amass great amounts of facts, and file virtually everything in the world. They feel they KNOW what a particular issue is about and that students do not. Indeed, the feeling is that students lack the capacity to plan ahead for the betterment of the University.

Unfortunately, to students the phrase "Student Responsibility" too often means merely the right to agree with administrative plans. When agreement is not forthcoming, student objections can be and are largely ignored.

For the two concepts "Student Power" and "Student Responsibility" to have real meaning, some very straightforward cooperation between the two groups is necessary. Students must be willing to look at all aspects of a question, but administrators must be willing to show students all sides.

That's where the problem generally is.

Sure, we have students sitting on committees here at NDSU, but even they do not always get information sufficient to make an intelligent decision.

What they do get is a presentation — a carefully polished delivery of a proposal which has already been decided upon. Student acceptance is merely a formality, one which is accepted as a matter of course.

Now, we realize that presentations are the way things are done. (People are often congratulated on the excellence of their presentation.) But it should be realized by everyone that a presentation is not a substitute for information freely granted.

At such times, it is necessary that administrators treat students as equals and that students act as though they expect such treatment. If not, they should point out that a paternalistic approach will get administrators nowhere.

Twice already this year students have found themselves in a situation where the paternal attitude in a presentation has resulted in problems and misunderstandings which could easily have been avoided.

In both cases, it would appear the administrations efforts were to provide a token, a facade which might be pointed to and labeled "student participation in important decisions." Just how shallow the token was may be seen by a comment made by one administrator. "Perhaps we should just have gone ahead and not told the students anything about it."

That attitude is not going to work. If student power is to be a reality, then it is up to students to demand the tools — information and sincerity — which ultimately make student responsibility a credible force.

Such an attitude on the part of both the administration and students would be a tremendous start toward genuine cooperation.

Criticism Needed in Today's World

To The Editor:

It's unfortunate that most of you didn't see the short news film at the end of the six and ten o'clock news casts Friday, September 2 on Channel 6. The film showed the new married student housing and along with the film, the ticky-tacky song was played. "Little boxes on the hillside, and they all look just the same; And the people in the houses all went to the university, Where they're all put into boxes and they all come out the same And they're doctors and law and business executives And they're all made out of the tacky and they look just same.

And they all play on the course and drink their martini dry And they all have three children and the children go to school And the children go to summer camp and then to the university . . ."

This is an excellent capsule description of one of the major faults in our colleges today. Some of the activists have been too busy to tell us the same thing. If we weren't for all of us apathetic people who see things we don't like and never openly criticize them, maybe there would be chaos on our campuses.

What is the price of honest criticism? For most of us, it is fear that those who are criticizing or to whom the criticism is brought will think, "How do you?" After all, most of us are afraid to come out of the machine shop looking like a rose.

Most of us appreciate the opportunity we have in this country to receive a college education but anyone who believes an education can have a meaningful existence without change is a fool. And anyone of us who thinks change (for the better) is something to take place without some work and loss of brownie points will continue to see it change by force, as it is on many college campuses.

Molm Calls For Moratorium

Ending the war in Viet Nam is the most important task facing America. It does not make sense to waste money on destruction abroad that is needed for social construction at home. It does not make sense to wage a war that inhibits public hope and infects the quality of American life.

Over the last few years, millions of Americans have campaigned, protested and demonstrated against the war, yet it continues.

Thus it is necessary for all those who desire peace to become active again and help bring pressure to bear on the present administration. President Nixon has repeatedly said he will not yield to student pressure. Yet this is contradictory to his actions of bringing home troops to stave off possible student unrest.

This past week an administration official called for student demonstrations to cease because they were hampering peace negotiations. This is asking us to give up the First Amendment. I believe it is a person's right and duty to speak out. This is democracy, God help us, America.

In conjunction with a national movement conducted by the Viet Nam Moratorium Committee, I am calling for a war moratorium at NDSU on Wednesday, Oct. 15. I am asking students to miss their classes and faculty members to excuse their students on this day. I urge you to partake in the activities to be planned for that day in the Union Ballroom and that night in Island Park.

This strike is being co-ordinated also with MSC and Concordia. If Nixon's "business as usual" continues there will be another strike in November, hopefully including more people from the community.

Let's all get together now!!!

Death, Destruction, Demonstration and Desire

by Duane Lillehaug

Death, destruction, demonstration and desire mark the films presented Thursday evening by the NDSU chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Hanoi, Mertes 13 is pagodas, the Great Buddha statue, heros, gods, adventurers who have fought for years in Viet Nam and other Eastern culture figures flash across the screen.

And then Lyndon Johnson. He is born (a calf-pulling sequence illustrates). He becomes a man. Faces — the faces of laughter, pain, thought, anger and agony. And then he's president Scenes flash, a black and white kaleidoscope. American riots become Viet Nam (North) and the bombings, then back to the cops beating demonstrators in America, and then back to Viet Nam.

There is blood all over, but fortunately the films are black and white, so you don't get too upset and sick, unless you think.

More demonstrations, beatings, draggings, blood. And then there is LBJ again, riding in his car, all splattered with eggs and other stuff, and the secret service too.

Shift again. Clocks. Incessant ticking. Tick-tick-tick-tick-tick: Time moves on, constantly, moves and moves and moves. Tick-tick-tick-tick.

Shift again. Back to Hanoi. This time it's not the shrines, the gods and the adventurers, but the people. Those in their boats, their shops and their factories.

Background music is slow, peaceful, like the river the fishing boats are on. The people are paddling, wearing hats, some are helmets and others sun hats. Their feet are bare.

The fish are in, all in one big pile, all alive. They squirm, then die.

Cooks are working with the fish now in a cafe. Very loud, but there is no sound, only music. A buffet service is set, the men and women are eating and drinking, but there is little for all. The children eat, too.

Desire. They work, long hours of hard hand work in the rice paddies. Women, children and men work, with water buffalo to pull simple plows through the mud. The men have guns on their backs.

Airplanes — American — Run — Bombs — Run-Run — Hide . . . The soldiers unsling their weapons and take positions around the paddy to shoot back, but they only have small arms.

Planes strafe, drop bombs, leave. The people go back to look for dead and wounded. Some of the animals are dead too.

Another section of North Viet Nam. Here the women are also working, only this time they are building a foxhole of dirt and sod along a road.

"We transform our hatred into energy" proclaims the slogan. And again women work, this time in many areas, very fast.

Then it's the city. Probably Hanoi, but it could be any city in North Viet Nam.

Bicycles are everywhere. The only trucks are those used by the army, everyone else either walks or uses a bike.

It is the hustle and bustle of any city of comparable size, but you don't see any vehicles in the streets, just military ones.

People work. There is a weaving shop, and a school, and a glass factory, and even an electric sewing machine.

"Hatred into energy" the Spanish slogan says.

They are also laying a new railroad, all by hand. They work fast, they run and they dig.

"Hatred into energy. Hatred into energy."

Night comes, and people still work. This time by light from a small spotlight. The work is outside the city, again for the military, but inside the city a man is sweeping his store.

Again the city, but this time it's children, and they line up for half of a popsicle. They eat, and smile.

Trucks, bicycles, walkers and shoppers set the scene of a quiet, peaceful city, but camouflage on the truck and ready-made fox holes lining streets dispel that attitude immediately. These fox holes have ready-made covers.

Pictures . . . of children, tourists, street scenes and posters . . . and, then . . . BOMBS.

Fighting breaks out, planes drop more bombs and people scurry for shelter. Some use the street bomb shelters, while others run for shops and other protection.

Smoke fills the sky and more bombs drop, and more anti-aircraft fire is put out, and fires break out.

The children are curious, and watch the sky, but adults who are looking at the sky only look as if they are asking why?

A surface-to-air missile leaves its launcher, and an American plane is downed. Then silence.

Destruction and fire and death and sorrow fill the void. People emerge from shelter and begin to search through the wreckage, and find nothing.

American POW's parade through Hanoi. While the prisoners march, a song plays. It comes from recent American hits. "They're coming to take me away, ha, ha, hee, hee, to the funny farm, ha, ha."

Jeers — prisoners — death — bombs — dog tags — faces — people — helmets — North Vietnamese soldiers — pagodtas — Great Buddha — paintings — map of Tonkin.

The film ends much as it begins. The shrines are there, with one major change, many statues are destroyed. People cry and the dead are honored.

Wilmington. "Know your enemy" is the slogan of a movie documenting the April, 1968, riots in Wilmington, Del., the film also examines black relations with the DuPont family interest.

Streets are filled with jeeps, jeeps going to the ghetto where rioting and looting is taking place.

"Deleware is the private domain of the repression-minded DuPont family and their industry," the narrator said.

People who had been deprived of their jobs or who had been expelled from schools were interviewed.

"I lost my job teaching because I was involved in political activity on campus," said Al Myers, associate professor of psychology at the University of Deleware.

Members of all the school boards and governing bodies in the state of Deleware were called "DuPont liberals," those who were made and supported by the DuPont interests in Delaware.

The scene shifts. Negroes, police hauling them away. Then a college, and a welfare demonstration. Women are being pushed and carted away. The police are clearing a stairway.

"The DuPont family is here, and they want to remove all disruptive elements," the narration continued. "They want to produce docile citizens."

Angry blacks call DuPont interests repression. They call for an end to toleration, and accuse police of all out freedom to harass and arrest members of their organizations at any time.

For ten months, the Delaware National Guard was stationed in the city of Wilmington, and were called by some the symbol of DuPont repression.

Another demonstration. This time there is more violence and some blood.

The Guard leaves. "This is corporate liberalism working only in their best interests again. The DuPonts are still the rulers, and we will not give up."

from the OTHER SIDE

by Michael J. Olsen

Dear Fern,

I wrote a poem today. Thought you might like to know. It's not really to you personally, but I might send it anyway. It's kinda to mankind. You remember him from grade school, don't you?

Anyway, that's what I've been doing lately — writing poems to mankind. It really isn't a full time job or anything; it's just something to do while I'm thinking of it. I've been thinking about it a lot lately. I was thinking about it in the Bison Grill the other day. Well, you know how I am when something is bugging me. I just up and dashed off a poem to mankind on the back of a napkin. If I remember correctly, it was a poem about chicken noodle soup.

Knowing you, Fern, you're probably thinking that there really isn't anything too all-fired vital about writing a poem to mankind (or anyone else) about chicken noodle soup. When you stop to think of it Fern, how many people stop to think about chicken noodle soup? Not very damn many I'll bet you! You may ask, "What is so important about chicken noodle soup?" If you answered, yes, you'd be right. That's the whole point. It's like wishing on stars at the age forty-six.

If you didn't quite follow that, I'll try to clarify. I don't promise anything, though. For instance: When was the last time you wrote a poem? Be honest, Fern. I know for a fact that it was a lot more recent than you think. I also know that you are one of the chosen many who claim they can't write poetry. To be quite honest with you, my poem about chicken noodle soup stunk. So did the soup, but that's another matter. To get back to the point, (whatever it may be at the present moment) I heard a piece of your poetry in August when I last saw you. We were passing a garden and you said, "God, that's a lovely flower!" I'll give you some examples of more poems you've recited to me: "Boy, it sure is nice out today." "Smell that fresh air." "Look at those weird clouds." "I love you." The last one is by far the nicest poem you've ever written.

You see Fern, you notice things. You are aware of things that go around you. Nothing is too small to be important to you. A lot of people have your gift of poetry, or could develop it with little or no effort. Do me a favor and work on it O.K.?

Oh Yes, I almost forgot. The poem I wrote to mankind today was about flash light batteries. It was really stinko. Guess I won't send it after all.

Your ex-boyfriend,

Michael

P.S. Please don't show this letter to anyone. I wouldn't want just ANYBODY to know I write poems about flash light batteries.

Our MOVIES are designed to fill you in a little better about that terrible state America is in today!

Students Confused on Non-residency

Every year a substantial number of students are faced with the often confusing question of who qualifies for resident tuition and who must pay the out-of-state rates.

Residency has several different legal definitions in North Dakota. Codes governing voting, motor vehicles, fish and game licenses, and state taxes all establish particular residency requirements.

The definition of a nonresident student for tuition purposes, and allowed exceptions to that definition are included in Section 15-10-19 of the 1967 Supplement to the North Dakota Century Code (see col. 5, this page).

"North Dakota residency law for tuition purposes is based on act and intent," explains registrar Burt Brandrud. "It's very straightforward in most instances, but many students just aren't aware of the content of the law. I'm always glad to try to help any students with special problems or questions about the law."

During the 1969 Legislative session, the code was amended by the addition of the final paragraph. This allows students under 21 whose families have lived in North Dakota less than 12 months to qualify for resident tuition rates by filing a form indicating the intent of their families to live in North Dakota for several years.

In the case of NDSU, this requirement can be satisfied by completing a special University form obtained from Registrar Brandrud. The parent or guardian signs a statement of intent and has it notarized.

The County Treasurer and the County or City Auditor then indicate whether the parent has acquired real estate in North Dakota, has obtained North Dakota automobile license plates and driver's license, has paid taxes to the state or its subdivisions or appears on city or county tax roles, and is a recipient of city or county utility services, e.g. water, sewage, garbage.

A number of interesting problems arise under the law as it now stands. For example, if two students under 21 marry, their residence is still determined by their parents' residence. If either set of parents lives in North Dakota, the couple is considered to reside in North Dakota.

On the other hand, when parents live elsewhere, residency for the purpose of tuition cannot be established by a student until his twenty-second birthday, since the 12 month waiting period is considered to begin only after the twenty-first birthday.

"Even then the student must furnish proof that he has moved to North Dakota lock, stock and barrel and that he isn't here just to attend school," says Brandrud.

Maintaining residency is often as much of a problem as establishing residency. For example, when a student over 21 drops out of school to work and leaves the state, he may seek a higher paying job in Minneapolis or Chicago.

If he plans to return to North Dakota and finish his education and does not wish to lose his status as a resident, his wisest course of action is to inform the registrar of his intent before leaving.

"As long as the student follows his intent, and always acts as a North Dakota citizen, it is possible to maintain his residency indefinitely. That means he must vote as a North Dakotan, and should consider himself a North Dakotan in all discretionary decisions, such as the purchase of hunting or fishing licenses," says Brandrud.

Many cases do not fall neatly into one of the defined situations. Whenever there is confusion or doubt, the student would do well to consult the registrar. As things stand now, he makes all rulings on residency for SU students.

"I'm no lawyer, and if any student disagrees with my interpretation, I will be more than happy to refer his case to the State Attorney General for a ruling. We are trying to qualify every student who can meet this law."

Resident Student Status: The Letter of The Law

Section 15-10-19 of the 1967 Supplement to the North Dakota Century Code, NON-RESIDENT STUDENT FOR TUITION PURPOSES DEFINED - EXCEPTIONS.

A non-resident student is defined as follows:

1 A student under 21 whose parents, custodial parent or guardian resides in another state, a territory, or a foreign country, or whose parents, custodial parent or guardian have resided within this state for a period of less than 12 months immediately prior to the date of his registration;

2. A student 21 or over who resides outside of this state; or

3. A student 21 or over who has been a resident of this state for a period of less than 12 months immediately prior to the date of registration; provided that a student, whose parents, custodial parent or guardian do not reside in this state, shall not be deemed to have initiated residence in this state until reaching the age of 21 and provided further that attendance at an institution of higher learning within the state shall not alone be sufficient to qualify for residence in this state.

Military personnel assigned to a military installation in this state and their dependents, dependents of instructors who live in this state and teach in any institution of higher learning in this state, and the spouse of a resident of this state, are excluded from the foregoing provisions, and shall be regarded as residents of this state for the purposes of tuition, whether such dependents are over or under 21.

Any student who may otherwise be classified as a non-resident under this section, but who is a citizen of the United States may, if his parents, custodial parent or guardian live in this state, provide to the institution of higher learning which he plans to attend a statement signed by the county treasurer and the city auditor, his parents, custodial parent or guardian live in a city, or by the county auditor if they reside outside of a city, showing proof of their intent to establish residence in this state for a period of years. Such statements shall entitle the student to be regarded as a resident of this state for purposes of tuition if there is no substantial evidence to the contrary.

Over 350 Attend Journalism Session

Over 350 high school journalists from Fargo-Moorhead and the surrounding area heard Jerry Ruff, Moorhead editor of The Forum, call fair play and good taste the basis of journalistic ethics. The occasion was an NDSU Board Student Publication's sponsorship workshop last Wednesday.

Ruff said that until recent years newspapers had always "cleaned up" the language when printing interviews where salty words were used.

"The present trend is to 'tell like it is,'" he continued. "Now the local college press has entered into the practice of 'telling it like it is.'"

Moorhead State's student newspaper, the Mystic, was used as an example. Last spring the Mystic was suspended by President Dill and is now publishing independently under the name Mystic.

"Now they (Mystic staff) must realize that they are legally liable for what they are saying," said Ruff. "They will clean themselves up because they are liable; they can be sued."

Ruff cautioned journalists to guard against slanting the news and to also guard against poor taste and invasion of privacy.

"There is freedom of the press," he concluded, "but the freedom is not the freedom to hurt or intimidate."

"A reporter should comfort the afflicted, and afflict the comfortable," said Rod Deckert, Forum staff writer. He addressed a session on feature writing involving high school newspaper staffs.

Censorship in the high school press was touched on, but there was little response from the school participants.

Replies to queries about censorship indicated a lack of desire on the part of students to cover certain topics rather than accept censorship by administrations.

"Underground newspapers are not good journalism in the traditional sense," said Deckert in reply to a question, "but any publication is good."

"I'm not against them because they present a controversial point of view but they sometimes fail to inform their purpose."

Campus Organizations Formulate Plans And Activities

PHI ETA SIGMA

Phi Eta Sigma, National Honorary Scholastic Fraternity, is composed of freshmen men who qualified for membership by obtaining a 3.5 average fall quarter of their freshman year, or a cumulative average of 3.5 during winter or spring quarter.

The local chapter, founded in 1964, feels that it has a function on campus beyond recognizing scholarship and have therefore taken up a service project for the students of NDSU.

They have established a "One-to-One Tutoring Service" for freshmen men on campus who could benefit from advice or explanation of basic freshman courses in addition to that provided by instructors. Sophomore and junior members will act as tutors.

The service will cover the following basic freshman courses: chemistry, math, history, English and biology. Other freshman courses will be considered.

The procedure for obtaining the service is as follows:

1. Students fill out a request slip at the secretary's desk in the Office of the Union Director.
2. The request will be passed on to a tutor.
3. The tutor will call the student and arrange a meeting convenient to both, to provide the FREE assistance.

If there are any questions call Paul Denning (232-4265) or Dick Kubischta (232-6738).

Tri-College Committee Works Toward Public Awareness

Students from NDSU, MSC and Concordia may once again attend classes at schools other than where they are enrolled.

The Tri-College University Committee has been working out the details for the Philosophy program, the reciprocity agreements between the three schools, and new programs that may be offered.

Al Anderson, the coordinating provost, said that he has been greatly encouraged by the awareness and the seriousness which which the participating colleges and university have approached the problems of organizing and running a tri-college program.

He feels that the relationships between the different faculties, administrations and students are strengthening. However, he also feels that the general public needs to become more aware of what the program is accomplishing and the goals that have been set.

In an attempt to alleviate this problem, Anderson traveled to Bismarck Oct. 2 and gave a brief presentation of the tri-college arrangement and proposals to the State Legislature. This was followed by a question and answer period.

Anderson also gave a progress report on the tri-college philosophy program. The program has an endowment from the National Endowment for the Humanities. This endowment enables the three philosophy departments to cooperate in the instruction of ethics, philosophy of religion and aesthetics. Each school offers its own course and uses its own texts. However, the calendar year scheduling is in common. This enables the schools to share in the expertise of local and national figures and extra-lectural experiences.

Anderson said that two of the goals of this pilot program were to offer high quality exposure to the students and to test the extent to which cooperative teaching can be carried out. He feels that the program has exceptional promise. He also stressed the need for accurate assessments of the program for the purposes of expanding and receiving grants from the government.

Bud Sinner reported that the reciprocity agreement developed by Bill Truman, Burt Brandrud and Dorian Olson was not presented to the Board of Higher Education. Dick Hawk, Chairman of the Minnesota Board of Education and Kenneth Raschke, Chairman of the North Dakota Board of Higher Education were working on a total state reciprocity agreement that would make the tri-college university agreement much easier to facilitate.

The Master of Science in Business program has been delayed of the North Dakota Board of Higher Education were working because the State Boards of Education have placed a moratorium on new programs for this year. The program will be worked on and presented at a later date.

The next meeting of the Tri-College University committee will be on Nov. 5, at Moorhead State College.

Tau Beta Pi To Offer Slide Rule

The NDSU chapter of Tau Beta Pi will offer a slide rule course to interested students during winter quarter. The course will be one hour per week for ten weeks.

The only charge will be for a small instructional book.

The course is being offered to replace a similar course that was discontinued by the math department.

The Tau Beta Pi chapter is offering the course as service project to the University because they feel that many students could benefit a great deal by taking the course.

Tau Beta Pi is an honorary engineering fraternity composed of members from all branches of engineering. One of the purposes of the fraternity is to provide useful service projects for the organization and the University.

The course will be taught by student members of Tau Beta Pi. Quizzes and self-tests will be given to help the student practice using the slide rule and to gauge his or her own progress. There will be no academic credit or grades given. The course will be self-taught, but Tau Beta Pi feels the course work and learning the material in a classroom environment. The course will be open to any student in the University.

Students interested in the course should watch next week's Spectrum for a coupon they can complete and express their interest in the course. Further announcements will be made as arrangements are finalized and the sections and times are decided.

The lampyridae beetle family. Delight of small boys. Biological light bulb. And prime source of raw material for another Du Pont innovation.

Luciferase, an enzymatic protein with intriguing properties, obtainable only from fireflies. Luciferin, an organic molecule also found in fireflies, but synthesizable. Adenosine triphosphate (ATP), a common energy-yielding substance found in all living cells.

Those are the three main ingredients in lampyridae's love light. And because ATP is common to all living cells, university researchers discovered they could produce an artificial glow by mixing luciferin and luciferase wherever life is present.

Noting that phenomenon, Du Pont scientists and engineers went on to develop it into a practical analytical system. Correlating the intensity of the artificial "glow" with the amount of ATP present in bacteria, they designed a means of measuring the reaction.

The result is the luminescence biometer—the first really basic improvement in bacteria-counting methods since the time of Louis Pasteur. Rather than waiting days for a culture to demonstrate growth density, a doctor or technician can now get a digital readout of bacteria concentration in a matter of minutes.

Other potentially lifesaving uses for the biometer are being suggested every day—such as diagnosing metabolic rates, enzyme deficiencies and nerve damage.

Innovation—applying the known to discover the unknown, inventing new materials and putting them to work, using research and engineering to create the ideas and products of the future—this is the venture Du Pont people are engaged in.

Finance Ups Salaries For Student Officers

The finance commission re-approved salary changes for a number of student senate and Student Activity Board officers at their meeting Tuesday, Sept. 30.

Salary changes are as follows: student senate president from $200 to $250 per quarter; student senate vice president, $125 to $200; student senate secretary, $75 to $100; president of SAB $75 to $100, vice-president, 0 to $75; SAB treasurer, 0 to $50; SAB secretary, 0 to $40.

A request by architectural students for $1500 for an inspection trip to Mexico City was turned down because it was limited to juniors and seniors in the architecture department. The trip is a requirement for course study, and students receive credit for it. Therefore the commission felt the University should not have to pay for the trip.

Approved were $200 for the Lutheran Student Association for a retreat; $100 requested by the American Indian Association, composed of Indian students on campus, for a festival in November; and $136 for the Chess Club tournament.

Priest Fired For Panther Program

SAN FRANCISCO — (CPS) — Catholic Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken fired the Rev. Eugene J. Boyle from his teaching post at St. Patrick's College seminary this week in apparent reprimand for Father Boyle's decision to allow the Black Panthers use of his church for the "Breakfast for Children" Program.

An immediate reaction was evoked from The Association of Priests, a revisionary group of 140 active area priests, who sent a letter to the Archbishop protesting the "injustice of the Father's summary dismissal."

"We see here a genuine injustice" and a "serious threat to academic freedom," the letter said. It pointed out the fact that Father Boyle was recently appointed director of the Archdiocesan Commission for Social Justice and demanded a prompt reinstatement of Father Boyle to his post as professor of Social Ethics at St. Patrick's.

The Archbishop has left on a short vacation, but his press secretary told CPS "There has been to my knowledge no reconsideration of the decision and I don't imagine the Archbishop will reply to the letter (from the 140 priests) publically."

In Draft Cases

Denial of Attorney Ruled Invalid

San Francisco (CPS) — The San Francisco Federal court has handed down a draft decision that could significantly disturb draft procedure while freeing a number of present 1-Aers from induction.

Judge Robert I. Peckham ruled this week the universally enforced regulation which prevents draft registrants from being accompanied by legal counsel when summoned before a local draft board is invalid and "constitutionally suspect."

Judge Peckham was the magistrate who ruled earlier this year that members of draft boards must be residents of the area from which they send men.

Men who have appeared before draft boards, usually on summons for being delinquent in registration, and who have stood mute or requested the assistance of an attorney or counsel have normally been held in contempt and classified 1-A.

Their classifications are now invalid and most draft boards will probably ignore them rather than submitting to the legal rigmarole necessary to change the person's classification or validate the 1-A status.

Judge Peckham ruled that only Congress can refuse the right of counsel for any person being interrogated by federal institutions and that no legal delegation of this power had ever been granted the President (and through him local draft boards). Besides, Peckham continued, such a delegation would be "constitutionally suspect."

The decision affects all draft boards under jurisdiction of the government unless challenged or overturned in a higher court.

A Review

Poetry North Enlightening, Oppressing

by Paul Erling

"I hope you resist; and I hope you know what to resist. Remember that this system is oppressing the individual!"

With this comment Black-Indian poet Donald Govan began and ended his Poetry North presentation here last week. During the course of his performance, however, he failed to make clear exactly which system was the greatest oppression.

Perhaps it was the system Govan used to present the musical portion of the show. His technique consisted of whacking an untuned guitar, maneuvering his voice within a few steps of the melody, and destroying any rhythm inherent in the music by stomping his heel (in a constant but unstable beat). In this manner he performed songs by Bo Diddley and Bob Dylan as well as his own. For a field holler titled "Black Betty" the "singer" dispensed with his guitar and footwork. This song of the southern workers was clearly the most musical moment of the evening.

Perhaps the Minot-born poet hoped we would resist the system he used to read poetry. First he would shuffle through sheafs of loose papers and unmarked books to find the next example. Too often he broke up the things he wrote with burps (probably caused by the things he drank during the show). And after the last verse of most of the poems he found it necessary to add tritely, "End of poem." (For variety's sake at least, he might have held up a card with "finish" printed on it.)

The poetry (by Carolyn Rogers, Sonia Sanchez, and others as well as by Govan) was written from a Black point of view and often exhibited a passionate social consciousness. "Black poetry is designed to undo and unseat the many myths of the world," Govan explained. "Every Black person is involved in it to some extent. It is unique."

Black poetry has been proclaimed as a revolt from the "essentially anti-human cultural sensibility" of the "capitalist imperialist Euro-Americans" by Clarence Major, (who included Govan's work in his anthology "The New Black Poetry" published this year in New York by International Publishers).

Yet Govan's subjects had a familiar ring. Although he did not uniquely compare the USA to a psychotic white woman, his other insights into Black growing-up and love were filled with standard white capitalist middle-class associations as Orpheus, Prometheus, flowers, birds, and the metamorphosis of insects.

The Poetry North program has its worthwhile moments, though Govan did a lot of talking about his background for the poems he read, and these glimpses of the varied experiences were particularly interesting. "Some people feel that I got into trouble with the law," the 20-year-old poet said, "but actually the law got into trouble without me." He performed a number of works written during his two-year stay in prison. Of these, a description of "Rufus" — a homosexual prison guard — was the most polished and comprehensible.

Govan's non-prison experience of the Midwest has also been unlike that of his predominant white audience. He commented that if one would stop shaving and cutting his hair, and travel across the state, a new side of North Dakota would become apparent — a side of hostility and distrust similar to that he has for racial minorities.

Despite the questionable value of parts of Govan's message, the first Poetry North session was still a broadening and enlightening experience for all those present. Hopefully, future visiting poets will be able to continue this sort of communication with fewer "oppressing" details.

Relations Lab Reviving Under New Leadership

Three years ago, Ray Kril, a student activities coordinator, expressed growing concern for the lack of leadership skills among individuals and prominent groups on our campus. Mr. Kril sought help through the National Training Laboratory (NTL) where he attended a human relations lab, developed awareness skills dealing with leadership training. Kril's successor was Dr. Gary Boyles who left the organization leaderless last spring to function as a committee of enthusiastic students.

Today the Organization for Leadership Awareness Development (LAD) has survived a multitude of complaints and threats. At present a voluntary lab is to include resident assistants (RAs) at Children's Village Oct. 24, 25, 26. According to David Tangen, chairman of LAD, "we hope to develop leadership traits and how to use them. We do not wish to create new people, but to better the original."

Throughout the lab, the RAs will be placed in unstructured situations to eventually function as a group. After attaining group status, the individual can demonstrate techniques of communication and general leadership. Here the groups will learn to understand motivations and grasp how people express themselves emotionally as a particular person.

After working in these situations themselves, diagnostic groups will look at how and why as individuals the resident assistants employ certain techniques previously learned.

An evaluation to determine the effectiveness of the labs will be first conducted by the RAs themselves, the resident heads, counselling and guidance department, LAD, and student senate.

Tangen then explained, "The RAs were chosen because they are supposedly emotionally balanced, well-screen individuals who should have the stability to participate in these labs.

They may become aware of the problems of younger students or gain the confidence necessary to cope with certain situations demanded of them. In the event of these labs, the follow-up is perhaps more important than the training."

A good cry cleanses the soul

After all is shed and done, your soul may be saved . . . but your contacts need help. They need Lensine. Lensine is the one contact lens solution for complete contact care . . . preparing, cleansing, and soaking.

There was a time when you needed two or more different lens solutions to properly prepare and maintain your contacts. No more. Lensine, from The Murine Company, makes caring for contact lenses as convenient as wearing them.

Just a drop or two of Lensine coats and lubricates your lens. This allows the lens to float more freely in the eye, reducing tearful irritation. Why? Because Lensine is a compatible, "isotonic" solution, very much like your eye's natural fluids.

Cleaning your contacts with Lensine retards the build-up of foreign deposits on the lenses. And soaking your contacts in Lensine between wearing periods assures you of proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine.

It has been demonstrated the improper storage between wearings permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and in some cases can endanger your vision. Bacteria cannot grow in Lensine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

Senator Proposes Rock-Fest at Washington Monument

The American tribal rock scene of Woodstock, Atlantic City and the West Coast will go straight, with a purpose if Congressman Jack McDonald (R-Mich) can gain support for a proposed rock festival on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

The Republican Congressman has asked President Nixon to support a nationwide highway safety campaign among American youth, kicked off with the Washington Monument rock fest.

A white House conference on highway safety has also been proposed by McDonald. He launched the campaign to bring home to the nation the seriousness of a situation which claims more than 50,000 lives annually.

McDonald said he had urged presidential backing for a Washington rock festival in order to give students a feeling of involvement in a crusade they could carry back to their campus.

Proposals for the festival and the White House conference were made during a talk before the Road Gang at the National Press Club. The Road Gang is a Washington group whose members represent various industries concerned with highways and highway safety.

A member of subcommittees of the House Public Works Committee dealing with highway safety, McDonald noted that American youth are responsible for an alarming portion of the nation's traffic accidents.

He said that because youth feels left out of much of American life, a rock festival followed up by campus highway safety demonstrations would give them a feeling of involvement.

Many of the nation's youth are "impatient," he said, "because our government and institutions do not respond more rapidly to correct inequities."

The rock festival would give them an opportunity to "make a direct and positive contribution toward saving the lives of their fellow countrymen. I would like to challenge the youth of this nation to take an affirmative position and demonstrate for the cause of highway safety."

American youth are dying at a slower rate in Viet Nam than on the nation's highways, McDonald told the group.

Between Jan. 1, 1961, and August of this year, 30,859 American troops between 17 and 24 were killed in Viet Nam. In the same period, 103,707 Americans in the same age group died as a result of automobile crashes. About 70 per cent were males.

The Congressman chided congressional critics of the automobile industry's safety record. He said the "evidence is conclusive that vehicle design and construction are the cause of a very small percentage of crashes and that the driver and certain roadway conditions are to blame for the overwhelming majority of vehicle crashes."

State highway standards, he noted, "are primarily aimed at the driver and the roadway and these are the areas of major concern to the many privately supported traffic safety organizations operating around the country."

McDonald predicted that highway legislation dealing with construction following completion of the interstate system will become more involved and more controversial.

He said urban transportation and relocation, safety and other issues "will be injected into the legislative debate to a degree never before experienced when the next program is submitted

"Non-students" Miss Cultural Boat On SAB Film Festival

by Paul Erling

People who go to classes at SU have been avoiding valuable programs en masse for years. But it was particularly sad that so many of them missed all of the First Annual Film Festival, which was held in the Union last weekend. These non-students must have incorrectly assumed that culture (such as the festival) is a vague, capitalized concept which only intellectuals and fine-arts connoisseurs can comprehend. The real students at NDSU, however, invested a dollar fifty and were treated to two fine programs of films. These people gained a concise addition to their understanding and experience of the objects and actions surrounding them — the culture of our time.

The '69 Festival focused upon two areas of contemporary cinema. The Friday program of eight "short-subject" American underground movies had the more immediate appeal.

In "Oh Dem Watermelons" film-maker Robert Nelson dared to use six melons as the protagonists of a loose half-hour plot. The result was a fresh, real comedy full of surprising visual contradictions.

Parts of a single-reel anthology by Bruce Conner (aptly titled "Six Films") were also of special quality. Conner clearly commands the unique technical possibilities of motion-photography as an art medium. Using this knowledge he can transform a strip-tease or the focus-numbers of a movie lead into valuable visual impressions. (Some critics even contend that striptease is a valuable visual impression without transformation.) Conner's character must include rampant egomania, which wasted two minutes of his viewers time as they watched "by BRUCE CONNER" flash unchanged on the screen.

Fascinating and sophisticated use of color, line, and form helped explain the fantasy and wonder in a child's midnight adventure, "Moonbird." Among this animated cartoon's many formal recognitions is the Academy Award for Best Short Subject of the year.

All of the festival films had one aspect in common: unlike Hollywood's "overground" works — produced by a systemized team — each of these underground and European films was an individualistic personal expression.

The general freshness and content of the work represented also overcame the need for a mere smooth surface, or a glossy Hollywood color reproduction.

Average non-students might have balked at the mono-chromaticism ("Well goll, Floyd, even TV has color") but in the case of a Japanese film called "Rite of Love and Death" this group would not have missed Technicolor. The full-view blood-and-gore realism of a traditional male Hari-Kari was almost unbearable.

Grey, in fact, was an integral element of the First Saturday full-length flim, "L'avventura" by Michelangelo Antonioni. Nothing in the story could really be completely bright, dark, or in focus as the director probed into the quasi-reality of Italy's idle rich. (The slow-moving unity of the film tended to be lost, though, in the great discomfort caused by two hours on a ballroom chair.)

"Jules & Jim, the second Saturday film, was a bright contrast to the Antonioni work. In moods varying from blissful joy to stillness and reflection, Francois Truffaut showed the relationship of two close friends as it was defined and illuminated by a woman they both loved.

The last festival film, Ingar Bergman's symbolic "The Silence," was haunting and confusing. This was a fitting close for the two film programs, as it emphasized that each film-viewer must single out those interpretations within cinema that are most significant for him.

Hopefully the box-office failure of this first festival will not discourage next year's SAB film committee enough to postpone its sequel indefinitely.

Perhaps more of the people who go to classes at SU will discover the Second Annual Film Festival. For them, a whole new world of experience is still waiting to be found.

Holm Secures Senate Seat

The new senator from North High Rise is Robert Holm, a sophomore from Valley City. He fills the seat vacated by Larry Weiland, who has transferred to UND.

Among Holm's activities at NDSU are Model United Nations, Faculty Senate, dormitory government, college Young Republicans and Freshman Pilot program.

Holm received 130 votes, followed by John Bodensteiner with 59, Doug Loberg with 33, plus assorted write-ins. Most of the campaigning was done by personal interviews with the men in the dorm.

Holm supports the idea of allowing sophomore women to live off campus as a solution to the temporary housing problem. He also believes student senators should not be paid.

AN AFTERNOON IN THE BISON GRILL OR:
HOW I LEARNED TO STOP BOMBING AND LOVE THE WORRY

Hi, Fred.
Howdy, Jack, what's new?
Listen, Fred, I know this neat girl that needs a date Friday night. Are you interested?
Sounds expensive, Jack. I'd have to meet her first. I don't spend that kind of money on strangers. Is she really neat, nifty and groovy?
Is she neat? She was ninth runner-up in the Miss Grassy Butte beauty contest last year.
I didn't even know there were nine girls in Grassy Butte.
There are more than nine — eleven, to be exact.
Why was she only ninth? Answer that.
Hey Fred! There's something moving around in my chili!
Well pick it out before it drowns. Hey, you're trying to change the subject! Tell me why she was only ninth.
All right, I might as well. She lost the bathing suit competition because her Lady Schick broke down the day before, and she gave one of the judges whisker burns as she walked by him.
Fred, you're a very shallow person if you can't see the good points in a girl like this. Her father, by the way, owns an entire airline company.
Yeh, which one?
Jackrabbit Airlines.
Never head of them. Where do they fly? What do they fly?
They used to have weekly passenger flights between Grassy Butte and Grandin until they lost their plane.
How did they lose their plane? I imagine you're going to tell me it was hijacked.
As a matter of fact it was. Someone boarded the plane, pulled out a gun, and insisted the plane fly to Havana.
Cuba???
No, Havana, N.D.
But there is no landing strip there!
Yes, that was the tragedy of it. Jackrabbit Airlines lost its best pilot and its best airplane. But that's another story. Will you please take her out? I promised Jane I'd find a date for her roommate. You'll go, won't you?
O.K. — But just because I feel sorry for her. What's her name?
Clara Clugg
BACK ON THIRD FLOOR SOUTH WEIBLE LATER THAT DAY...
Hey, Clara! Jack got you a date!
Really? who is he?
Well, he just started school here this quarter, because he was recently discharged from the Navy for medical reasons.
Medical reasons? Did he get injured?
Well, there was a mix-up at the Navy personnel office, and he was assigned to be a deck-hand on a submarine.
You're joking!
No, I'm not. He was fished out of the Pacific two days after the sub decided to take a dive. By that time he was physically unfit for further military service. Besides, the Navy was a bit embarrassed to have him around — a sort of reminder of a past mistake. He was quickly released.
God! I feel sorry for him! What's his name?
Fred Tilp.

UNSUNG HEROES NAMED

In commenting on the large number of "unsung heroes" in last Saturday's victory over USD, Coach Erhardt named middle linebacker Stu Helgason and quarterback Bruce Grasamke Co-Backs of the Week and offensive tackle Marv Mortenson and defensive end Gary Leuer as Co-Linemen of the Week.

Helgason, coming back from an injury in the Northern Michigan game which forced him to sit out the Omaha game, came up with one of his finest performances. The Bison co-captain directed a defense that allowed its fourth touchdown in the four SU victories this year.

Grasamke did a masterful job of directing the SU offense under conditions that were far from ideal. Bruce carried the ball 8 times for 85 yards and completed 5 of 7 passes for 74 yards. When the rain made ball handling difficult, Grasamke mixed up the plays so effectively that the Bison kept moving although they did not pass once in the second half. Grasamke's 81-yard touchdown run on a bootleg in the fourth quarter cinched the game for the Bison.

Mortenson had a great night blocking as he and the other Bison offensive linemen opened the holes for the running backs who rushed for 322 yards. Quarterback Grasamke was protected so well that he was not thrown for a loss while attempting to pass.

According to Erhardt, "Leuer had a real fine night." The Bison defensive end was credited with 5 unassisted tackles in the first half. He was a big part of the Bison defense that restricted the potent Coyote offense to 101 yards rushing.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM DISQUALIFIED

Coach Roger Grooters is understandably dissatisfied with the results of last Saturday's cross country meet at Bemidji. The Bison team was disqualified after a confusing series of events that saw the seventh-place finisher awarded first place and the "third and fourth place team" made the winner because of judging decisions.

Cross country courses are supposed to be marked with flags, chalk lines and motorcycles in places where the course may be confusing. Bemidji's course was marked only with flags.

Here's Grooter's version of what actually happened: After 1 1/2 miles SU's Randy Lussenden and UND's Arjan Gelling were leading the pack. They then left the course at an improperly-marked turn. A nearby judge said nothing. When the runners were finally informed of their mistake they had dropped down to "about the 12th and 13th positions."

Lussenden then worked his way up until he finally finished the race in third place. BUT . . . the first six finishers were disqualified for missing another turn later in the race and Gelling — the seventh-place finisher — was awarded first place! UND's team worked its way up — with the aid of the disqualifications — to a first-place finish.

Prior to the Bemidji meet, Bison Randy Lussenden was undefeated in four meets. The Bison will attempt to do better in this Saturday's UND Invitational.

SIOUX - AGE

UND basketball coach Jim Rodgers announced the acquisition of two junior college transfers expected to bolster the Sioux cage fortunes this year. The pair are 6-5, 210-pound Mike Newman of Iowa Western Community College and 6-3, 205-pound Mahlon Sanders of Lake Land Junior College.

Sanders averaged over 25 points a game last year and Newman, a fine ball handler, averaged over 13 points a game. Like the Bison, the Sioux open their basketball drills on October 15.

BOTTOM OF THE PILE

IN NCC Action last Saturday, Morningside beat Augustana 14-6 to take over first place in the conference and UNI beat South Dakota State 24-14 . . . Bison offense has accounted for 1316 yards rushing in four games — an average of 329 yards a game . . . Paul Hatchett's two touchdowns against South Dakota give him 34 in his career — just three short of Ken Rota's school career record of 37.

Saturday's win was the 13th consecutive NCC victory for the Herd. The Bison have now won 52 of their last 56 games — an amazing .929 winning percentage! . . . Four starting Bison backs and alternate fullback Dennis Preboske have all averages between 5.2 and 5.6 yards per carry . . . Some of the hardest hitting in the USD game came after the whistle had blown — witness the "cheap-shot match" between Bison Chuck Wald and Coyote Drew Johnson . . .

Coach Erhardt said: "That was the first time in my coaching tenure that we did not throw one pass in the second half . . . Joe Cichy and Steve Krumrei had as fine of efforts as you'd want from any two defensive backs" . . .

Augustana Coach Ralph Starenko, obviously over enthusiastic following his squad's upset victory over UNI, had these comments: "Tremendous team effort . . . phenomenal improvement . . . great desire . . . once in a lifetime experience" . . . Rahjhs President Crazy Eriksmoen has a new toy to fire-up apathetic Dacotah Field fans — his portable loudspeaker embarrassed many students into yelling . . .

SU's bowling team defeated Northern State of Aberdeen 17-15 in their first match last Saturday . . . Spectrum reporter T. Bozo Layons was the top individual bowler with a 572 three-game series . . . SU wrestlers begin official practices on October 15 . . .

The Bison will win again at Augustana — say 42-14.

Bison Grind Out 24-6 Win Over USD

The NDSU Bison opened defense of their North Central Conference title with an impressive 24-6 victory over the highly rated University of South Dakota Coyotes last Saturday night at Dacotah Field. The victory was the twenty-second consecutive regular season win and the twnty-sixth consecutive victory at Dacotah Field.

The Bison used a crushing ground game and a solid defense to stop the highly-touted Coyotes. Final statistics showed the Bison piling up 322 yards rushing, while holding USD to 101 yards, well below their average of 246 yards per game.

The Bison defense held USD's powerful backfield combination of Dan Hankins and Bob Koch to 36 yards rushing, well below the 490 yards the pair had accumulated during their first three games.

The Bison first drew blood midway through the first period, when Jim Twardy booted a 23-yard field goal to cap a 64-yard drive. The drive took 11 plays, with quarterback Bruce Grasamke mixing the hard running of Joe Roller with passes to Tim Mjos and Paul Hatchett. The defense held following the kickoff, and the Bison needed only nine plays to cover 64 yards and score their first touchdown, making the score 10-0.

After the Coyotes retaliated with a touchdown, set up by a 45-yard pass from Jim Foster to Bob Clark, the Herd stormed back on a 15-yard run by Hatchett to increase their lead to 17-6 at halftime.

The steady rain which began falling early in the second quarter definitely hampered the effectiveness of both teams' offenses during the second half. Though there were only two fumbles during the second half, one by each team, the slippery turf limited the ability of both backfields to use a wide-open type of offense, and forced the use of mostly power plays.

It was not until late in the fourth quarter, when Grasamke raced 81 yards on a quarterback bootleg, that either team was able to score. Grasamke's touchdown gave the Bison their final margin of 24-6.

Bison backs Tim Mjos and Paul Hatchett continued to pile up yardage, as Mjos rushed for 90 yards and Hatchett for 73 yards, bringing their season total's to 354 and 359 yards respectively. Hatchett's two touchdowns brought his season total to nine. Entering the game, he ranked second among small college scorers.

Bison defensive back Joe Cichy turned in another outstanding effort, making 11 unassisted tackles and assisting on six others. The majority of them endured the weather conditions for the entire game. Tim Ringuette, the 1969 Shrine Mascot, presided over the game, capping his week of activities with the Bison.

The Bison's next home game is Oct. 18, against the Sioux of UND. The game will be part of the 1969 homecoming activities.

A crowd of 11,200 attended the 11th annual Shrin Game, and a majority of them endured the weather conditions for the entire game. Tim Ringuette, the 1969 Shrine Mascot, presided over the game, capping his week of activities with the Bison.

Augustana -- Another Sleeping Giant?

How do you get ready for a team that did not win a North Central Conference game last year and was picked to finish in the NCC cellar again this year? When that team is the Augustana Vikings you cannot afford to be less than ready.

The Bison play the Augustana Vikings in Sioux Falls, S.D., at 7:30 this Saturday night. The Vikings have been doing much better than the experts had predicted.

After losing their opener to Concordia College 7-0, the Vikings won two straight, beating Mankato State 24-16 and Northern Iowa 21-10, before going down to defeat at the hands of a tough Morningside team by a 14-6 score last Saturday.

The Vikings scored their amazing upset victory over Northern Iowa in their conference opener. Quarterback Lee Brandt had one of the best games ever for a North Central Conference performer. Brandt carried the ball 12 times for 229 yards rushing and added 109 yards passing for a total offense of 338 yards.

The Viking signal-caller had runs of 15, 62, 34 and 90 yards. His 90-yard touchdown run established a school record.

In that game against UNI the Viking defense had four interceptions and gave up only one touchdown on a 12-yard pass with just 11 seconds left in the first half.

It was only the second time in history that they had beaten UNI at Cedar Falls, Iowa, and the only time in the last ten years that the Vikings have registered a win over the Iowans.

Three offensive leaders from 1968 were among the 21 lettermen returning at Augustana. Besides the 5-9, 165-pound Brandt, who passed for 1167 yards and 8 touchdowns last year, the Vikings returned halfback Roger Olson and split end Jim Egge.

The 5-10, 196-pound Olsen rushed for 628 yards last season and was off to a good start this year until an injury to his back slowed him down. Olson is the only player in Augustana history to have over 1,000 yards rushing after his junior year.

The other offensive star returning for the Vikings is split-end Egge. Last year Egge was honorable mention All American as he caught 44 passes for 545 yards.

Against the Bison last year, Egge caught touchdown passes of seven and 43 yards. He has good size at 6-1 and 191 pounds, and is the fastest man on the Augustana squad.

It is impossible to tell how the Vikings will react to their tough loss to Morningside last week, but they would like nothing better than to upset the Bison for the first time since 1963.

SU leads Augustana in the series with 11 wins to ten for the Vikings and one tie. Last year the Bison trampled Augustana, winning the game by a score of 70-18.

The Bison will be seeking their 14th consecutive North Central Conference victory and their 23rd straight regular-season win.

'69 Cagers Short On Seniors

The 1969 Bison basketball team will have a new look this year as not one senior will report to coach Lyle "Bud" Belk on Wednesday, Oct. 15.

The Bison have five returning lettermen, all who started at one time or another last year. Back are junior lettermen Phil Dranger, Pat Driscoll, Dave Edison, Bob Vogel and John Wojtak. Their competition for starting positions will come from sophomores Lynn Kjorstad, Mike Kupich and Brad Klabo. Scott Howe, Bernie Graner, Gary Loftsgard and Larry LaMont, a transfer from Mayville State College will also be fighting for starting berths.

A new rule is in effect this year which enables freshmen to play on the varsity. Coach Belk said, "We recruited the top two choices in North Dakota in Tom Erdmann of Minot and Mark Ref-ling of Bottineau." Tim Kaiser, Williston and Tom Driscoll, Moorhead are two other freshmen candidates. Belk said, "Tom Driscoll was the best guard in Minnesota last year."

Belk has an optimistic outlook for the Bison but expects the University of South Dakota to be a team to beat.

New coach for the Junior Varsity will be Jerry Kringlie. Kringlie was the coach at Northwood for seven years before joining the staff at SU. Also assisting with the varsity coaching duties will be Dick Limke.

"With the completion of the new Fieldhouse the Bison will be able to bring in top colleges as well as having double header games with the tri-city colleges participating," said Belk.

Freshmen practice will start Oct. 15 at 7:30 p.m. All interested candidates are urged to attend.

KFME Presents New Network Shows

by Bob Olson
A soap opera for the intellectual mind and a viewer-participation debate show are part of the new season of programs that premiered this week on KFMS (Channel 13). KFME, Fargo's local affiliate of the National Educational Television Network (NET), is bringing to this area a wide variety of programs direct from its national network:

SUNDAY 8 P.M. — THE FORSYTE SAGA
This is a 26-week serialized version of Nobel Prizewinner John Galsworthy's novels. The show follows the eventful lives of a wealthy English family through half a century.
It was first telecast on the BBC and became such a hit that London churches were forced to reschedule their services after large drops in attendance were traced to the popularity of the TV serial.
The British press called it a "national obsession." Fargo viewers who find themselves confused by the number of Forsyte personalities and their relationship to each other can do well to refer to last week's issue of Time magazine, which contains a graphical illustration of the Forsyte family tree.

SUNDAY 9 P.M. — THE ADVOCATES
This is a live program which brings a new approach to the presentation of public issues. A key aspect of The Advocates will be the phrasing of a question.
Two advocates will appear to present the case for and against the question by various means with the emphasis on true realism. A general debate will follow.

MONDAY, 8 P.M. — NET JOURNAL
This coming Monday night, NET Journal will be of special interest to the college crowd. It deals with a group of Berkeley students who see themselves and their world in an intimate, often impressionistic film set against a background of campus riots, police regulations and politics.
There are many more programs of drama, documentary and artistic performance throughout the week. Tonight folk singer Judy Collins performs a group of her own songs at 9 p.m. on NET Festival. The show features different performers each week.
NET Playhouse appears Friday at 8:30 p.m. It will feature dramatic productions by writers like Tennessee Williams and Hugh Leonard.
According to NET directors, their network has certain advantages over the commercial networks when it comes to program selections.
Net President James Day stated "We have a greater freedom to experiment and innovate than the others who have to be concerned with initial ratings and sponsors."
Consult local papers for weekly program listings.

and viewers all across the nation will have the opportunity to phone in their vote on the specific issue. The results will announced the following week.

Stevens Bubbles Green

Green water is bubbling out of the Stevens Hall air-conditioning unit. The unit, located on the north side of Stevens Hall, causes the observer to wonder what all those biologists are up to now.

Dr. Robert Burgess, associate professor of Botany, can put all of our minds at ease. With a slight smile beneath his newly acquired beard he explains that during the summer the water temperature in the unit is just right for growing algae, which the wind provides.

Cold winter weather, however, will clear everything up. Freezing temperatures kill the algae and, in the words of Dr. Burgess, "in the spring the water will be clear."

Village Voice Reaches Record Length

The married students newspaper, the Village Voice, reached a record length of seven pages as it went to the printers Thursday for the first time this academic year. There were more ads than ever before and more news of interest to married students.

Lorry Henning, the assistant editor, said, "We hope each issue can be as long. We may even make it a 13-15 page publication, or publish a seven-page issue twice a month."

"By now, every married student should have received his ...copy," said editor Corrine Henning. "If they haven't, I have several extra copies. Some of the new married students weren't mailed their Voice because the offices do not have a list of their addresses. But, we'll have the list next month."

The Voice is a non-profit publication that was originally founded as sort of a gossip column for the wives of married students. It has since expanded to include the minutes of the MSA meetings and activities planned for married students. A classified ad section provided married students with a selective audience for their ads.

One thousand copies of The Voice were printed in September. There are about 1400 married students attending NDSU. In the past, The Voice was merely distributed by the councilmen of MSA to their districts in the housing units on campus.

Since last spring, The Voice has been mailed to all the off-campus married students. Dean Pavek's office has worked to provide this service and has offered to pay the mailing costs at least for the first quarter this year.

GOOD SPOUSEKEEPING

by Corrine Henning

I'd like to express my sympathy to Dean Pavek. He's having problems again and this time it is this column that has caused them. When I mentioned here that the liquor laws had been changed in favor of the married students on campus, I had no idea that The Forum would be interested enough to bother Dr. Pavek for details. Sorry about that, Les.

The school health insurance has a maternity benefit clause. When we were negotiating for the insurance, we understood that no maternity benefits would be offered. The reason for this, our insurance representative explained is that the birth rate for married college students is one child per year for every two couples. The inclusion of coverage for this would have made the entire policy much more expensive. As one reads through the brochure, it will found that the company will cover anything over the first $300 and any parent knows that a baby costs at least twice that.

I called our agent in town yesterday. His secretary told me that the inclusion of the maternity clause was a mistake, but that since it got in, the company would have to stand behind it. They couldn't tell me if the $300 included any of the pre-natal care, so I've written to Mr. Peet in Minneapolis to get this information. If it does cover the pre-natal care, it looks as though this is the year to have a baby. You'll never get maternity benefits free in such an economical health insurance policy.

After repeated procrastination (if that's possible and just about anything in the line of procrastination is possible for University Buildings and Grounds!) I heard a rumor that there is a rumor circulating that there might be a petition going around to residents of West Court. By the way, the flu has been going around to the residents of West Court. Maybe we should send the petition with it and it would be sure to get there.

There have been several gentlemen's agreements (it is rumored) between MSA officials and Buildings and Grounds. These have been mild threats for more definite action if 15th Ave. running along the side of West Court was not paved soon. After years of waiting for B&G to do something, someone has decided (it is rumored) that it is time to take some definite actions.

If the rumored petition is circulated, we must commend the circulators for a wise move. Petitions are more effective than demonstrations, and even more effective than gentlemen's agreements. Let's let the University see that we mean business, in writing. If the petition comes around, sign it and maybe we'll get some action.

There are 1400 married students attending NDSU. That's about one-fifth of the student body of the University. It's about time some of the married students realize that they have a tremendous majority. The only group larger than the married students is the Greeks. With 1400 students requesting some improvements, the administration can hardly overlook their demands. So, Let's get done what needs to be.

"Teahouse" Overcomes Obstacles

by Paul Erling

The NDSU Little Country Theater's first presentation of the season, Teahouse of the August Moon, proved to be an entertaining theater experience, in spite of some obstacles.

When the LCT staff chose to produce this play they accepted two formidable challenges:

First, the story requires a large cast of Okinawa citizens. And though all men may have been created equal, the assumption that 22 Norwegians can convincingly equal 22 Orientals — even on the stage — is hard to believe.

Second, the majority of the audience has seen the popular Hollywood version. The viewer thus comes to the theater with a definite preconception of what the play "should be." Unfair comparisons are inevitable.

In this area, the LCT has a superior script on its side. Much of the stage play's real humor was lost in the super-realistic dazzle of Hollywood adaptation.

Written in 1952, the work also has a unique timeliness. Playwright John Patrick manages to comment on a variety of vulnerable institutions — U.S. Occupation and intervention tactics, unions and racial discrimination — without overstating them. Rather, these matters are deftly woven into a tightly-knit play.

The story centers around disaster-prone Captain Fisby (Lew Hoffman) who is sent to an obscure Okinawan village named Tobiki to implement the Pentagon's Occupation Plan B "Orienting the Oriental".

Fisby's commanding officer, overplayed by Jim Kampert, leaves him with a lofty goal: "These natives are going to learn Democracy if I have to shoot every one of them."

By the time Fisby is welcomed by Lotus Blossom (a "professional member of the Geisha-girl Guild") Plan B has already proven impossible to enact. With the help of a psychiatrist (Doug Davy) sent to analyze him, Fisby discovers and develops the village's strategic commercial resource: potato brandy.

Predictably, in two months Tobiki is thriving on its own brand of democracy. Real problems arise only when the prosperity draws attention from Occupation Army superiors.

Steve Stark, as the Okinawan narrator and interpreter, has the heaviest responsibility for establishing Oriental flavor in Teahouse, and his representation is almost believable. Meriste Osarczuk rises as a fine performance of the demanding third-act part of Lotus Blossom.

Some of the best moments of the production are provided within minor roles. Gayle Randall's personification of the Ladies League for Democratic Action President is delightful. Dale Johansen takes rare advantage of his role as the village wrestler and chief of police. And David Baldwin's work in the third act shows genuine timing and presence.

Even great make-up and the best of mincing steps, however, would have trouble disguising a cast of Made-in-Dakota Okinawans.

Technical director Donald Lawrew, in his first staging for the Little Country Theater, provides a clever but somewhat clumsy set. In one instance the rampwork forces a jeep to cross front-stage — context in which it is grossly out of scale.

The general effect of Teahouse of the August Moon, directed by Marvin Gardner, remains one of creditable, enjoyable entertainment. As such, the production (which runs through Saturday night) is well worth seeing.
