Accrediting team to visit SU next week

A 11-member team of educational administrators and faculty members will visit SU April 12-14 for the on-campus portion of a Central Association of Colleges and Schools (NCACS) accreditation review.

NCACS is the major accrediting institution for colleges and universities in a large area in the central U.S. and has been accredited by the NCACS since 1916.

During the course of its three-day visit here, the team will meet with board members, administrators, faculty and students.

A 100-page Institutional Self-Study Report, submitted to the accrediting review team a month ago, is based on a self study begun more than a year ago by SU administrators and faculty. The results of the accreditation review are expected to be released next week.

The evaluating team is headed by Paul H. Cashman, professor of speech at the University of Wisconsin. Other team members include Richard R. Bond, president of the University of North Carolina; Greeley; Dr. Frank J. Dean, dean of the division of culture and director of cooperative extension services and the Agricultural Experiment Station at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater; Dr. Martin L. Zeigler, associate vice president for planning and allocation at the University of Illinois, Urbana; Dr. Mary E. Gaither, professor of English, Indiana University, Bloomington; Dr. C. Addison Hickman, Vandevener professor of economics, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale; Dr. Robert G. Woods, dean of the College of Education, University of Missouri, Columbia; Dr. Frederick Kuellmer, dean of the New Mexico Institute of Mining & Technology, Socorro, N.M.; Dr. Ralph E. Morrow, dean of the Graduate School of Arts & Sciences and professor of history at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.; Dr. Stanley K. Stynes, dean of the College of Engineering, Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich., and Dr. Erskine V. Morse, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

CC grants funds for new CC projector

EMERGENCY FUND
Campus Cinema (CC) was granted $640 for a new projector, $150 for a new pre-amp and $150 for the rebuilding of the old projector.

India-America Students granted $110 to finance one national film for the remainder of the school year.

CARE CENTER
The Day Care Center's request for $1,000 for its 1976-77 budget was denied by FC. The Center has been asked for a $15,000 grant from the federal government, but it is not known if it goes through by mid-summer.

The Center decided to tentatively not ask them anything, but also said the Center's grant does not go through, the Center could take it up with the commission again. If they don't get the grant, I don't know if we could sponsor the whole program ourselves any more," Zavalney said.

It was also suggested that the Center raise its prices by $4 per hour, thus, FC said the margin would more than make up for the $1,000 requested.

CHINESE STUDENTS

The Chinese Students were granted $470 to be used for film rentals, postage, paper and publicity.

IEEE

The Institute of Electronics and Electrical Engineers (IEEE) was granted $155, the majority of which will go to cover the rebuilding of its robot and its newspaper, "The Jolt."

INDIA-AMERICA STUDENTS

The India-America Students were granted $700, which will be used for their "Festival of Lights" production, as well as for financing postage, film rentals and supplies.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

International Relations Club was granted $235 to finance the International Banquet and to help pay for various film rentals.

Tentative grants for 1976-77 budgets are as follows:

Day Care Center-$0
Chinese Students-$470
IEEE-$155
Indian-American Students-$700
International Relations-$235

Escort service on trial

A student escort service has been organized to provide escorts for anyone feeling the need of protection while walking after dark on campus.

Organized by Doug Burgum, student president, the service is operating on a two week trial period, after which the program will be evaluated for its success. The two escorts, Dan Hintz and John Cowen, were chosen by interview. Both are work study students.

The escort service will operate between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Monday through Thursday, out of the Health Center. Both escorts have been provided with official identification and users of the services should ask to see them.

According to John Strand, student vice president, the service will "provide a sense of security."

Representatives from Nomad Bike Shoppe were on hand yesterday to fix and adjust bikes. The event was sponsored by the Young Democrats and all minor adjustments were free of charge.

Pharmacy externship to be requirement

By Kandy Matzek

The Professional Experience Program, or externship, will become a required course for fifth year students in Pharmacy at SU, beginning winter and spring quarters of 1976-1977.

and from the site of the externship, pay his or her own room and board while there, along with the expense of regular college tuition.

A mandate from the American Council of Pharmaceutical Education has made the externship experience a required part of the curriculum necessary for the accreditation of a College of Pharmacy.

The externship program had previously been optional for fifth year students, with 20 participating in the program from SU this year. Next year, with the program mandatory, approximately 80 students will be placed in the program in pharmacies throughout North Dakota and Minnesota.

According to Professor K.F. Crahan, director of the Externship Program at SU, a fifth year student is placed in a pharmacy under the guidance of a registered pharmacist preceptor. The student works a 40-hour week and receives 12 academic credits for the 10 week period. There is no salary paid for the work experience and the extern must provide his or her own transportation to counter drugs. Twice during the 10 week period, the extern student will be monitored by Crahan and Professor Gordon Strommen.

According to Crahan, both the pharmacy preceptors and students who have participated in the program have found the experience satisfactory and are pleased with the program. Some dissension has arisen among the students who will be participating in the program next year, as it appeared possible that the externship might be waived and they would be able to graduate a quarter early.

Steve Sobczak, president of the Student American Pharmaceutical Association, will be participating in the externship program next year and said it will be a good experience despite the certain cost drawbacks. "It is an experience to learn as a student in a pharmacy on a teacher-student basis rather than an employer-employee basis," Sobczak said.

CR's favor reducing 'pot' penalty

By a unanimous vote Tuesday night, SU College Republicans endorsed a resolution encouraging the reduction of the penalty in North Dakota for the possession of small amounts of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor.

The resolution will be submitted for consideration to both the Fargo District and North Dakota State Republican conventions.

Written by Keith Hilber, former chairperson of SU College Republicans, the resolution calls for an updating of the present North Dakota laws concerning marijuana, citing the difficulty in enforcing current laws as a basis for a needed change. Hilber's original resolution had called for the legalization of marijuana, but it was defeated two to one in a voice vote by the members present.

A second resolution urged North Dakota Republicans at the State Republican Convention to instruct the North Dakota delegation to the National Republican Convention in Kansas City to cast their votes on the first two presidential nomination ballots for Congressman Mark Andrews, as a favorite son candidate. According to Hilber, who also authored this resolution, such an action by the North Dakota delegation would be a move for a more open National Convention. If the trend was followed by other states, it might prevent the selection of a presidential candidate on the first and second ballots. If balloting was forced into a third and fourth round, Republicans would then be able to select a candidate from the widest possible field.

Steve Swiontek, who attended the National Republican Convention as a delegate in 1972, presented an opposing view, based on his disapproval of tying up the voting freedom of the North Dakota delegates in the selection of the presidential candidate, should the candidate be chosen in the first or second ballots. After discussion of both views, the resolution was brought to a vote and passed.

Don Hanson, Republican Chairperson of District 45, of which SU makes up 40 per cent of the district's population, was featured speaker at the meeting. Hanson spoke of the need for involvement of college students in the upcoming election. He urged interested students to attend the precinct meeting at North High School on May 4, where delegates to the District Convention will be chosen. Delegates to the District Convention in Fargo will choose the delegates to the North Dakota State Republican Convention.

Hanson said positions were open to interested students as precinct chairpersons, block workers and convention delegates.

U of M Grants Available

The departments of chemistry and aerospace engineering and mechanics at the University of Minnesota have received funds from the National Science Foundation (NSF) projects.

The chemistry department is offering 18 NSF stipends to chemistry majors for research participation this summer, and the department of aerospace engineering and mechanics has money for seven students with physics and mathematics backgrounds.

Students selected will receive a $900 stipend for ten weeks of full-time work in scientific research.

Applicants must be full-time undergraduates, usually between their junior and senior year and should have a 3.0 grade point average. Those with a somewhat lower grade point average who demonstrate an exceptional aptitude and enthusiasm for science as evidenced by grades, letters of recommendation or previous research, may also be selected.

Students who have received previous URP stipends are not eligible for additional stipend support.

Approximately 40 per cent of the students selected by each department will be from colleges other than the University of Minnesota. Applications should be submitted to the project director by April 15.

For further information and application form, contact the appropriate project director. They are Dr. John Ellis, 318 St. Hall, Department of Chemistry and W.L. Garrard, Department of Aerospace Engineering and Mechanics, 107 Aeronautics Building, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455

Management of Minority Emploees Topic of Seminar

A seminar for supervisors and workers from minority groups, particularly Indians and women employees, "Effective Management of Minorities in the Work Force," will begin at 8:30 Thursday, April 15, in Town of the Union.

The day long seminar is designed to help supervisors acquire concepts and techniques which will foster equitable treatment as well as an awareness of values and stereotyping of a minority.

The registration fee is $20. Further information contact Dr. Nankivel, assistant director, Division of Continuing Studies, 237-7014.

Geneticist to Speak

The important role of genes in humans both past and future will be discussed by Dr. Ja. Crow at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, in room 20 of Sudro Hall.

Crow is chairperson of the department of Medical Genetics at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Open to the public at no charge, the talk is entitled "Genetic Heritage and Future."

A research presentation, "Effect of Mutation Fitness," will be delivered by Crow at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, in room 20 of Sudro Hall. Crow's stay on campus is sponsored by the SU Genetics Institute and the Cooperative Sponsorship Committee.

Concordia Presents Swim Show

"Color My World," a synchronized swimming show, will be presented Sunday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Concordia College swimming pool.

The show is open to the public without charge.

Five Courses Offered by Children's Village Family Service

Five new courses in personal growth will be offered this spring by Children's Village Family Service. The courses are held at the agency complex and are open to the general public.

The courses are "Hatha Yoga," "An Experience in Communication," "Living Divorced," "Learn the Art of Story Telling," and "Minnesota Couples Communication Program."

For further information contact Children's Village Family Service at 235-6433.

CASTING: KAREN BLACK · BRUCE DERN · BARBARA HARRIS

House of Blue Leaves features strong acting

By Reed Karaim

"The House of Blue Leaves," being performed at the Little Theatre is not a play of tones. It is a play that energetic and strong performers to succeed. The cast at is vibrant and exciting and may succeed very well.

in a rundown apartment in New York in 1965, the play takes on a day when the Pope is to speak to the United Nations about the war in Vietnam, the central character, is a middle-aged man working at the bank. His dream is to go to Hollywood and become a famous comedian. His mistress, Bunny, encourages him in this endeavor and in many ways believes in it even more deeply than he. Living with her in the apartment is his wife Bananas, who is to be committed when they go to Hollywood.

Bunny's and Billy's dream hindered. Billy, a friend of Artie's from the past who has become a successful movie producer.

The play is a comment on the quality of modern life. Humorous yet at its core serious, it is about those people left behind in the American dream of success who find themselves wrapped up in anyway.

Jim Birdsall as Artie gives a fine performance of the man who is trapped in an insane world with a woman that he does not have the power to fulfill. Birdsall plays the humorous scenes well, yet manages to give strength and dignity to the part. He, along with the rest of the cast, walks the delicate line between pathos and bathos carefully.

Bunny, the blonde with the Bronx accent, is played by Carinda Swann. Although she overplays the accent at the play's beginning, she quickly settles into the part and gives a performance equal in strength to Birdsall's.

The most outstanding performance of the play, however, is given by Martha Keeler in the role of Bananas, the insane wife. Her role calls for her to be alternately humorous, pathetic, tragic and insightful, often all in a single monologue addressed to the audience. She succeeds, yet she does not overact. Bananas remains at all times a believable character.

In the role of Ronnie, Artie's insane son who escapes from the army, Dan Gabbert captivated the audience. Alone on stage, his dramatic portrayal of a madman planning to blow up the Pope sent nervous giggles through the audience.

The rest of the cast in supporting roles give fine performances and do not, as is often the case in amateur plays, weaken the play when onstage.

Carolyn Gillespie, director and Mark Hoffman, assistant director, have given the actors the confidence in their ability which allows them to succeed.

Directed tightly, staged well and with excellent acting the play can still be seen tonight or Saturday night. It is free to SU students with an activity card. This is a bargain I recommend that you do not pass up.

Carinda Swann, Martha Keeler, and Jim Birdsall practice one of the scenes in the LCT play "House of Blue Leaves".

to the editor:

I am afraid that I do not share Mr. Steve Swiontek's evident enthusiasm for the new method of course evaluation outlined in the March 23 issue of the Spectrum.

This method of evaluation, according to your story, "was set up to help deans evaluate a teacher" through the use of confidential reports from a board of six students. This method of evaluation may be of aid to deans, but I seriously doubt that it will do anything to help the other people in the university community who could use course evaluations—teachers and students.

Student evaluation of course is a good and useful exercise, but for it to be meaningful it should be undertaken by all students, in all classes, using standardized evaluation forms and evaluating all teachers.

And the results of these evaluations should be published every quarter. Only in this manner can evaluation be of maximum value to students, faculty and administrators.

I am happy to see a move toward some form of evaluation on this campus, but the sort of secretive, selective, hearsay evidence-passing evaluation by a hand-picked elite which Swiontek outlines will benefit none of us, and is far less than we deserve.

Sincerely yours,
D.B. Danbom

to the editor:

In response to the article written by Mark Bierle on stereo equipment, I think two things should be said: anyone who writes a "buyers guide" to anything, better know all the facts before he writes, and second, those self ordained "experts" like Bierle are usually not aware of how to write an informative article and resort to paraphrased fill from a flier put out by Radio Shack or an advertisement on the back of a National Lampoon.

Many things in the article don't make a great deal, if any sense, but probably the part about power requirements and tuners are the most obvious. Power in an amp does make a difference, contrary to what Bierle leads the reader to believe.

Power isn't necessarily wedded to volume. The more wattage an amp can put out means simply (to skip a complete formula of ratio of power to db increase) that your music sounds better at acceptable listening levels. If Bierle has ever heard of the term "clipping," this is what will occur when driving your amp at one third to half volume when the bassist turns it on, or the drummer lets it crack.

A great power drain occurs in the amp to produce the exact signal coming from the turn-table or recorder. If the amp doesn't have enough "guts," the signal will be only partially reproduced. What you hear is a very sloppy-distorted bass and drums.

Where he gets his figure of 90 per cent of all speakers require 15 watts to drive is beyond me, for he is undoubtedly not aware of the two types of speakers made, high efficiency and low efficiency and what the term "drive" means.

The blurb about tuners was the poorest excuse of the noninformative journalism I have yet to read in the Spectrum. I guess the only response I can give this clod is it's like eating at McDonald's seven days a week because food is food anyway.

Readers, if you want to know a lot about what your buying or just looking at, most reputable stereo dealers, Stereoland in particular, aren't going to shove something off on you you don't need or want. They would rather lose a quick sale rather than take advantage, or "rob" an unsuspecting buyer. Most stores like Stereoland take it as part of its creed that a satisfied customer will work better in spreading its name and sales, than to alienate them with cheap crap. And that an informed buyer will eventually run the junk sellers out of business.

There is an interesting program started by student government which is on a trial basis this week and next called the Escort Service.

In operation, the service provides escorts for those persons who do not wish to walk on campus alone after dark. Some sponsors of the program have intimated that the service is for fraidy cat females who are in the process of fulfilling their roles of frail, weak females.

It is not my position that the programs should be dumped and the two (male) work study students should not be canned at least until the program proves itself to be worthless or at least unnecessary.

Perhaps this is a harsh judgment against the service and sponsors, but it makes me angry when women are portrayed as weak and constantly in need of protection. I believe that student government is trying to provide a service they feel is worthwhile but couldn't as much effort be placed into a program that would help women realize their strengths?

Women should realize that they can be physically strong—strong enough to stave off attackers or smart enough to evade them. I would prefer additional programs that would educate women in matters of self-defense.

Strong is an adjective that is not usually used to describe women, but it is one that women can assume with a great deal of pride.

I know dozens of women who walk to all corners of the campus without fear. They often get other women to walk with them in a kind of informal buddy system or if they walk alone they constantly monitor their surroundings and look for trouble. Other women I know have taken courses in karate and other martial arts and they are aware of their strengths and how to handle attack situations.

There are so many options available to women who wish to protect themselves without relying on a male protection escort service.

I am not trying to deny the fact that crimes against women have occurred on this campus or advocating that women should not avail themselves to all modes of protection but there are ways of protection that are less demanding to our sex. I would like to find these forms of protection that do not rely on men first and use those that do as a last resort.

"Project," is being recorded by seven photographers and two oratory technicians under a $33,000 federal grant through the Local Initiative Program of the Comprehensive Education Training Act (CETA).

Mark Strand, publications editor and photographer, is coordinator of the project which started in March and continues through July 1.

The photographers have been assigned seven or eight counties and will photograph 800 towns and cities and up to 1,000 areas in the state, Strand said.

Pictures will record the main streets of towns, major institutions or distinguishing architectural features of buildings. Photos will be taken of ethnic groups, farm families and events such as community celebrations and stock auctions.

Each county in the state will receive a large photo mural of several pictures and photos of each town will be made available to the State Historical Society in its archives.

The photographers are Jan Dean, Ken Jorgensen, Duane Rude, Todd Strand, Fred Schumacher, Bruce Severy and Jan Anderson. Laboratory technicians are Ken Anderson and Parr Gill.

Gable and Lombard
Cinema 70
By Cheri Beeler

"Gable and Lombard" is the love story between two of Hollywood's greatest lovers—Clark Gable and Carol Lombard. It's also a love story with a different twist in that Gable was married to another woman at the time. This is the very touching and very funny version of their romance. It's certainly the best love story since "Love Story." It's well worth your time and money, especially if you're romantic. After a rather ironic start, in the late 1930s, Gable and Lombard's attraction soon grew into love. Since the public wasn't supposed to find out about their illicit affair, they had to keep making plans to see each other however and whenever they could. The story has tragedy intertwined with its happiness. Ria, Gable's wife, refuses to grant him a divorce, especially after seeing a Hollywood gossip column about the love affair. When Gable is involved in a paternity suit, Lombard testifies that she is Gable's lover. Ria agrees to sign the divorce papers, and soon after Gable and Lombard marry. Clark Gable is very realistically played by James Brolin. His mannerisms, his aloofness, his few words, are all brought out to just the right extent. Jill Clayburgh plays Carol Lombard, the madcap, excitable, and very impulsive comedian. Her performance is outstanding. She has all the attributes of a real heroine, but the average person can identify with her because she acts so natural. The details in this film helped to add to the final effect of the story. From the lights in the film studio to the fads of the day, everything makes the audience to feel as if they are a part of the story. Gable and Lombard were great lovers, but they were also human, which makes their story believable. If you like love stories you'll like this one, and if you don't like love stories, this one will change your mind.

Olympia Brewing Company, Olympia, Washington *OLY*

In a world buffeted by change, consider the unchanging church key. On a fateful day in October, 1919, Mac C. Rosenfeld received Patent #1,260,321 for it. A gleaming symphony of spring steel, the church key was used by three generations of thirsty collegiate Oly drinkers. Not until the twist-top was its utility questioned, although the discriminating Oly drinker will always keep one on hand for tav-Stubbies and Oldtime bottles.

The design of the church key hasn't changed because it was made with skill, ingenuity and simplicity. A great beer doesn't change for many of the same reasons. If it's done right going in, you'll have an unchanging standard of quality. Some things never change. Olympia never will.

Rosters for softball must be turned in today by 5 p.m. If it is not turned in you will not have a softball team this spring. The I-M swimming meet will be held this coming Wednesday at 7:30, it will be open to both men and women.

Weigh-in for the I-M wrestling tournament will be April 21 at 4:30 in the locker room number one.

Anyone interested in playing doubles tennis should submit their team this Monday and will begin playing next week. There will be a meeting Monday at 4:30 p.m. in room 233 of the Union.

SU Thinclads open season against MSU

The SU thinclads move outdoors for their first meet on the new artificial track with a dual meet against cross-town rival Moorhead State.

Field events begin at 3 p.m. with the running events starting at 4 p.m. Bison head track coach Bruce Whiting said he felt the Herd could possibly beat the Dragons. "I feel if they don't run away with a few events we have a chance to get real close, maybe even knock them off," he said.

Another change in outdoor track this year is that all the running events will be run in meters instead of yards. This will be done at the majority of the outdoor meets in the NCC this year, according to Whiting.

Events to watch today will be the middle and long distance races where SU and MS match strength. The javelin, another of the Bison's strong events, will be held now that the Herd is out of doors.

SU Karate Club places first in women's Kata

By Mark Bierle

The SU Karate Club competed this past weekend in the 1976 National Collegiate Karate Championships held in Minneapolis, Minn. and came home with a first place in women's team kata, two third place finishes and a fourth finishes in individual events.

The women's team of Patty Richard and Debbie Corradi won the women's team kata event. Kata competition involves doing a pre-set series of offensive and defensive moves designed to protect one's self from a hypothetical attack. It is a very formal exercise and is judged on speed, power, timing and form.

Gail Sollom competed in both women's kata and women's kumite, placing third in both events. Kumite events are free-sparring events. Dennis Sollom competed in men's individual kata for SU and placed fourth in that event.

The national tournament was sanctioned by both the All-American Karate Association and the Collegiate Karate Union and participants from all over the country took part in the event. SU karate members qualified for the national tournament by placing in the top three in their event in the regional tournament held March 28 at Mankato State.

SU baseball extends winning streak

By Doug Schuch

The SU baseball team extended its winning streak to four games with a sweep over the Valley City Vikings 7 to 2 and 6 to 0, in baseball action Tuesday.

Jim Griesbach led the Bison with his first grand slam home run of the season.

The Bison swept a twin bill from the Moorhead State University Dragons by scores of 11 to 5 and 13 to 8 last Sunday.

In the first game the Bison were lead by shortstop Jim Harris, who hit a grand slam home run, and the pitching of Chuck Evens.

NDSU—11 runs, 11 hits, 0 errors.

Moorhead—5 runs, 8 hits, 2 errors.

errors.

In the second game the Bison were led by the hitting of Jim Harris, who had three hits, and the pitching of Doug Linden.

The win for the Bison was the third win in the four game series.

NDSU—13 runs, 8 hits, 2 errors.

Moorhead—8 runs, 9 hits, 5 errors.
