

Drug fair featured at pharmaceutical meeting

"Students concerned about their profession" was the central theme at the Region Five Student American Pharmaceutical Association (SAPhA) annual convention held this past weekend at SU.

SAPhA is a national professional society of pharmacy students with 13,000 members. The organization is divided into eight regions which meet each fall to discuss issues confronting the profession, exchange ideas about membership and chapter services and hold regional student elections.

The meeting was attended by 90 students. Activities got under way on Saturday after Robert Keller, secretary of the SU chapter of SAPhA; Dean Philip Hakkenson of the SU College of Pharmacy; and the national president of SAPhA, Cedric Jones of Creighton University, welcomed the group to the meeting.

Schools attending were the University of Minnesota, Drake University and the University of Iowa; Creighton University and University of Nebraska; South Dakota State University and host school NDSU.

Activities included a drug product fair attended by nine major drug manufacturers who showed sample products. Representatives answered questions about the manufacture and sales aspect of pharmacy.

Workshops organized by visiting schools highlighted the major part of the afternoon. Drake University stressed that the pharmacist should not limit him/herself but should consider all the opportunities in the field of pharmacy. The University of Minnesota workshop discussed the pharmacist's public image. Other workshops include "The Role of the Pharmacists in Community Health Education," presented by the University of Iowa and "Curriculum Change and Evaluation," Creighton University of Nebraska.

According to Sobczak, student interaction and discussion reflected concern about how the public receives and respects the role of the pharmacist.

Guest evening banquet speaker William F. Appel, chairperson of the American Pharmaceutical Association (APhA) board of trustees addressed the group at the Ramada Inn in Moorhead. He emphasized the changes evolving in the profession of pharmacy and went on to stress that the only way to meet these changes constructively is to exert ourselves as individuals or groups. The future of the pharmacy profession depends on the concerns and ambitions of today's pharmacy students.

International Relations Club said a "cross-cultural society"

"It's not just a club for foreign students, it is a cross-cultural society," said Phil Ralowicz, a three-year member of the International Relations Club (IRC). "We have come to realize most people feel we are just a group of foreigners. We need more participation from American students," he continued.

IRC is just that, a club for students from all countries. IRC includes from 50-70 students from all Latin American countries; African countries such as Ghana, Nigeria, Tunisia, Ethiopia and Egypt; India, Pakistan, Iran, China; Japan, Thailand and Taiwan. There are a few U.S. students in the club.

The club is making an appeal for American students to attend the organization meeting, according to Ralowicz. "One of the things I've noticed, Americans take for granted lots of things. Students here have opportunities to get into international relations and they're not taking advantage of it," said Ralowicz.

"We attempt to get people together to realize differences in the world and hopefully understand, respect and appreciate aspects of other countries," he continued. Besa Amenuvor, a two-year member of IRC from Ghana, said American students can become part of the club and help plan activities. The foreign students don't know the area or the culture. He wants more sharing of culture.

The nature and scope of the club allow Americans to learn from foreigners and vice versa. "We don't see America, we make no new friends," said Besa. "We just come to school and go back. We are losing a lot we would like to share," he added.

For many foreign students, the club is a springboard for finding friends, although Besa tries to do this on his own.

Activities planned for this year include documentary movies from different countries, intercollegiate volleyball and soccer. "Playing other international clubs from colleges such as Jamestown State College, gives you more of an insight. Nothing more can bring you together than winning," said Ralowicz.

Most of the international students are graduate students. According to Ralowicz, not many are in fraternities and sororities. They are inhibited because customs are unfamiliar.

IRC is involved with the community. Whenever asked, students will speak to school and church groups. Every foreign student has a host family in the area. This is another chance for cultural insight but according to Besa, there is not much chance to see the host family and for them to constantly entertain the students.

In the past the club has raised no funds. This year dinners, dances and movies are planned. Last year the club used the YMCA for meetings but have had no offer this year. "The religion centers are always open," said Besa.

"From my own experience, I have met many people. When traveling around the world in the future, I will have friends in many countries. They have whetted my appetite for the world," said Ralowicz.

Everyone is welcome to their organizational meeting Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. in Meinecke Lounge. "Let your mind be expanded. The world isn't so peaceful that we can afford to take friendship for granted," chastised Ralowicz.

Division of continuing studies offers courses in 16 cities

Students interested in continuing education at SU but no longer living in Fargo need despair no longer. The Division of Continuing Studies at SU is offering 19 courses in 16 cities and towns across North Dakota.

The classes will meet ten times for three credits. Registration, completed at the first class meeting, will cost $36 plus $6 for those not previously enrolled at SU.

The courses are listed alphabetically by town, including the place and instructor of the first meeting. All classes begin at 7 p.m.

Senate agrees to charter CA board

By Colleen Connell

Student Senate agreed Sunday night to charter a Campus Attractions (CA) Board effectively dividing CA into two bodies: a production staff and a Board of Campus Attractions, which will have seven voting members.

The CA Board, according to the charter, will represent SU students, faculty and administrators, as they relate to student entertainment at SU.

The CA Board shall act as an adviser to CA and while assuring day-to-day operations are handled effectively will have no direct control of these day-to-day operations. Nor will the Board have the power to determine the scheduling of a particular event or exercise any prior censorship of any CA sponsored activity.

Other responsibilities of the board include:

1. Recruitment, appointment and dismissal of all officers and chairpersons of CA.
2. Supervising operational functions of CA to prevent procedural abuses and righting mistakes which have occurred.
3. Approving the CA budget before it is presented to the Finance Commission.
4. Authorizing CA president to make requests from Finance Commission.
5. Acting as an outlet for any grievances or redress in any areas within their authority.

Members of the CA Board will include a liaison senator appointed by Student Senate, two students appointed by the Student President, one student appointed by the CA President, a faculty member, a representative of the Vice President of Student Affairs, and the CA president.

Student Senate also passed numerous campaign reform measures. Changes include reducing the amount president/vice president candidates can spend on campaigns from $250 to $150. Election complaints must be submitted to Student Court before 7:30 p.m. the night of the election. They may declare invalid the candidacies of those students spending 25 per cent more than the specified limits ($150 for president/vice president tickets, $35 for Senate, BOSP and CA offices).

Senate rejected a proposed reform which would have placed candidate names on the ballot by random selection. The present policy of placing the names of the candidates declaring first on top of the ballot will be continued.

The Board of Student Publications (BOSP) registered a formal complaint against the Senate Appointments Committee, complaining the committee had failed to recommend an appointee for a position which had been vacant since the beginning of April.

Senator Larry Holt tendered a motion requesting Senate bypass the Appointments Committee and accept the nomination of Shelley Weness. He also asked Senate to accept Duke Adamski as SU coordinator for the Tri-College Cooperative. Senate accepted both motions.

Other Senate action included an executive recommendation of constitutional revisions to be submitted to the student body and Senate approval of $200 to be used in a lobbying effort supporting the Employment Opportunities Bill.

Homecoming 74 honors students

SU Homecoming '74 will elect six honor students, four undergraduate and two graduate students and seven honor alumni for homecoming royalty.

Students will vote at booths set up in the Union across from the information booth Thursday. From the College of Agriculture the two nominees are Timothy Ihry and Katherine Scheresky. The College of Home Economics nominated Beth Hastings Barker and Joanne Sitterer; Engineering and Architecture, Carl Jackson and Thomas J. Olson; Humanities and Social Sciences, Brad Logan and Wendy Loucks; Science and Mathematics, Michael Solenger and Deborah Nelson; Pharmacy, Max Johnson and Mary Holling; University Studies, Bonnie Porter and Dean Hanson Jr.; Graduate School, Duane Champagne, Pedro Casals-Bustos, Mrs. Anna Ellenson and Doug Malo.

The chosen honor students will be presented Friday at the political rally in front of the union.

The honored alumni are Beverly Anderson Barbour, New York foods lecturer and columnist; Gordon A. Brandes, chief administrative officer for the University of Pennsylvania Morris Arboretum and Botanic Garden, Chestnut Hill; Robert Dawson, president of Dawson Insurance Agency, Fargo, member of the Board of Directors of the development foundation at SU (SU '75); Robert Owens, vice president for Sales and Marketing of COMPU/NET, New York; John E. Quistgard, pharmacist, Bemidj, Minn.; Robert F. Reimers, state legislator and founder of Reimer

Student vote decisive in major issues

A recent student survey of 13 campuses revealed that student voting patterns made the difference in at least one major race involving Rep. Paul McCloskey. Without a decisive student vote in his favor he would have lost.

Student turnout in Fargo has not been so thoroughly analyzed but it was estimated that for the 1972 national election 70 percent of the eligible student voters turned out in the precinct including the high-rise dorms, Reed-Johnson and Wieble Halls.

The school board and mayoral elections that followed the national elections seemed to quickly dispell any dreams that the student vote would become quickly an integral part of Fargo politics. The turnout was quite low.

The key in whether or not students will turn out seems to be issues or specific candidates. Interest ran high for the national elections but very low for school board elections. This November students will have the opportunity to face a number of significant issues which will reflect the kind of life the people in North Dakota will lead for many years to come.

The major issues seem to revolve around the environment; including coal development, the West River Diversion project and the Garrison Diversion project. Candidates are also talking about inflation.

Both are of major concern but the environment is the stronger of the two issues. Inflation is a byproduct of the actions, many of which involve the use of the environment. The environment then appears to be a more basic issue. To make the environment a significant portion of a campaign is a sign that some premises of the American style of living are being questioned.

At the same time special measures to combat inflation and energy problems can be legislated but until there is concern and commitment by voters and candidates to accept a style of life with perhaps a little bit less they will be only short term palliatives. The problems will not likely be solved with only a short term commitment and one or two amendments to the next Congressional bill pertaining to anything in general.

Some of these questions will be further explored this Thursday and Friday as part of a political fair. It would be a forward step to listen to what the candidates are saying about some of these issues and then decide on the kind of lifestyle and economic climate you would like to live with. Then, reinforce that decision by working for an issue or candidate and voting.

Students do have the power if they use it.

From our readers

Letter charging exploitation in ad 'went too far'

Re: Colleen Connell's letter to the editor on Friday, Sept. 27.

Ms. Connell took offense at an ad in the Spectrum, as was her prerogative but I think that in doing so she went much too far.

The ad was for jeans and showed a young woman, "breasts bared," wearing the jeans. But the picture was a black and white outline and one could barely make out the features of her face. Yet Ms. Connell self-righteously proclaimed that there was "a carefree look of acceptance of her sexual status locked onto her face."

It takes an awful lot of imagination to see all that when you can barely even see her face. She sure is reading a lot into a simple smile.

Ms. Connell goes on to say that "no mention was made of this woman's brain, sensitivity or creativity." What does she expect? The ad was selling jeans, not the woman. How many ads are there, featuring men or women, that spend their time talking about the model's personal qualities?

But the worst part of her letter was her opinion, especially as political affairs editor, of what a college newspaper is.

Since when is a college newspaper "supposed to be a voice of change" or used as a "lobby?" The college newspaper is supposed to be something the Spectrum is not—a forum for all ideas and ideals. It is supposed to air all sides of the issues to help students make informed decisions. That is the heart of the academic environment.

Her view of the newspaper as a personal soapbox is evident. For example: So far this year 28" of copy have been devoted to Democratic candidates and another 45" for liberal Jungroth, an independent, all the "voice of change."

So far this year 56 inches have been used for people who are anti-coal development while only 17½ inches (one story) has been used for a middle-of-the-road approach.

Even if Ms. Connell is not consciously showing bias, she has left herself wide open for a charge. It is obviously what many, if not most, students feel about the Spectrum.

I am not saying that I don't agree with the people featured, in most cases I do. What I do disagree with is using a student newspaper to promote one's own beliefs.

I sincerely hope that the Spectrum will some day return to being a fair and unbiased journal. Until then, I can not hope to gain the support and respect of the students it is supposed to serve.

Sincerely,
Richard W. Reith

FORUM '74 RURITANIA

Once upon a time there was a fable of two great regions, Ruritania and Metropolitania."

The fable was the beginning of the national conference of the Association of Student Architects, (ASC/AIA), to be held at SU Nov. 29 to Dec. 1 under the title of Forum '74.

The fable tells of the plight of Metropolitania due to industrialization and population and Ruritanian plundering as the Metropolitanians sought escape from the problems. With haste a mini-Metropolitania was created within Ruritania.

Kevin Anderson, coordinator of the Forum, said that the moral of the fable and hence the theme of the conference will be "a sensitive approach to the development of natural and community resources."

The conference, held in Miami last fall, has traditionally been dominated by urban issues and the speakers were traditionally architects.

gasification, awareness of the nature of the rural community and the effects of the urban environment on an agricultural area.

Participants will be involved in workshops, a "Magical Mystery Tour" (so named by national ASC/AIA president, Pat Davis) by bus to surrounding communities, a barn dance, speakers, meals and even an introduction to the strong ethnic groups of the area.

According to Anderson, workshops will be led by persons from many disciplines such as sociology, ecology, geology, planning and architecture.

While many of the speakers are local, the Forum will bring in many nationally recognized personalities. Among them is John C. Sawhill, administrator of the Federal Energy Administration. Sawhill will speak of the dilemma of the rural communities to provide energy while at the risk of unbalancing the ecosystem.

A debate about Louis Kahn will be presented to offer a true perspective of Kahn as a designer and a human being. The debate is to be recorded for presentation to Mrs. Kahn.

"Ruritania" is an original idea from the SU ASC/AIA. Anderson noted that it is "an effort on the students' part" to help keep the architecture department's accreditation.

He added that the department has been ignored since it has been without a department head for a year, is losing staff, has a student-teacher ratio of 30-1, and only one classroom.

Anderson said "big-name schools like Harvard have lost accreditation and SU's architecture future may depend on the success of the Forum."

The conference will host architecture students from across the nation but is open to anybody.

The Grass Harp' opens Wednesday

The Grass Harp" and "The Piano Revue" open Wednesday in the Kanasa Hall Little Country Theatre and will run Oct. 9-12 with performances at 8:15 p.m.

The show preview a nine week tour. Director Dr. Fred Lindseth and the troupe, including Greig Walsky, Stomm, Debbie Noella Kuntz, Corinda Worden and Jeri Kin, will leave Fargo for Europe Nov. 21.

Lindseth said that out of the fifty plays that applied, SU was selected for the European tour. He said that U.S.O. members will be invited to see the show on opening night.

Before the troupe returns in February it will present as many as 10 performances in theaters, dining halls, military clubs and hospitals in the Azores, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

The Grass Harp" is a musical based on the novel by Truman Capote. The story revolves around a spinster sister tries to get her hands into the riches of the spinster's secret elixir. Lyrics are by Edward Elmslie and the music is by Claude Richardson.

The Piano Bar Revue" is a variety show with music, chorus-line routines and comedy skits. The music was arranged by Jim Birdsall, SU drama major.

Tickets are $2.50 each, $1.50 for SU students upon presentation of their activity card. Tickets are on sale now at the Little Country Theatre from 9:30-5 p.m. weekdays. For reservations call 37-7795.

New musicians, conductor join season's F-M symphony

Working with "lots of new professional and semi-professional talent," the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony, under new conductor J. Robert Hanson opens its regular season Oct. 13, according to president Wayne Meyers.

"With our new and bigger orchestra," said Meyers, "we will be able to do new things we haven't been able to do in the past."

Among the new talent for the season are Robert Strava, new concertmaster, and J. Robert Hanson, new conductor and member of the Concordia College music faculty. Hanson has played trumpet with the F-M Symphony for seven years.

Now working with Imagination '74, the Symphony will present six major concerts this season.

At Oct. 13 at 4:00 p.m. in Festival Hall, 19-year-old International Violin Competition Finalist, Mark Kaplan, will be displaying his violin talents. Kaplan is from New York where he attended the Julliard School of Music. He has appeared with several major symphonies and played in the Aspen Festival for the last three years.

Phyllis Bryn-Julson, former Concordia College student, will be performing at the Nov. 16 concert. A soprano, Bryn-Julson specializes in avant-garde music. About her "back home concert," the F-M Symphony declared it is "very fortunate to have her back."

A joint venture by the F-M

Symphony and F-M Civic Opera features Mendelssohn's "Elijah," with David Martin as major soloist. This Dec. 5 concert will be at 8:00 p.m. in the SU Old Fieldhouse.

Saturday, Jan. 25 at 8:15 p.m. in Festival Hall a Tri-College Faculty Artist performance will feature SU Professor, Robert Groves, as guest pianist. The performance will introduce 1973 Sigvald Thompson Award composer Jane Brockman.

At Moorhead State College's Weld Hall on Sunday, March 16, at 4 p.m. the chamber orchestra will perform.

The season finale on April 27, p.m. will be an All-American concert commemorating the centennial. Lorin Hollander, 29-year-old pianist, and the "will known of all the performers," now in seventeenth touring season, highlight the performance. J. Hove, SU Professor of English, narrate an Abe Lincoln portrait

The F-M Symphony has members-housewives, business people, students and professors. There is no admission at concerts.

Auditioners sought for Concert Choir

In an effort to broaden and add depth to the 1974-1975 SU Concert Choir, Dr. Edwin Fissinger, chairman of the Music Department and director of the choir, has issued an appeal for auditions by SU students. Students earn one hour of credit each quarter for participating in choir.

Students interested in auditioning for the 45-voice choir should contact the Music Department in Putnam Hall or call Extension 7932 to schedule an audition.

"We're particularly short of students with bass voices at this point. More than that, we're interested in making an appeal for SU students, whatever their major, to consider the choir as a rewarding activity," said Fissinger.

The SU choir was one of five college and university groups invited to sing during general sessions of the 2,000-member American Choral Directors Association (ACDA) national conference in March, 1973.

While touring Europe in summer of 1973, the SU Choir honored at a reception sponsored by the Hungarian Choir with which it shared the spotlight at the ACDA conference.

The concert in Budapest was one of seven appearances by the Concert Choir during a 15-day European tour in which it performed in Switzerland, France, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary. The choir was selected for the European tour by Council of Intercultural Relations, Vienna, Austria.

HOW YOU CAN SPREAD THE MESSAGE OF LOVE... THE LOVE OF CHRIST FOR ALL PEOPLE. Have you ever considered the priesthood as a way to serve people? The Paulist Fathers are a small community of American priests. Progressive, searching, young and energetic, they form a religious family. A Paulist is a man of the Spirit, a man of his time. He rejoices in the signs of hope around him and celebrates with the people he serves. Every Paulist is a missionary: in the pulpit, or parish house, on the campus, in the inner-city. He communicates with the spoken word, the printed page, and with contemporary media. His mission is to all of America. His message is love; the love of Christ for all people. # Bison shut out Jackrabbits 28-0

The Bison played like the Bison of yester-year as they demolished the South Dakota State Jackrabbits Saturday.

The 28-0 shutout moved the Bison into a tie with South Dakota State for third place in the North Central Conference.

The herd, which had scored only three touchdowns in its first four games, got four against the Jackrabbits by combining good running with excellent passing. Quarterback Paul Walczak passed for 175 yards and ran for 32 yards and a touchdown as the Bison almost matched their season total of 33 points.

The Bison needed only five plays to go 89 yards with the opening kickoff. Walczak passed 34 yards to J.P. Brescacin before Dave Roby ran 42 yards up the middle on a counter play for the score.

A low snap on the extra-point kick forced Walczak to scramble into the endzone for two points.

The Bison were contained the rest of the first and the whole second quarter.

In the third quarter an interference call against the Jackrabbits gave the Bison 26 free yards in a 49 yard drive capped by Walczak's bootleg from the 2-yard line.

In the third quarter the Jacks got their deepest penetration of the game—to the Bison 14 yard line. But Jerry Dahl, playing one of the best games of his career, picked off a deflected pass and the Bison were once again moving.

Walczak hit Dave Sande for 26 yards and Brescacin for 22 yards to key the 84 yard drive. Senior Bruce Reimer scored from the 2-yard line and Jeff Zwarch's kick made the score 22-0.

Dave Sande caught a perfect over-the-shoulder pass from Walczak for a 32-yard touchdown play on the very next series.

Linebacker Kim Garvey gave the offense the ball by intercepting Jackrabbit reserve quarterback at the Bison 48 and returning it 14 yards to the Jackrabbit 38. The Bison held the ball for the final minute and won the game 28-0.

The Bison played their best game of the season. Defense standout was Jerry Dahl, who almost singly-handedly destroyed Jackrabbit offense with 12 solo tackles, 10 assisted tackles, a pass interception, forcing a fumble and making two kick-off tackles. Offensively the Bison did everything.

There is no doubt that the Bison are contenders in the NCC and they are out to prove it.

Next Bison game is Homecoming against Augustana.

Quarterback Paul Walczak gets ready to throw another pass in Saturday's romp over the South Dakota State Jackrabbits. Walczak gained 175 yards passing during the 28-0 game.
