

New constitution up for vote after "extensive review"

The new proposed Student Body Constitution will be put before the Student Body next Tuesday, May 15.

The constitution is the product of perhaps the most extensive review and scrutiny an SU constitution has ever been under, according to Steve Bolme, constitution committee member.

The format of the new constitution differs from that of virtually every other Student Body Constitution compared. In other documents, the student body is either forgotten or, if included, placed somewhere to be forgotten or ignored.

In the proposed constitution, the student body is given a separate article and is established as an equal branch of government, along with the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial branches. The student body powers of initiative, recall, and referral are set out on the first page.

Student Organizations will have the constitutional right to "request Senate assistance" and make recommendations for Senate action.

Along with these additions, several changes were made concerning the student body. The most notable change is the time of the general election.

Campus elections were changed from mid-January to the second Wednesday in December which would give new Senators an additional month of experience before they start analyzing the student activities budget.

The Senate composition is also different than any previous Senate. Before, the number and dispersal of senators were apparently placed arbitrarily, now they are placed according to the formula of one senator for every 500 students, in both academic and residential areas.

The new constitution established powers and responsibilities for Student Senate. Before, the Senate existed as a body without any specifically assigned powers. "It was legislative body with no power to legislate," Bolme said.

The Senate is charged with, among other responsibilities, safeguarding student rights, delegating powers to student organizations, securing reports from the administration, serving the needs of the student body, and representing the opinions of their constituents.

The Senate is also delegated to establish liaisons between the Senate and various campus organizations, such as BOSP, Campus Attractions, IRHC, Panhellenic, IFC, and Married Student Association. The hope here is that closer communications will lead to closer cooperation on common problems, according to Bolme.

The Executive branch remains somewhat similar in the old document with a few important additions. The president must now periodically report to the Senate on the operations of the Executive branch, and also included is the right to create temporary commissions. Also worthy of note is the addition of a Commission on Student Organizations.

The Judicial branch received a facelift, a new name and clarified areas of jurisdiction. What was the J-Board will become the Student Court of Justice. Court membership will be expanded from five to seven. The expansion was justified by a desire for more flexibility in the appointment of justices as well as the expanded areas of jurisdiction.

Some of the added areas of jurisdiction are in conflicts concerning student organizations, election contestments and also greater enforcement and penalty powers.

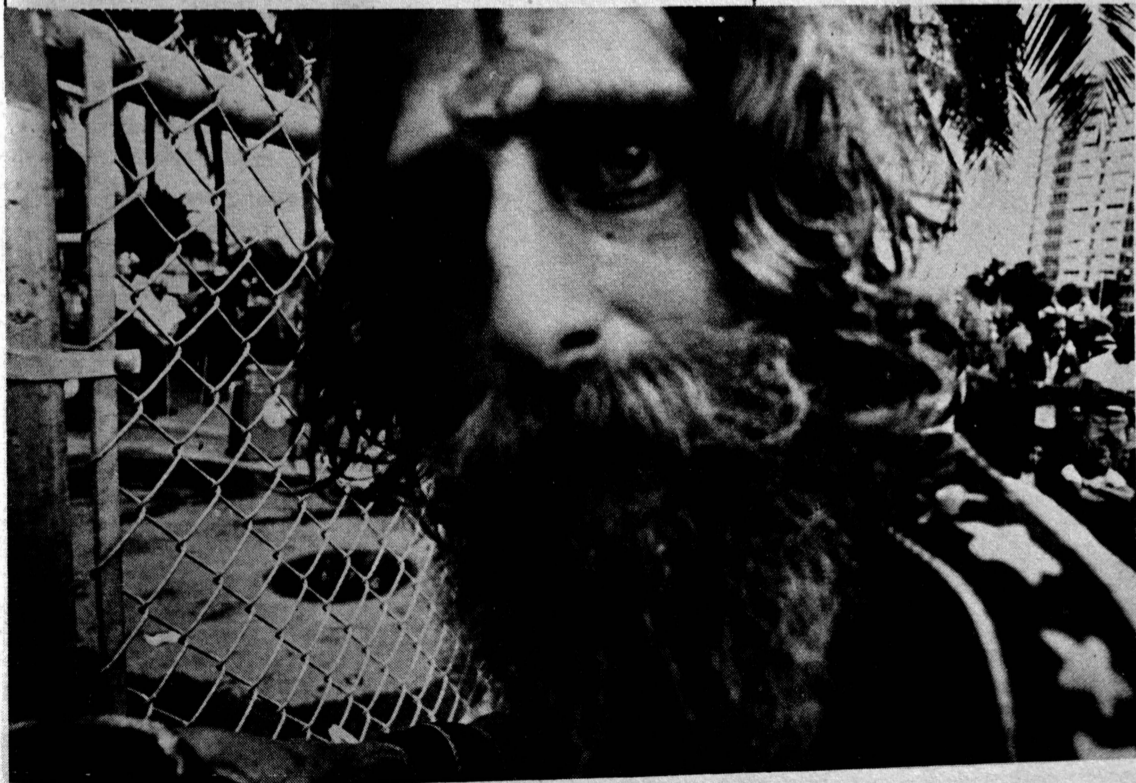

The Preamble insists that a student government "should help build a realization that we have a responsibility to ourselves, as well as to others, to actively participate in decisions which affect us."

Also noticeable is the desire to bring the students to a more prominent position in the governing process and calling attention to, rather than hiding, the powers of the student body.

"Just as important, but not easily recognized, is the inherent flexibility of this constitution. A flexible government requires a flexible constitution and now SU will have one," Bolme said.

The Senate committee which revised the constitution is planning to add a bill of student rights to the document at a later date.

BOSP places moratorium on Bison Annual again

The SU Board of Student Publications (BOSP) re-invoked a moratorium on the Bison Annual Wednesday, negating action taken three weeks ago, and established a committee to investigate alternative uses of money traditionally appropriated for the yearbook.

At the meeting three weeks ago, it was agreed to lift the moratorium, select an editor at the next meeting and publish a seven or eight issue magazine to come out monthly.

After dumping the annual again, the board set up a committee of three BOSP members, possibly some student government personnel, Greeks, and members from the faculty and Student Affairs Committee, to investigate alternative uses of the money for some type of publication.

The committee is to have a report for the board by the end of the school year.

Board member Dick Crockett said BOSP was put in an "impossible situation" at the last meeting thinking it had to submit a budget to Finance Commission by that evening to receive funding for any type of publication.

"It turned out we were wrong," Crockett said. "The money will probably still be around next fall so now I would favor reinstating the moratorium."

Chairman Jane Vix said the board was not trying to "stick the students with a seven or eight issue book if they don't want one."

"I think it's important that we divorce the idea that an annual and a magazine are, or could be, the same thing," Vix continued. "They are two different types of publications and shouldn't be combined."

Board members also expressed concern about the small number of applicants and the qualifications of the two applicants they did have.

Steve Moore had submitted an application to be editor of a magazine and Karen Boyle showed some interest in editing a single volume publication.

Crockett questioned whether Moore could find an experienced staff to draw from to put out a magazine, since most of it would be photography and he contended it's doubtful if enough good photographers would be around next year.

Board member Dave Wallis said if anyone was truly interested in editing an annual, they would have come to us long before now.

In other action, the Board approved another month's salary for Annual Editor Murray Lemley. He must be in Fargo this summer to proof the yearbook before the final press run.

Lou Richardson, another board member, questioned when they "will find an editor who will complete his book for the salary originally allotted to him." (Last year's editors Duane Lillehaug and Leo Kim also received extra compensation to complete their book.)

Crockett said it was probably an "oversight on the part of the board that some compensation for summer work wasn't included in the original budget."

Steve Sperle was paid $115 for his work as interim business manager after stepping in for Mel Stolzenburg, who joined the Action program.

Probation, suspension not "punitive measures"

Probation and suspension are not punitive measures, according to Dr. Robert Tidd, director of student academic affairs in the College of Arts and Sciences.

"A student doing poorly has to re-evaluate what he is doing. It's not fair to him to waste money and time in an unsuccessful endeavor," Tidd said.

Individual attention is given to specific problems, according to Tidd. After these problems are considered, the decisions for probation and suspension are made.

"After suspension students often come back with real motivation for studying," Tidd said.

A computer compiles a list of those eligible for probation. To be eligible a freshman's GPA must be below 1.60, a sophomore's is under 1.75 and a junior's below 2.00.

This list is then reviewed by a faculty committee. "A large percentage of those eligible are placed on probation," Tidd said. "They realize then that they're in academic difficulty and had better make some changes."

The faculty and the Counseling Center are given a list of those on probation. "Students aren't always aware of all the help available," Tidd noted. "The Counseling Center can help them find out what they're not doing correctly."

Tidd said the faculty is also concerned with honoring the honor student. "The college should be paying some attention to honor students, other than the impersonal letter now sent to their parents."

Sponberg appointed new athletic director

Dr. A.L. (Ade) Sponberg was appointed athletic director and chairman of the division of physical education at SU Wednesday.

Sponberg, athletic director at Augustana College since 1968, will fill the position vacated by Ron Erhardt, currently the offensive backfield coach for the New England Patriots of the National Football League.

President L.D. Loftsgard made the appointment, effective July 1, pending N.D. Board of Higher Education approval, and said, "We're lucky to get a man with Dr. Sponberg's credentials. In addition, he has been in the North Central Conference for several years and is familiar with league activities."

Loftsgard said there were between 25-30 applicants for the position.

Sponberg, 36, graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College in 1958, earned his masters degree at Mankato State in 1963 and his doctorate at the University of Michigan in 1968.

He was head wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Gustavus Adolphus from 1961-66 and an assistant football coach under Bump Elliot at the University of Michigan from 1966-68.

In a telephone news conference Wednesday morning, Sponberg said, "The North Central Conference is the best college-division conference in the nation and I'm happy to stay in it. This is a great opportunity and a great challenge."

Chemistry/physics

Students get "every benefit of the doubt" before probation

Due to the limited number of students in the college of chemistry and physics, any student with an academic deficiency is very thoroughly reviewed by the faculty members who know him best, according to Dr. James Sugihara, dean of chemistry and physics.

Sugihara said requirements apply much the same in all colleges. A student not meeting academic requirements is warned, put on probation, or suspended. "We give the student every benefit of the doubt," Sugihara said. "Our system does not treat students in any way but with the greatest concern and regard."

According to the dean, there has been no noticeable increase or decrease in the number of students on academic probation. "In fact, this college usually has three or four times as many students on the dean's list."

For those students on academic probation, Sugihara said he would prefer they get away from the same activities they've been following and assess their future.

"We have to be mindful that there is a university requirement for a 2.0 GPA in order to graduate. If a student accumulates a large group of D's it's difficult to bring that up. This realization should come early so the student doesn't sink deeper and deeper into a hole," Sugihara said.

Colberg wins research award

Pat Colberg, SU sophomore, received the A. Rodger Denison Award for the best undergraduate research paper on April 28 in Grand Forks. She received a certificate and a check for fifteen dollars.

One of 20 in competition from the state, Colberg submitted her research in journal form at the meeting of the North Dakota Academy of Science.

Her paper, "A Simple Direct Method for Isolation of Clostridium Perfringens from Food and Water", dealt with a bacterial organism that is a normal inhabitant of the intestinal tract of man. Her research also dealt with the organism as a water pollutant.

This summer she will be one of twelve SU undergraduates studying the Shyenne Diversion under a $26,000 national science research grant.

Bureau schedules hearing on Garrison Diversion Project

In the midst of the controversy about the environmental effects of the Garrison Diversion Project, the Bureau of Reclamation has scheduled a public hearing May 21 and 22 in Minot to air opinions on the project and its recently issued project impact statement.

The impact statement was prepared in response to a suit by the Committee to Save North Dakota. The committee contends the project will have adverse environmental effects and waste federal funds.

The suit filed by the committee seeks a moratorium on construction until further environmental studies can be conducted.

L. Roger Johnson, an SU student, is on the project's campus committee Board of Direction. "We are a small organization, consisting of 10-15 members and not active in the actual committee," Johnson said. "We give out any information we can, and pass out literature."

The committee distributed information in the Union a few weeks ago and plans to give out more in the near future.

"Our major concern is to show people the negative aspects of the Garrison Diversion Project," Johnson said. "We didn't take a sufficient look at these before the project was started."

Johnson plans to attend the hearing and has asked that he be listed as a witness for the hearing.

Rich Madson, chairman of the Committee to Save North Dakota, said the hearing is two years too late. "The hearing provides the first opportunity for input from the public on the project. It should have been done in 1971."

The statement represents a beginning of environmental analysis so persons can question aspects of the projects, Madson noted, adding, "the general citizen is at a disadvantage because he hasn't had a chance to comprehend the lengthy statement in the short time provided."

The N.D. Attorney General recently blocked an injunction to halt construction of the project. "The attorney general had admitted that there may be some adverse environmental benefits, but believes that the economic benefits outweigh them," Madson said.

Cooperation worthwhile IRHC goal

Better cooperation between dorms and the administration was stressed as a worthwhile goal by the Inter-Residence Hall Council (IRHC) at their annual workshop Wednesday.

The workshop was held to inform about ways to improve dorm government.

Various interest groups discussed their own facets of residence hall living priorities and ways IRHC could work better with the dorms and the university.

B.C. Bentson, dean of men, Kathryn Ross, residence hall coordinator, and other university officials were guests at the workshop to give their views about dorm living.

After the workshop the IRHC held a meeting to make suggestions for the next year and elect new officers.

The most notable accomplishment of IRHC over the year was the change in guest hours in dorms, according to the members. Guest hours are from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m., seven days a week.

It was also suggested IRHC send out letters to incoming residents concerning dorm and campus living.

Previously, only Weible Hall did this and it was suggested IRHC modify the letter and send it to future dorm residents.

New officers for the 73-74 school year are Dave Morstad, President; Mike Molland, vice president; and Esther Myers, secretary-treasurer.

The IRHC was also informed about a proposed college mini-course program that would be set up in the dorms and include such topics as yoga, candle making, and self-defense. There would be no charge for the course if the dorms showed enough interest in them, Julie Swanson, dean of students representative, said.

The rise and fall of honor

Recent exposures of illegal, immoral and incompetent behavior on the part of President Nixon's reelection committee and ultimately Nixon himself should come as no surprise to those who have kept an open eye on Nixon during his first four year term.

By the disdainful and arrogant way in which Nixon has wielded his power and usurped others, he has revealed his unsatiable craving for power.

Nixon may be excused by some loyal die-hards by saying, well, he was just misled—betrayed by those he respected and trusted. Ridiculous! It seems increasingly obvious as more and more evidence of wrongdoings are uncovered that the insidious trail of scandal and corruption leads right up to the White House gate.

Each day the reader is exposed to stories of new developments in the Watergate case—of more White House aids being fired or resigning, of aids implicated either in Watergate or in various other criminal activities designed to put Nixon back in the White House.

Perhaps some zealous aids were so easily overcome by Nixon's personality, and perhaps by the power instilled in the Presidency itself, to go above and beyond the call of duty and law in his service. The majority, however, do not fall under this category. With the ever expanding cast of participants in Watergate and associated incidents, it would necessitate the existence of a formidable cult, if they did.

No, the directive and incentive must have come from Nixon himself. Only Nixon was directly to benefit from such shady episodes. Only Nixon could have given the order to begin so many carefully formulated plans to discredit his Democratic opponents and put him back in the White House.

It is unfortunate the American public had to learn so late the type of man Nixon is and the type of administration he represents.

The land-slide victory Nixon recorded last November is indicative of the sad fact that most of the people can be fooled most of the time. As has been said before, the public gets the type of government it deserves. A super-pessimist might say it gets better than it deserves, but under the circumstances, that's hard to imagine.

Yesterday former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans were indicted in connection with an investigation of a $200,000 secret cash contribution to the Nixon campaign fund allegedly in return for efforts to influence an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

When officials so high up in the administration are indicted for corrupt practices and a number of lesser officials are implicated as well, it is only a matter of time before the shadow of guilt extends over the White House.

Whether Nixon is impeached or not, it is hoped the public now realizes the inherent weaknesses in the American political system. Power breeds corruption, especially when the power is in the hands of a few: the rich, the ambitious and the arrogant.

Nixon has long defended his "Peace with honor" abroad. Now it is time for him to face up to his government with dishonor at home.

Letters to the editor

Spectrum too serious

I think the Spectrum is entirely too serious for a college newspaper.

The contents include what's happening on third floor of the Union, and what some committee thought, not did, about insignificant trivial item. On the lighter side is some personal joke between the "higher ups" on the Spectrum staff, making sure it's something no one else understands, and the staff aims to keep it that way.

Students are looking for something interesting and relevant to appear in THEIR school newspaper, and if they don't get it, soon they won't even bother picking up an issue.

As at the White House, the Spectrum office also needs some cleaning out and elimination of the worn out, stagnant people who are too scared to try anything new besides taking pictures of each other in all their vanity, and publishing them to be distributed all over campus.

The ideas of every swollen headed second rate hippie in authority are exactly the same and contain absolutely no originality or creativity.

The hangup now is on the punctuation and grammar etc., why not look for the mind that made the punctuation?

We have a new editor, but has anyone seen any changes?

Link "rapes" natural resources

Art Link has taken another step to permit the rape of North Dakota and its natural resources by out-of-state interests.

Link's veto of the $.05 a ton severance tax on coal allows out-of-state coal companies to plunder our state's coal wealth without paying North Dakota a cent.

How ironic that it was the Link forces during the campaign that charged that the election of Republicans Larsen and ("Oil Rig") Wilhite would result in the "rape of North Dakota" by the exploitation of our natural coal resources.

Again and again, first with 19-year-old drinking and then with environmental protection, Link demonstrates to us his apparent motto: "Make whatever promises will get you elected then break them freely once in office."

The record is clear. It was the Republican legislature that passed the tough strip mining law that has become the national model. It was the Republican legislature that passed the $.05 a ton severance tax to prevent the plunder of our state's coal. And it was Art Link who vetoed that measure.

Yet Art Link and his lackey, Lt. Gov. Wayne Sanstead, have the gall to parade around the state claiming that they are for ecology and the Republicans are against it.

It wasn't Larsen and Wilhite who got the coal and gas money during the past campaign. They didn't get a penny. Who got the coal and gas money? Perhaps the veto gives the answer. Perhaps it also explains in part how Link and Sanstead financed their $150,000 media blitz during the final two weeks of the campaign, outspending their opponents ten to one—that blitz credited with giving them victory.

Apparently Link and Sanstead think the people of North Dakota will forget their broken promises, and will vote for them again on the basis of new lies disguised as new promises, and will ignore their actual performance. I think the people will remember the truth.

Transfer students need book

To paraphrase an old cliché—NDSU is a nice place to visit but I wouldn't want to "school" here. What I'm trying to say, is that when I transferred to SU, the only thing that saved me was the fact that I'm from Fargo and knew where the administration building was. What is needed at SU is some kind of a Student Manual to let the new kids coming in know where everything is at. A kind of orientation for transfer students.

Also, a one credit course on how to register wouldn't be bad. That's a mess. Why couldn't they hold the whole thing in the Old Fieldhouse? It would save a lot of running around. I've managed to "hear" about a few things through experimentation and the grapevine in the Valley Room. But, that's the extent of it.

What bugs me is that after three quarters here I still don't know where half the stuff on campus is. One feels dumb asking people questions that should have obvious answers. The funny part about this whole thing is the number of students who are also ignorant of certain things at SU.

So in the interest of saving face and the peace of mind of further transfer students, could the administration please give us a good info book about their great university. One more question. Why can't paychecks be issued twice a month instead of once? It would solve a huge amount of pecuniary troubles.

On with the show!

A dwarf, played by Larry Volk, surprises Maid Marion (Darcy Skunes) in a scene from the Prairie Stage production of "Rumpelstiltsken."

By Sue Foster

The Prairie Stage (P.S.), SU's traveling tent theater, begins its second annual summer tour of North Dakota on June 4 when the 16-member troupe opens their season on the SU campus.

Prairie Stage will perform in 10 communities across the state during the summer months.

The players will perform "Carnival" every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening at 8:30; "The Importance Of Being Earnest" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

A special children's production of "Rumpelstiltskin" will be shown at 10 a.m. Thursdays and Fridays.

In addition to the performances, Prairie Stage members will conduct a week-long drama workshop for groups of 20 students.

"The workshop will be held in the tent," Marv Gardener, tour manager, said. "The workshop is a highly stylized class. The students who sign up for the workshop belong to us from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. six nights for their coursework."

The workshop participants learn about makeup, costumes and acting, and some will be cast in bit roles of the P.S. productions, according to Gardener.

"The students also work on one-acts or cuts from plays which are directed by the grad students in the P.S. troupe, and they will present the finished skit to their parents."

"Carnival", the musical performed earlier this spring, is the first performance scheduled for the week.

The title roles of Lili, Paul, Jacquot, Rosalie, Marco and Schlegel will be played by Darcy Skunes, Mike Hostetler, Larry Volk, Jan Suerth, Marc Riske and Gayle Randall.

"The Importance Of Being Earnest," written by Oscar Wilde, first set the world laughing in 1895 with its comedy situations and word play.

James Lannon, an SU graduate, will portray the title role of John Worthing (Earnest). Other cast members include John Sitter, Randall, Mary Helms, Suerth and Vicki Orvedahl.

"Rumpelstiltskin," the children's fairy tale, stars Volk as the beauty-loving dwarf who lures children into his magic garden and keeps them there.

Skunes plays innocent Maid Marion with Hostetler, Riske, Helms and Orvedahl portraying the members of the royal family.

Gardener will head the workshops, and directing the plays.

The adaptation of "Rumpelstiltskin" was written by Dr. Frederick Walsh, head of the SU Drama Department.

Dr. Tal Russell is also in the picture, aiding in the "Earnest" and "Rumpelstiltskin" rehearsals.

Gardener said Little Country Theater (LCT) is doing the job it was set up to do. "We hit towns that don't have theater companies. We're bringing theater to people who can't come to see us."

The 1973 Prairie Stage troupe consists of: Riske, Lannon, Hostetler, Ron Gusaas, Volk, Sitter, Randall, Skunes, Suerth, Helms Orvedahl, Julie Zaeske, Tom Palmer, Mark Hove, Blair Johnson, and Stephen Norman. The Prairie Stage schedule is:

Fargo	June 4-9
Bismarck	June 11-16
Mott	June 18-23
Williston	June 25-30
Stanley	July 2-7
Bottineau	July 9-14

Edgeton losing that "old zip;" Became involved in to many defunct causes, like McCarthy

By Mary Wallace

Bruce Edgeton is mellowing. Just ask him anytime, that is, if he has time.

Edgeton, the somewhat outspoken student senator from the graduate school, said he's lost some of what he termed the "old zip" because he has involved himself in many defunct causes like the McCarthy and McGovern campaigns and the peace movement.

Sponsored legislation

As a student senator, Edgeton has sponsored legislation like the lettuce boycott, Senate's condemnation of Nixon's defense spending, the reprimand to Gov. Art Link for vetoing the 19-year-old drinking bill, and supporting the Day Care Center.

According to Edgeton, other action could have been taken to get a lettuce boycott on campus so food centers would only use Ceasar Chavez union lettuce, but by putting it into a motion more publicity was gained.

Edgeton, who is not a member of any university research committee for student senators. Senators should work on specific issues, do their own research and initiate legislation, he added.

Wanting to do something instead of complaining was Edgeton's reason for running for Senate. Edgeton also ran because a number of McGovern supporters were running for office and he said they'd hoped to change some things. "That was not the case."

Expresses major concerns

Edgeton listed a new library, attitudes of the student body, and day care as major concerns. "I would like to change priorities. SU is basically an institution of higher learning and not a laboratory for athletics."

Athletics should be a small part of college life, not the center of attention for recognition, publicity and monetary contributions, he contended.

Edgeton said he appreciates Coach Ev Kjelbertson's relatively open door policy to students.

"The most important building on any campus is the library. Most of the SU 75 money should be funneled into the library fund, especially since we have way less than one half the number of books we should. The library was not build for 6,000 students. We need a brand new library," Edgeton said.

Second on his list of priorities is the student attitude toward SU. Edgeton said active involvement is needed on campus, "even just staying on campus during the weekend would help."

"The university is obligated to provide activities for the students that do stay. It's logical to assume that the more students that stay the more activities would be provided. They (students) can't sit back and say entertain me. They would have to get involved themselves."

According to Edgeton, day care is a fast growing national priority with the advent of more working women.

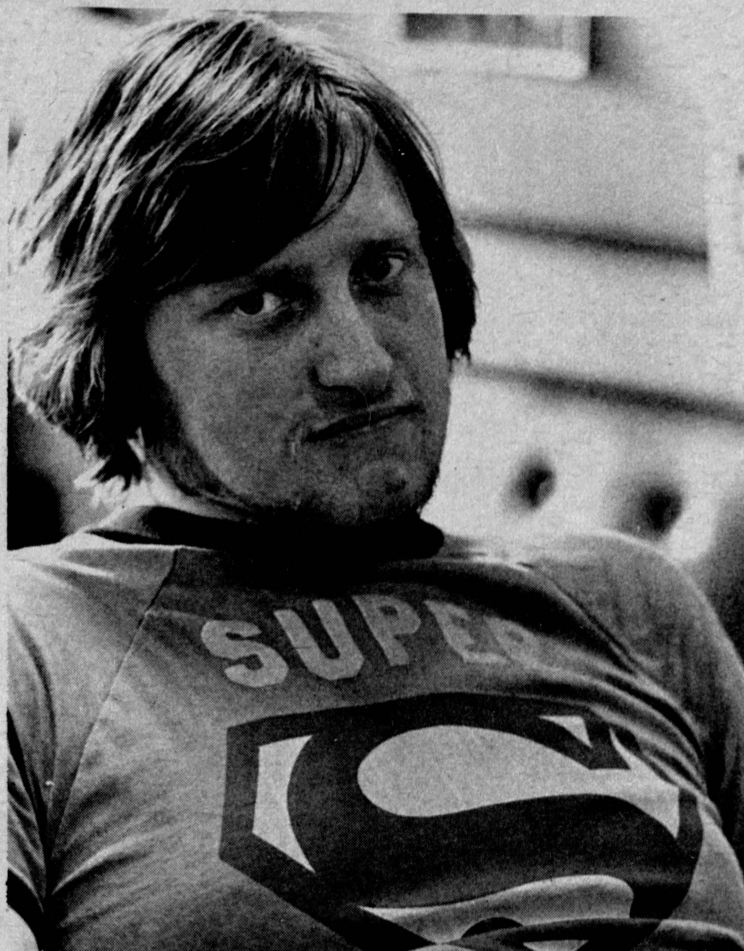

The Senator said the SU Day Care Center initiators were promised money from the administration, but, "They were lied to by the administration."

Nixon is also to blame for the center's dire financial straits, he said. "Nixon vetoed the National Day Care Center Bill and HEW funds were cut back. If he hadn't vetoed that bill there was good chance the Day Care Center would have got money."

Edgeton noted the center is a teaching lab for many campus departments including child development and family relations, home economics education, food and nutrition, and nursing. "It's practical experience right in front of you."

According to Edgeton, President L.D. Loftsgard isolates himself from students. Edgeton suggested Loftsgard find time to visit classes or talk to students in places like the Bison Grill.

Edgeton said he would like Loftsgard to justify spending $65,000 to remodel the president's house.

Senator Bruce Edgeton who has sponsored lettuce resolutions, and supported McCarthy and McGovern, is losing some of his old zip because of his involvement in defunct causes.

Suffers from syndrome

According to Edgeton he is suffering from the coaching-social studies syndrome which hampers his search for a teaching job.

"You can't just be a teacher. You have to be lots of other things too—like a coach."

With an undergraduate history major, Edgeton said he wouldn't mind being a debate coach or newspaper advisor, but noted he was not qualified to be a teacher-coach. "Unless you've had training you can't do it justice. Besides, sometimes it's coach first, teacher second."

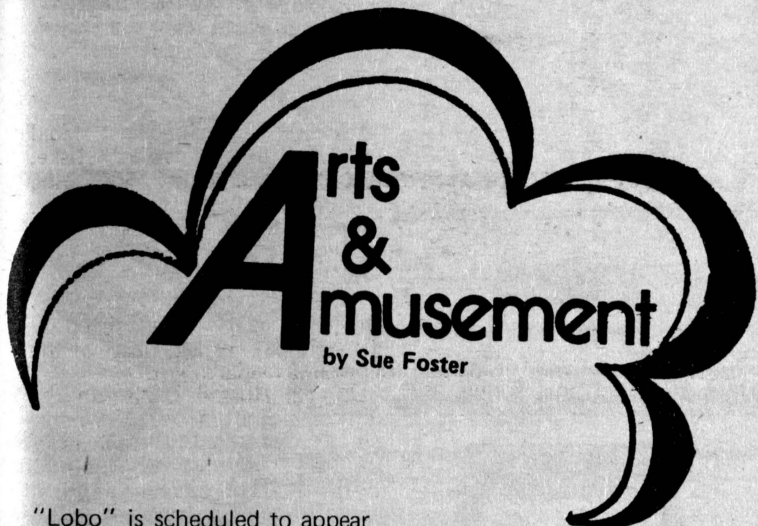

Currently, Edgeton is working for a master's in counseling and guidance. As part of his required nine credits of practicum (practical experience) he works weekends at the Depot, a police sponsored youth facility. "Most kids that go there are juvenile delinquents or potential juvenile delinquents," he said.

Two of Edgeton's colleagues at the Depot took a survey at Ben Franklin Junior High School which showed a high correlation between kids who drink, smoke and use dope and those kids who go the Depot.

According to Edgeton, he has stopped two knife fights and helped a girl who was experiencing bad effects from drugs. "It's very difficult for me to use my counseling training there, but someone has to reach those kids," he said.

"Lobo" is scheduled to appear at the Fargo Civic Auditorium Saturday, May 12. Tickets are on sale at Daveaus for $3 in advance.

Learn about sodomy, transvestites and mad scientists in "Everything..." Believe me, Mommy never told you all these choice goodies. This film is the final presentation of Campus Cinema and Campus Attractions.

The 35-member SU Wind Ensemble will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, May 13 in Festival Hall.

The free concert will include such numbers as: "Overture Brillante, Opus 19," by Burnet Tuthill, "Colonel Bogey" by Kenneth Alford and "Circus Band" by Charles Ives.

Wednesday, May 16, The Gold Star Band will hold a free concert in Festival Hall at 8:15 p.m.

The band will perform some familiar arrangements and new titillators under the direction of Orville Eidem.

To anyone who hasn't heard "Foxtrot in Fargo," believe me, you're lucky! "The Last Tango in Paris" it isn't! I'm not a native Fargoan, but I find the unintelligible lyrics and slightly sickening beat unreal. I thought the KQWB DJ's were kidding... too bad they weren't.

I also listened to some of the phoned in reactions to the song. To the far-gone chick who suggested "Boogie in Bismarck" as a sequel, for your safety and the safety of others, can the opinion.

If Johnny Carson gets a hold of the song... oh well, he never liked Fargo anyway.

Mother's Day is as good as any holiday to shake a fist at Hallmark and all the others in the greeting card game. Every May around this time, I dutifully purchase my shopping cart full of "M is for the chastity she gave me" cards (one for my mother, my mother-in-law, grandmother, one sensitive aunt, two sisters-in-law who send out cards and expect me to reciprocate, plus a manic-depressive girlfriend who threatens suicide if she's left out.)

This year I decided to terminate my financial relationship with Hallmark, announcing my new independence to my husband. Since he has never bought a greeting card in his life, Tom was hardly impressed with my decision. He has never sent cards, incidentally, because he is a man. Men don't send cards because women perform the task for them, even signing their names for the helpless little dears. When they are boys, their mothers sign, seal and lick the stamps; when they are young men away at school, they are absolved of any responsibility because after all, they are novices in the area of affection. Marriage merely passes on the card job to their wives who understand that "I will" means "I will sign all correspondence in the future as John, Jane and the children."

Supposedly, this is where I enter the scene. But not this year, I decided, would I grope through Hallmark's display of redundant coquetry (I have an enormous desire to kill the author of "You're yummy, mummy!").

At this point I should end this article since my problem is solved, right? As in all cases of female exploitation, wanting freedom and acquiring freedom are hardly synonymous. If I don't send the cards for Tom and me, who turns out to be the thankless offspring? I'm the culprit, of course. I know quite well that my mother-in-law will not say "our son forgot to send me a card for Mother's Day." The statement will sound something more like, "Tommy was such a thoughtful boy before he married THAT woman!"

So I told Tom that HE now inherited the responsibility for sending the damn cards to our mothers, since ignoring Mother's Day was simply out of the question. He turned to me from where he was folding the laundry and refused. I shouted something about his being a chauvinist, but he was in a hurry to get the last load of clothes out of the dryer and didn't hear me.

Tom won't send cards because he suspects the Hallmark Corporation helped finance Richard Nixon's campaign, but he also won't send cards because he feels expressions of love don't have to come from someone else's lousy poetry.

How foolish of him not to understand the practical value of greeting cards. Their function is to

Women tracksters qualify for nationals

Three SU women's track team members have qualified for the national meet which will be held May 11 and 12 in Hayward, California.

"It is going to be a fascinating learning experience for me, this is the biggest meet any of us have ever been to," commented Glee Zimmerman, whose time of 11.9

qualified for the 100-yard dash.

Zimmerman also qualified for the long jump, with a jump of 16 feet 9 inches. In practice she has gone as far as 17 feet 4 inches, two inches short of the national record.

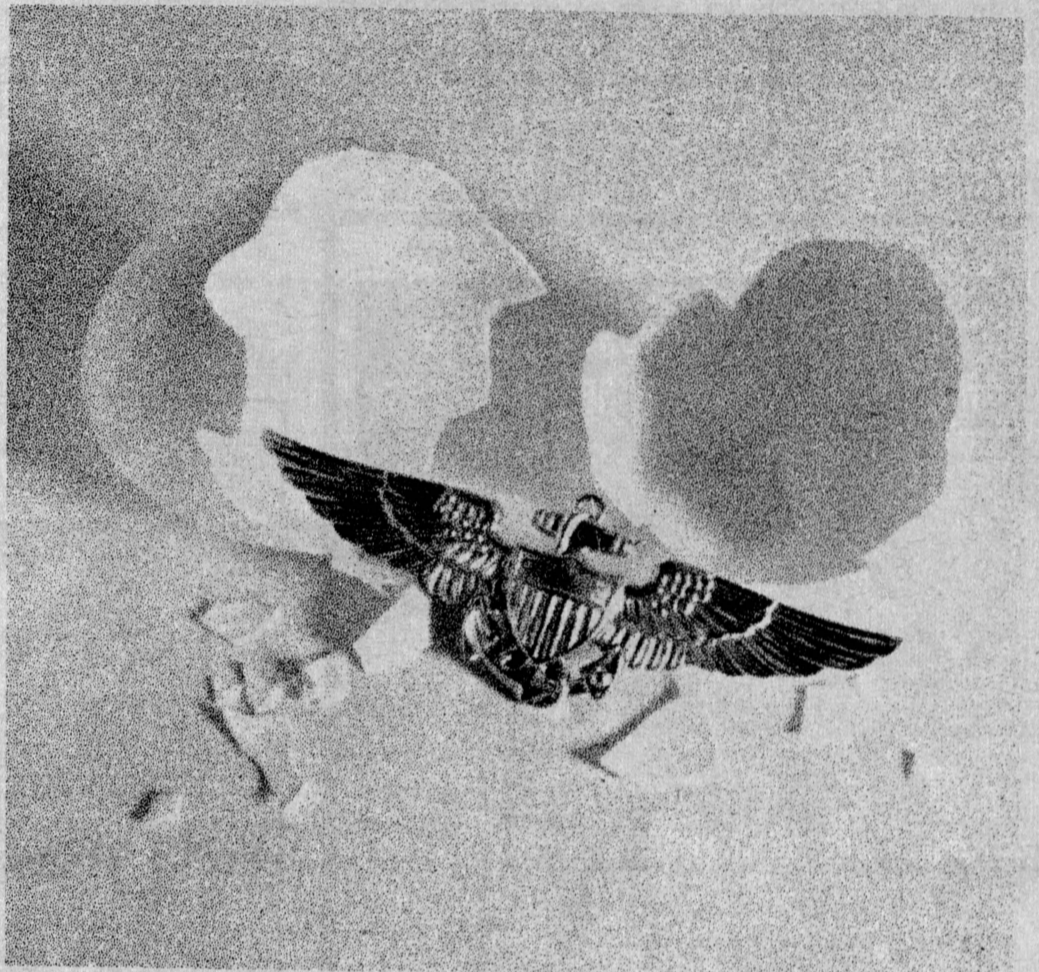

"I use the hitch kick when I long jump. It was used by Randy Williams in the Olympics and it gives you more height," Zimmerman said.

"When I run the 200 yard hurdles I try to come out of the blocks sprinting, maintain on the curves and kick at the end," said hurdler Mary Nelson. As a freshman Nelson will be a major

"Quick" defense and "new" offense battle in spring game

By Barry Triebel

The Bison football team culminates spring drills with the annual inter-squad contest Friday at 7 p.m. on Dacotah Field.

First year coach Ev Kjelbertson will field one of the quickest defensive teams in SU football history and a newly-styled offensive unit.

Kjelbertson, in describing his defensive team said, "They are much quicker than last year and we have a lot of game-breakers."

A game-breaker is an individual who makes "the big play" with consistency.

"(Steve) Nelson and (Kim) Garvey are the two best linebackers in the conference and our secondary is much improved over last year," Kjelbertson said.

In the secondary, Nick Cichy is at strong safety, Keith (Chico) Krebsbach will play free safety and the cornerbacks are Doug Linden and Greg Bentson.

Tackles Pat Simmers and Don Hanson, ends Gregg Hartman and Jerry Dahl and middle guard Steve Peterson are the first-team starters so far this spring in the defensive line positions.

Dahl is a transfer student from Wahpeton Science, where he was a stand-out performer at linebacker last year. Kjelbertson said, "He is really having a good spring for us."

The defense, which has been using the Tennessee split and Okie formations during spring drills, is centered on Steve Nelson.

Nelson, this year's team captain, was a second team all-America and first team all-conference player last season. He will play strong side linebacker Friday, a position as important in football as a cornerstone is to a building.

Offensively, the Bison will work out of the Houston veer attack. The Houston veer formation has split backs, a flanker and two tight ends.

Jay Baumberger will direct the offense at quarterback. "We'll probably throw the ball more with Jay," Kjelbertson said, "he has a great arm."

In addition to throwing the ball, Baumberger will also be the pivotal point for three different option plays and a diverse running attack.

Baumberger has three excellent receivers for targets (as well as the backs) in Randy Smith, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, Minn., Mike Puestow and Dave Sande.

Blocking up front will be tackles Keith Rudeen and John Pogorzelski, guards Jon Hanson and Scott Smiley and center Pat Long.

Sanford Quale, who has missed spring drills with a broken foot, will also see a lot of action next fall.

Quale has been out of his cast for a couple of weeks now and wanted to get ready for the spring game but Kjelbertson, fearing another possible and more serious injury to him, suggested to Sanford he should wait until the fall.

In the backfield will be the men that put poetry into motion—Steve McMillan and Bruce Reimer.

"Mac (McMillan) is having a fantastic spring," Kjelbertson said. "He has been Mr. Bison on offense. He doesn't slow down for a minute."

A new format will also be used in Friday's spring game. The defense is one team and the offense is the other team.

In past years, it has been the first offensive and defensive units against the second offensive and defensive units.

Scoring will be based on a different point system also. The offense gets two points for four consecutive first downs, six points for a touchdown, three points for a field goal and one or two points for the point-after-touchdown (PAT), depending on whether the PAT is kicked or run in.

The defense gets one point for forcing a punt, one point for forcing a fumble, two points for recovering a forced fumble, three points for intercepting a pass and six points for a defensive touchdown.

If the offense scores a touchdown on the same play it makes four straight first downs, only six points are rewarded. The defense does not receive a combined point total for a fumble recovery, only two points.

Bison split

The Bison baseball team, in a warm-up for this weekend's showdown at Brookings, S.D., split a doubleheader in nonconference action against Moorhead State Monday.

Moorhead won the first game 7-4, following the excellent pitching of Mike Wilson and two home runs by Joe Harvala and Bill Ford.

Wilson pitched the full seven inning game, allowing five hits, which, unfortunately for Wilson, came in a cluster.

Except for a solo homer by Mark Aurit in the seventh, all Bison hits came in the three-run fourth inning.

A real slugfest took place in the Bison's second game 12-9 win. Five home runs were hit in the game, Jim Schneider and Tom Assel homering for the Herd.

Schneider collected five runs-batted-in in the second game, three on his fourth inning homer.

The Bison must defeat South Dakota State in two out of the three contests this weekend in order to win sole possession of the conference crown.

The pitching has been good and the Bison have been playing against tougher competition in the past two weeks than has South Dakota State.

All signs point to a conference championship.

Police use of force seldom termed brutality

By Doug Holden

This is a very difficult subject because of the number of variables present in any situation that could develop into a fight with police. We often hear of the word brutality when used in connection with police-handling of certain situations. The term is sometimes justified but can be over-used. A physical confrontation usually begins as a verbal discussion in which both parties participate. If this "discussion" should get out of hand and lead to physical action, regardless of who swung the first blow, it most likely would not have been unprovoked by either party. For this reason, the word brutality must be used very discriminately, and not used as a generalization or a label for all actions where police use force.

If one could remember some basic rules of conduct and act courteously, the majority of the problems with police would be eliminated. The first rule to remember is if a police officer intervenes in your activity, he is doing so because he has cause to believe that something is not quite right. It should not be thought that the officer is deliberately looking for a way to make an arrest. Second, the officer is concerned only with the protection of your rights and the enforcement of the laws guaranteeing them. He is not there to choose sides, to harass you, or to stop you from what you are doing, provided it's legal. All that is asked of you is that you cooperate with him, the same as you would among your friends.

Third, when a citizen calls in a complaint to the police, the officer investigating is, in many cases, three or four times removed from the original problem. At best, he is only an arbitrator. Do not be rude to him because he questions you. At the time, he is not trying to implicate anyone, so do not feel as if you are being blamed for what is happening. If you feel answering will incriminate you, ask for the right to remain silent, etc.

Fourth, if there is a disagreement as to who is guilty or not guilty or who should be arrested, it is not to be settled on the street. A police officer's job is not to decide and pass judgment on those whom he thinks are guilty. Rather, his job is to arrest those who have, in his opinion, violated some law. A judge and/or jury will determine if the officer's decision in making an arrest was correct. If you have an argument, valid or not, save it for the court.

Fifth, even though the officer has received training and conditioning to help him handle such situations, he is only human. There is always a possibility that if provoked long enough, he will lose his patience and act improperly. If verbal abuse, a threat of physical violence, or both are used, it can be expected that if the officer deems it necessary to respond in self-defense, he will. The result could mean injury to the citizen. It does not matter how much contempt you may feel toward him, there are better channels to work through which could save you a beating and an officer his job.

Sixth, under certain conditions, potential violations can have many ramifications that the average person would not be aware of. When an officer approaches a situation, he is always anticipating the unexpected because he is suspicious of greater trouble than what meets his eye. He may suspect you of having been involved in a criminal offense. A policeman's world is filled with criminal variables, many of a felonious nature, that could snuff out his life if he is careless for even one minute. Thus, he uses caution, and on occasion over-reacts. As a citizen, you must take this into consideration when and if you feel certain courtesies have not been extended to you. Being responsive and immediately complying with the officer's commands is helpful. Slow and reluctant behavior can antagonize an officer to believe you are refusing his instructions, and he views this as passive resistance.

This by all means does not cover all possibilities that a citizen may encounter, but the majority of situations has been covered. If you feel that you have not received proper treatment for any reason at all, you have the right to register a complaint. In larger cities, there are agencies for the sole purpose of receiving abuse complaints, such as a Human Rights Commission that reviews discrepancies in police action. Locally, there are only really two channels through which to make a complaint. These are to the police department itself, or through an attorney in court. Moorhead also has a Civil Service Commission that can review a complaint. When submitting a complaint, it would be best if it were documented in entirety and reviewed by a lawyer before presented. If any action is to come, it will be the Chief of Police's responsibility.

It would be nice to assume that by following the suggestions contained in this paper you would never have to worry about improper treatment by the police. The actions of an officer can never be anticipated; variable conditions can cause behavioral changes. Some police departments promote "aggressive enforcement" which either permits or ignores abusive treatment from its officers. Generally, when a department or certain officer acts improperly, it is well known. The best way to refrain from this trouble is to avoid them. Remember that the officer is there for a specific reason. He is a representative of the law, and will respect your rights, provided you treat him properly.
