

Grinaker objects to annual in Senate

Student Senate spent its meeting of the year Sun- night discussing the 1977 annual. Grinaker moved to amend the rules since it isn't on the agenda and suggested the Senate reconsider funding of the annual it approved last spring. He said the Finance Commission [FC] had agreed to fund it $17,000 if it got 2,000 signatures signed up at registration, but only 1,074 signed up and he was trying to save a lot of students a lot of money.

Grinaker didn't think Kathy Williams and her staff could put together a decent annual in the time remaining.

He said he had talked to members of the yearbook staff and told the Senate, "The staff doesn't think the annual will be very good and Kathy Williams, the editor, doesn't have any confidence in herself."

He also added that the fact that they could only get 2,000 students to spend 30 seconds to get their pictures taken free was a pretty good indication of the lack of student support.

Angie Mulkerin, who said she had been doing a lot of soul-searching about the annual and had talked with Williams before the meeting but had not yet made up her mind on whether to continue with the annual, said, "If we have a poor annual, it will kill the concept of an annual at SU for a long time."

She also pointed out that the Board of Student Publications [BOSP] was planning on ordering 3,000 books and if only 2,000 people had their pictures taken, "no one will buy an annual who doesn't have his picture in it."

Doug Schuch asked, "Since only a thousand people signed up for the annual, what are they going to do with the other two thousand books?"

Rick Bellis answered, "It'll be just like in high school—very few signed up for an annual, but once they're out, everyone rushes down to get one."

Brad Lewis, who was editor of his high school yearbook, agreed with Bellis.

While some of the discussion concerned itself with the time involved in putting out a quality annual, the money involved and the amount of student support, much of the discussion centered on the question of what kind of quality could be expected in the annual.

Most of this took the form of questioning the competency and attitude of the staff. The student government secretary, Kathy Dean, who said she is very much in favor of the annual, said that after listening to the staff taking pictures all week, she is not too sure they can do a good job.

John Hanson, who will take over as BOSP chairman in January, said, "The staff is very enthusiastic about working on the yearbook and very concerned about quality."

John Strand said, "We shouldn't be debating quality." He said the Senate had decided the question of the annual last spring and had approved it when it approved the funding and would look pretty silly now if it decided to change its mind.

Mulkerin said the Senate should be debating quality, saying that she worked on the yearbook in high school and said, "We always thought it was going to be fantastic but somehow it turned out fair. If you go in thinking it's going to be mediocre, you can't expect much out of it."

Bellis supported the annual as great advertising for SU

Johnson said he was surprised to win the award, and added, "I thought there must be a lot of people doing a much better job than I am."

Johnson, 48, has been teaching at SU for 20 years. He received both his bachelor's and master's degree from SU.

Johnson teaches Introduction to Animal Science 104 and Swine Production. He added that about 30 percent of his job is in research dealing with swine nutrition, production, and management.

Polling locations for elections

The four polling places for tomorrow's election will be located in both the West and Residence Dining Centers, Minard Hall and the Union and will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Any student may vote at any polling place; however, voting officials will be stamping activity cards to make sure people don't vote at more than one polling place. Part-time students without activity cards may use their fee payment receipt.

Each ballot has space at the bottom to write in the name of anyone you wish to vote for whose name is not listed on the ballot.

In addition to voting for senators from your residential area and academic college, you may also vote for representatives to the Board of Campus Attractions, the Board of Student Publications and, of course, President and Vice-president.

Any complaint about any candidate's campaign, such as having posters up on election day, or any voting fraud must be written and handed in at the student government office by 5:30 tomorrow.

Vote Wednesday For Student Senate

Burgum to head NCC Student Association

Student President Doug Burgum was elected unanimously as president of the newly-formed Council of North Central Conference [NCC] Student Association at a meeting of NCC presidents Friday at Brookings, S.D.

The Council, which will consist of the student president and one other student representative from each school in the NCC, was started to form a permanent organization to provide student input to the NCC," Burgum.

The group's constitution was passed unanimously by the six schools in attendance: NDSU, UND, SDSU, Morningside and Westana were at the meeting with the University of Northern Iowa and the University of Nebraska at Omaha absent.

Burgum explained that, all together, the student governments of the eight schools contribute over one million dollars to intercollegiate athletics while "all the decisions regarding the NCC are made by the faculty representatives. We hope to provide some student input to these faculty reps meetings—we want to represent the students' views."

"The Council has a very strong potential for increasing the students' voice in what happens to their money," he added.

Burgum stressed that the Council was dedicated to preservation of the NCC and didn't want to be painted as an organization "out to get the NCC—they can be very defensive."

College of Agriculture honor system up for revision in student election

BY Becky Tescher

The honor system, a method of self-government for the students in the college of Agriculture, is up for revision in the upcoming student elections.

The system was set up by the student government in the fall of 1955 and was then studied by a committee of faculty and students and found to be acceptable. That same fall the students in the College of Agriculture voted to establish the honor system in their college for a one year trial period. At the end of the trial period the students voted to continue using the honor system.

Amendments have been made every four years to decide whether or not to continue this system. The issue comes up again in the student elections Wednesday.

It will only be voted on by students who are members of the College of Agriculture.

The honor system operates on the assumption that a large majority of students are honest and enjoy working in a situation where their honesty and the honesty of others is not at question. Its intent is to prevent and stop cheating and to punish those who are caught cheating.

The operation of this system is under the direction of the Alpha Zeta honor fraternity. This fraternity sets up a commission consisting of eight undergraduate students and one graduate student enrolled in the College of Agriculture. The honor system commission's duties are to handle cases reported to them. They investigate the cases and interview the witnesses and the accused at different times. They then review the case and reach a decision as to whether cheating did or didn't take place.

The commission tries to handle each case fairly and to base each penalty on the individual merits and on extent and nature of the violation. Recommended penalties may be failure in the course, disciplinary warning, disciplinary prohibition, suspension, or expulsion. The student is not allowed to drop the course.

The honor system is only enforced in the College of Agriculture. A student registered in another college but taking a class in the college of Agriculture is expected to uphold the rules and regulations of the honor system.

During a typical examination in the College of Agriculture the instructor passes out the examination and goes over the test or answers any question that may come up about the test. He may or may not leave the room. If he remains it is for the purpose of interpretation and not to supervise the students taking the exam.

The honor pledge, stating that the student has neither given nor received aid in the writing of the examination, is signed by each student at the end of the examination and the papers are returned to the instructor.

Instructors are asked by Alpha Zeta not to accept examinations that do not have the honor pledge signed.

A referendum may be called for on the retention or modification of the honor system by a petition to the student government signed by 25 percent of the students in the College of Agriculture.

ACU-I tourneys completed

The competitive spirit of SU students was on exhibition last week. The Association of College Unions-International sponsored chess, billiards, foosball, ping-pong, and men's and women's bowling tournaments for all eligible SU students.

To be eligible, students must have been full-time fall quarter with passing grades and be currently enrolled maintaining the same status.

Jim Hubred, Union games area manager, was in charge of the competitions. He said there was an unusual outcome in the chess tournament—a three way tie.

To resolve the tie the three students, Abe Thompson, Mark Geiszler and Alan Phipps, will play a "Double Round Robin," all playing each other two games alternating white and black pieces.

In foosball Brad Harman and Doug Van Watermolen came from behind in the double elimination tournament to win. The foosball tournament was organized by Eric Engler.

Qualifying winners of all the competitions will go to St. Cloud to compete in the four state-wide regional tournaments, Hubred said. Winners at St. Cloud will go to the national tournaments.

The winners of the competitions are:

Chess—not resolved

Billiards—Kirk Miller, Norlyn Schmidt [Alt.]

Foosball—[Team] Brad Harman, Doug Van Watermolen

Ping-Pong—Mark Saunders; Fasil Tegene [Alt.]

Men's Bowling—Larry Borman, Bill Reading, Glen Moen, Doug Gullekson, Mark Mosbrucker, Doug Madsen, Lynn Holbrook, Bill Groover, Dan Berg, Brian Hietkamp. [Top five go to St. Cloud]

Women's Bowling—Diane Schommer, Kara Schwartz, Vikie Carlson, Sue Greene, Debby Lees; Tami Rieth [Alt.]

The motion was defeated unanimously.

Mulkerin then asked that a special meeting of the Senate be held this week with BOSP and the annual staff present to answer the Senate's questions.

Most of the senators were against this as it is a busy week for most and half of them are in the midst of a campaign.

Burgum pointed out that BOSP was coming before FC this week with its yearbook budget and that FC has always done a good job in the past of scrutinizing any organization asking for money and that he was sure FC would question both the quality of the yearbook and the staff.

Even Grinaker agreed he would rather trust FC.

Jim Johnson put the cap on the discussion when he reminded the Senate that any additional funds for the annual must come out of the Contingency Fund and the Senate must approve all Contingency Fund requests;

therefore, even if FC approves additional funding, the Senate can disapprove it.

In other action the Senate voted unanimously to make SU a member of the Council of North Central Conference [NCC] Student Associations.

Burgum told the Senate in his President's Report of his Friday meeting in Brookings, S.D., in which the Council was formed "to provide student input into the NCC and to preserve the Conference", and that he was elected its president.

Also in his report Burgum reported on last Monday's meeting of the Executive Committee of the University Senate in which they discussed Saturday finals and the lack of a Reading Day.

Burgum explained that when the University Senate met last year it elected to choose a school calendar that started after Labor Day and ended before Memorial Day. He said this could only be done by taking days out of Thanksgiving vacation and Spring Break or having finals because "it goes out to places we aren't even aware of. I think the yearbook will have a more lasting effect than a lot of the other things we've funded."

Many of the senators did not want to take any action on the annual without hearing the other side and expressed disappointment that Williams wasn't present.

Grinaker said he had asked her to be present at the meeting but said she was at a sorority Christmas party.

He moved that a committee of unbiased persons be formed to check into the annual and report back to the Senate but Cal Thorson, another BOSP member, nipped this effort in the bud.

Thorson protested, "If you are going to set up a committee, what's the point of BOSP? Why not have a committee of the Senate run all student publications?"

Student President Doug Burgum said, "BOSP is there to handle problems and act as publisher."

STUDENT SENATE

by Rick Bellis

If you think this election tomorrow is just another fill-in-the-blank affair, forget it. There are issues, motives, and concepts at stake. The most important is the amendment for election date change. The idea is not to blow your mind with more needless paper or sneak something by. I'll put it to you, simple and straight-academic members of Student Senate, Board of Campus Attractions, and Board of Student Publications will be elected in the spring quarter and residential senators will be elected in the fall quarter. The logic is simple. If you are elected in May, you are not going into a mass of involved issues that have evolved during the year, of which you have no knowledge, and of which you miraculously expected to make intelligent decisions on. Instead you can use the summer to educate yourself to the terms of last year, and plan what issues are important to you in the coming year. In addition, you will not be faced with the problem of running a residential area and losing your seat when you return to school simply because you've moved. Senate and other Boards will not be troubled with the old "Who will still going to be here next week" crisis. Other advantages will include giving students a full year to become acquainted with the people and problems they represent in the operations of the positions they intend to run for. Those who are persistent can lose the first election in May and still run again in the fall for another office they feel qualified for. You get a better chance to participate in your government, and your government gets a full year to work for you.

Snowflakes' make unique gifts

by Ron Harter

How to build a snowflake! Don't get tied up in interpreting the construction of a snowflake; instead, do macrame. Skills house did just that; interested persons to macrame snowflakes Thursday evening in the 4-H Conference Room. Snowflakes make good Christmas decorations and directions for making pretty snowflakes and variation in the art of tying are prepared the class for painstaking effort; strings were labored over eventually the snowflakes were all tied up. If you're familiar with macrame and know the knots, read on to produce your very own snowflakes. Then, if you're adventurous, you can make the gnomes in the sky, it is said make these snowflakes all year long to remind us with those long strings. A few materials are needed, only stiff white cord and a 5/8 inch plastic ring. Cut 12 cords 12 inches long, fold them in half and mount them on the plastic ring with a "Lark's Head" knot.

Divide the strands into six groups of four and tie three square knots using the two center cords of the four strings as fillers. When you've done that you should have six points. [Don't feel bad if you don't, I didn't either. Anyway, no two snowflakes look alike.]

Now, form groups of four cords again, using two cords from each adjacent point. Use the filler cords as the knotting cords and the knotting cords as the filler cords in the new groups [confused?]. Tie two square knots in each group [remember, there should be six groups].

Take alternate groups of four cords again and tie one and one-half square knots. [You should have reversed the knotting and filler cords again.] Tie the second half of the second square knot 1/2 inch below the first half of the knot and tie a third square knot below it. Grasp the filler cords and slide the knots up firmly. There should be a loop on either side of the group of knots.

Now trim the strings that are too long and glue the tips to prevent fraying and voila! a snowflake.

FC to fund field trips

by Andre Stephenson

Finance Commission [FC] voted for the first time since spring budgeting to fund field trips, a practice it felt it could not afford last spring when groups requested funding for field trips.

Finance Commissioner Bruce Zavalney said the contingency fund now stands at about $8,000 but that the Commission could not be sure how much of that the annual would ask for.

"I think $10,000 could be transferred to the contingency fund with no problem," he said. The money would come from the slush fund, which is larger than expected last spring because of the unpredicted larger enrollment.

At its meeting Tuesday, FC made the following grants:

IEEE
FC gave the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers $500 for a field trip to Chicago for about 30 members. The club had requested $550 but the Commission cut out office expenses.

LCT

The Little Country Theatre [LCT]

The Little Country Theatre [LCT] asked for reinstatement of the $500 FC cut from its advertising budget last spring, plus the five per cent across-the-board cut FC also made last spring.

LCT requested the advertising money for an all-out, on-campus advertising campaign to strengthen the presence of LCT in the minds of the students, according to Dr. Tal Russell, who presented the budget. LCT is trying to get greater student participation.

FC granted $500 of the $1,700 request.

Business Club

FC gave Business Club $475 of $1,250 requested for a field trip to Chicago for 33 members.

T & C

The Student Council of the College of Home Economics requested $1,318 for a Textiles and Clothing field trip to Minneapolis for 38 persons. FC granted $300.

Sociology Club

Sociology Club was granted its full request of $500 for a guest speaker, who will speak to the whole student body, and for administrative expenses.

Basketball Cheerleaders

FC gave the full $341 the basketball cheerleaders requested for uniforms and pom-poms. The Commission voted to fund five of seven out-of-town games and gave the cheerleaders $396 of $616 requested for travel expenses.

Student externships provided

Starting winter quarter, 33 fifth-year pharmacy students were assigned preceptor sites as part of the Professional Pharmacy Experience Program.

The program, mandated by the American Council of Pharmaceutical Education, places the student in a retail or hospital pharmacy, a preceptor site, under the guidance and instruction of preceptors who have volunteered their services. Currently there are 90 preceptor sites in North Dakota and 38 in Northwest Minnesota.

The program, under the guidance of Kenneth Crahan, SU Director of Externship, says "We wanted to structure experience more beneficial to the student before graduation and internship." The pilot program initiated last spring quarter placed 20 students in positions on a voluntary basis.

The College of Pharmacy

has changed its curriculum to make it a course requirement prior to graduation. The student earns 12 academic credits in the 10-week program, and earns 400 hours towards the 1,500 required for license by the state.

"During this time," Crahan pointed out, "we make three evaluations monitored by the faculty periodically." The preceptor then has the responsibility to teach the student current procedures in prescription practices and pharmacy management.

Most of the evaluations of the 1975 spring externship were positive, except for one basic negative response because they received no pay for their services. "Realistically," says Crahan, "the student is more apt to like it if he is paid. However, the students were enthusiastic with the program and the preceptors themselves were pleased."

Kerry Bibow, after externing one week at St. Luke's Hospital in Fargo says, "The program shows us alternate aspects of the pharmacy field that we aren't specializing in." She added, "The preceptors are really fired up about helping us, and the close monitoring keeps us from scrubbing floors that happens sometimes when interning."

Pratt Named Chairman

A new chairman of the Agricultural Engineering Department has been named. SU Dr. George L. Pratt will succeed W.J. Promersberger as department chairman effective July 1, 1977.

The NDSU Art Gallery is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Coalition uncontrollable monopoly

The development of the Student's Coalition is troubling many students who know what is happening behind the doors of the student government office. Starting as a close group of candidates pooling funds for advertising for the upcoming election, the Coalition has become an uncontrolled monopoly.

Most of the students involved are getting their money's worth, but not for the advertising. The Coalition is tying its members together in a mutual support effort that is attempting to drag some inferior candidates in on the coattails of a few good senators such as Rick Bellis, Kris Tollefson, Parliamentarian Jim Johnson, and Vice President John Strand.

The method used in screening and selecting candidates to run with the Coalition gives no guarantees as to whether the candidates would help or hurt the Senate. The only qualification for those running is the ability to pay $10 to cover advertising. There are senators who have accomplished nothing in their terms, candidates running for the ego trip or resume reference of being a senator, and quite a few that were talked into running just to fill a vacancy on the Coalition ticket.

You may have noticed that the slate is running with few conflicts. By shifting candidates around it was easy to avoid conflicts within the party that would pit poor against good candidates. I am especially concerned with the push they are giving to oppose candidates who have refused to run with the Coalition. Putting priority on getting their members in the Senate rather than getting the best students in the Senate puts a new twist on their platform statement "What is of concern is our future." I wonder which "our," the students' or Coalition members comes first in their minds?

Candidates should be running on the issues, and if not that, at least on individual personality and intelligence. To support a candidate because he agrees with the politically obvious statements (like we need a good Senate) that make up the Coalition's platform seems somewhat ridiculous.

The idea of creating a unified party within the Senate has merit if you're hungry for power. Perhaps the leadership core that is developing within the Coalition under Johnson will be an effective political force, but I'd rather see leadership developing in response to the students' interests instead of coalition prejudices.

Mulkerin and Schatz

During the last two weeks we have tried to come to you and discuss our platform. We had the opportunity to talk about the issues and what we intend to do if elected.

First, we have said that we will listen. While this may sound like a cliché used by candidates for office, we have concrete proposals to accomplish this goal.

In writing an article in the Spectrum about what the executive office is doing, making regular appearances at the centers and distributing flyers through the Congress organizations, we will have communication between the executive office and the students. We will do more than just open the office door to anyone who wants to come. We will come back to the students to listen to their comments.

What we intend to do more than just listen; we will act. In our platform we have listed what we plan to do. We could do nothing and then do nothing when elected. We have specific proposals because we want to get things done.

The offices of President and Vice President have different responsibilities, so we would like to discuss our qualifications.

Ken Schatz, Vice President of Reedson, I have had the opportunity to work with students on campus and understand their needs. In the past year we worked at increasing communication between the residents of the dorm, improving government and dorm

If elected Vice-President, my major duty would be to oversee the Student Senate. Although I was not a Senator last year, I do understand how the Senate operates. I can offer a new perspective on how the Senate can be improved. Any Senator could have offered legislation to improve the Senate last year. I have new ideas about what should be done. Criteria should be established regarding Senators' attendance at committee meetings and Faculty Senate meetings. Any Senator who misses more than two Student Senate meetings without justification should be removed from the Senate. Files should be created on all Senators so that their constituents can evaluate their performance. These are just a few of the ideas I would like to use to improve the Senate.

Angela Mulkerin

My experience as Vice-Chairman of the Senate for the past year has given me a thorough understanding of the executive office. I feel that this knowledge would enable me to get to work immediately.

I have initiated action on some of the items on my platform. Now, I would like the opportunity, as President, to work for the students at SU.

Last year in the Senate I introduced legislation on the traffic problem, the campus plan, the senatorial assistants program, the location of the new Animal Science building and several other issues. I also have worked on committees dealing with the campus plan, teacher evaluation and student representation on Faculty Senate myself. As for the new staff, well, Del, you have got your work cut out, but I know C.A. will have another good year. I wish all of you of the new staff all the luck, and I know you will be a success! Thanks again, C.A. staff, for what you have done for me, and I'll be looking in on you next spring!

I have worked on many things in the past but there are many things that have not been done. What I would like to do is listed in my platform. Budgeting, the legislative session and improvements on campus will require action. I believe that I have the experience and ideas to handle these tasks.

We regret that we have not had the opportunity to talk to all of you in the last two weeks. We hope that you have read our platform. We offer both experience and innovation as President and Vice-President. We would sincerely appreciate your support tomorrow at the polls.

The legislature will be in session after the first of the year and the Senate is trying to get organized. The Senate is making its majority of Republicans felt in some rather upsetting committee appointments.

The majority party in the Senate, which in this session is the Republican party, is responsible for all appointments to committees. The Republicans have chosen to make appointments on the basis of party rather than qualifications. The Education Committee would be best served by those people qualified to deal with education issues.

There are people qualified to serve on these committees such as teachers and educators who were elected to their seats. The Republicans refused to appoint even one educator or teacher to the Education Committee. To me this shows a lack of effective leadership and responsibility. We elect these people to do the best job for our state and I don't think actions like this warrant our trust.

Sen. Bonnie Miller, D-Bismarck, did not get her preferred committee appointment to the Education Committee. She is a teacher and should be serving on a committee where her knowledge would do some good. But instead the Republicans chose not to appoint her to a committee where she will be effective. Is this not a reversal of the way things should be done? It seems to me people should be appointed to something where they will do the best job, not to something they know nothing about.

Republicans seem to be taking the attitude that "we" have the power in the Senate and let's keep it that way, even if qualified members of the other party are around. This appears to be a pretty childish way to handle the decision-making process. It seems to me the Republicans are more interested in revenge than in efficient and competent appointments.

Burgum and Harms

We have developed our campaign for Student Body President and Vice President around a few key areas being people, policy, and progress. We feel that our strength in these areas will enable us to do the best job possible for you. Here are just a few notes about ourselves, our records, and our plans.

PEOPLE

I am very optimistic about the potential of student government in the next five months. I have learned a lot in this past year and I am confident that I am better prepared than ever to serve your needs. - Doug Burgum

I've been in the Senate for a year now, and I've seen it come a long way in terms of cohesiveness and effectiveness, but there is still room for improvement. I've got some fresh ideas about guiding the Senate and I'm ready to work. - Bob Harms

POLICY

No organization can function without an active and responsible membership. I plan to see to it that each and every Senator lives up to his/her commitment of elected office. - Bob Harms

I wouldn't feel very comfortable running for reelection if the record of student government wouldn't be campaigning for me. In the past year some of the new programs of student government have included the on-campus escort service, the liaison to the Dean's Committee, the Student Advocate Program, and the Congress of Organizations. Student government action has included the ban on car towing, the increase in campus lighting, a bigger spring blast, and the support of the campus plan. - Doug Burgum

PROGRESS

We both feel that we have a fired-up bunch of people running for the Senate and they will need a direction early in the year. With our experienced leadership, the Senate would be able to realize its full potential. Another aspect of this race is that of the importance of continuity in student government especially during a legislative year. The Student Senate's proposed amendment to move the election date clearly shows that they realize the problems that a new executive branch has when trying to pick things up in the middle of the year. We offer you an academic year of service without six weeks lost due to the transition of executives.

Please give us your support tomorrow. We won't let you down!

Doug Burgum
Bob Harms

Campus Attractions

As has been a good year for Campus Attractions and I'd like to thank all the members of our staff, all those "other" people who work so hard for our secretary Emma, and lastly Mr. Blain who has been about the organization an adviser really doesn't know. With what these people have done through the year I know that my first year as C.A. president has been worthwhile and a valuable experience for

Agriculture

My name is Barry Bjornson and I'm running for the Agriculture seat on Student Senate. I'm a sophomore in Agricultural Education, a member of FarmHouse Fraternity, FFA and the Mech. Ag. Club.

I want to increase the organization within the College of Agriculture by such means as having a calendar of Ag. events and publicizing upcoming events.

I will support the honors system if it is reinstated and will work to make the honor system effective.

We need to revise the teacher and course evaluations to provide feedback for students during registration.

I support the re-establishment of a reading day before finals.

I support the formation of a Congress of Organizations to provide a check on the Senate by those involved in organizations.

Barry Bjornson

Dennis Walsh

Hi, I'm Dennis Walsh and I'm a native of Rolette, N.D. and am enrolled as a freshman in Ag. Education and I am also serving as a State FFA Vice-President this year.

My main reason for running is to get involved. I hope to be a member of a Senate that makes things happen as SU continues to grow. I'm in favor of re-establishing Reading Days, eliminating Saturday finals, and developing a plan to eliminate current traffic problems. I'm interested in developing a public relations program for Agriculture to show everybody the world's largest industry in a new perspective.

I'm interested in organizing weekly articles in the Spectrum by both Student Government and the Ag. Clubs to help inform students. I hope to be able to serve you as we work together to make college a

As a sophomore in sociology I am interested in what happens on campus and in student government. If given the opportunity to serve, I feel I would represent fairly all students enrolled in the college of Humanities and Social Sciences. The college in general is not a closely knit group, aware of the issues affecting them--either positive or negative. It needs a representative who will take time to find solutions and make competent decisions. I hope in the upcoming election I may receive your vote and you will have faith I will make the right decisions for you.

Tim Saylor

Dan St. Onge

On the subject of the Varsity Mart, I would like to have a few answers as to why they insist on charging very high prices for books and then buying them back for half of the price that was originally paid for it. I would propose that the senate try to get answers and have people be accountable and answer a few questions.

"Cow college" is how they describe us in Bismarck. They give all the funds that are necessary for the agricultural department, but the art and science funds are secondary. In Grand Forks, they get all they need. I propose that a group of senators go to Bismarck and lobby for us and discuss our needs. As a point of fact the majority of us students are not in the agricultural field. Agriculture is the major industry in N.D. and very important, but don't ignore us in art and science.

Ecker

Running for the senate in the college of agriculture, I am trying to get the students interested in their governmental body, by having fancy letters and listening to the problems and concerns of people.

I am a junior, majoring in agricultural economics from Grandin, N.D., and a member of FarmHouse Fraternity.

The student involvement and the lack of student apathy shown in the full slate of candidates running for student senate really impresses me.

I am one who does not go halfway, but see things through and get results. I would like to get more student support for the different cultural projects, such as Little International, to increase student involvement from other colleges on campus.

Science and Math

James Johnson

My primary concern is for expansion of social science programs. Our university has a well developed agriculture program, unfortunately it has been at the expense of new program development in arts and humanities.

The time has come for student senate to exercise its powers, on behalf of the students. To act for our interests, rather than the administration interests. I'd like to get started, but I need your help. Vote Dec. 15.

Jim Johnson

My name is Don Symington and I am a candidate for the position of Science and Math Senator. I am a five-year student in zoology and there a few things I would like to see done. One of them deals with science laboratories. I would like to see credits given in relation to time spent in the lab. Most lab work is given one credit or is averaged with lecture grades. Some labs I have been in required six hours per week for this one credit where in other departments those same six hours of time could accumulate six credits. In this same area, we need better safety regulations and equipment.

Whoever your candidate is, I urge you to vote in Wednesday's election.

Don Symington

Keith Melby

I would like to continue the push for effective campus plan and try to insure the architecture's accreditation.

Mark Patterson

Architecture

Home Economics

Coleen Larson

With an ability to listen, and a desire to learn and get involved, I am prepared to give my time and talent generously as a senator. Though I have had limited experience in politics, I am running to learn. Thanks for reading this.

This should be a terrific year for Student Senate. I can't believe the number of people actively campaigning for seats the senate once had trouble just filling. I think this is really a step in the right direction. Students should start seeing senate, not as a number of figurehead positions, but as what it was set up to be—a facet for student input. Concerning university planning, programs like the Home Ec Student Advisory System should be encouraged in all colleges. I see this as a chance for students to work with the faculty and have a more active part within the colleges.

I served a term on the Finance Commission where I learned to understand the financial politics of the University. I think my willingness and past experiences will enable me to be an effective representative.

Becky Jones

I am concerned about the image of Home Economics as we strive to improve the quality of life. As a senior majoring in Home Ec Education, I have been actively involved in the college of Home Ec through Home Ec Council serving past offices of Vice-president and secretary, the past president of AHEA (American Home Ec Association) and student advisor. I have received such honors as Libra, and Phi U, an honorary Home Ec Fraternity.

I feel this involvement makes me aware of the situations and problems of the college of Home Ec in relation to the rest of the university. I know I can get things accomplished as Home Ec student senator, and would do a good job because of this involvement.

As a senator, I would also see that a more effective teacher evaluation is initiated.

Marilyn Loeffelbein

Terry Krohn

If elected to the senate I promise there will be no more 7:30 classes or finals on Saturdays. Instead, I promise we will have 6:30 classes and Sunday finals.

Seriously speaking, I cannot and will not claim to have every answer to the problems confronting the students at SU. What I will promise is that I will be involved in the Senate, consult with my fellow pharmacy students on issues, and be a true representative of the College of Pharmacy.

Pharmacy

University Studies

Gary G Grinaker

It's impossible to represent all University Studies students, so I'll do what I think is right and promise nothing more.

I oppose attempts to make SU a sluff college through eighth week pass/fail and lowered tuition. Most presidential appointments haven't done a thing this year and I'll vote to remove them from office.

The new and innocent Senate of next year doesn't have six months to get in gear; it needs men with experience in working with administrators, faculty and students.

I won't waste my time at unneeded meetings, even Senate meetings.

Important issues will receive my attention and no time will be wasted on trivial matters brought up by tongue-flapping politicians.

My record demonstrates strong effort to communicate with the students. You deserve to know what's going on.

Grad School

Richard Baba is my name and I am a candidate for the Student Senate from the graduate school. As a second quarter student in the counseling and guidance program, I feel that I have the ability to be in touch with the problems both academic and social, that affect the student. I wish to represent the graduate division and will strive to provide the voice in student government that the Senate position will afford me.

Richard Baba

My name is Stu Bailey and I am campaigning for the office of student senator from Reed-Johnson Halls and am a sophomore majoring in architecture from St. Cloud, Minn.

I am running for student senate not only because I feel I can do something, but also because I feel something needs to be done. Student Senate is an important beginning point for student needs because this is the first place where student needs are expressed. Currently, there are a few important needs of the student that are not being dealt with, among these, a new library and fine arts center, and the current traffic situation. I do not believe it is wise however, to dwell only on two issues, when many, many more exist. With your help, I will, along with the other members of Student Senate, be able to deal with all of the issues.

Stu Bailey

John Muir

My name is John Muir. I'm running for the Senate from the High Rises. In relation to the High Rises, I believe guest hours should be extended, students should have more input into planning menus in the dining center, and the possibility of installing electrical outlets for our parking lot should be looked into.

The construction of a new library and music building should be one of the Senate's first priorities. In addition money should be allocated to the Music Listening Lounge in order to develop a growing music library for SU.

Did you know married students attending SU comprise one-seventh of all the students on campus? Being of such a large group of people I feel that more representation is needed. Being Mayor of married students has given me the knowledge of problems facing the married student. It is time that you were heard more. As a married student you know all the red tape and long time it takes to get a change on or off campus. So on Dec. 15th vote for changes, vote for Dennis Markuson. If you have questions or concerns give me a call. 235-0352.

Dennis Markuson

Kris Tollefson

To all those off-campus—How would you like more parking space on campus or closer to campus? Parking ramps are a possibility.

How about a student-run rental housing agency? This group would gather the information on the apartments, etc. available and rate them accordingly. The list would then be compiled and made available to students looking for a place to live, ending the 2-3 week summer search for a place to live.

I'm Kris Tollefson, and am running for Off-Campus senator. I'd like to support and represent you. I will appreciate your support tomorrow!

Married Students

I am running for Married Student Senator. The reasons why I have decided to become a candidate are twofold. Firstly, I have been actively involved with promoting married Students Association last year. Second, I believe that a strong representation in the Student Senate, working in conjunction with the Married Student Association, will be able to effect the many changes married students would like to see.

In the past I have worked for a married students community center, the People to People Project, renovation and paving of West Court, expanded Day Care facilities, student consumer protection, awareness of married student health and property insurance needs, and increased married student representation in SU governing bodies.

Jim O'Donnell

I'm Jim O'Donnell. I've served a partial term as off-campus representative for Student Senate and am seeking re-election. I would like to insure against another planning error, like the Ag. Sci. building, by establishing a long range campus plan. I feel the priorities should be a Fine Art Center, including the Music Department, and an improved library. I would also work for re-establishing a Reading Day and eliminating Saturday finals. I would like to see a standardized teacher evaluation available to all students.

I am currently serving on the Student Senate Appointments Committee, Commission of Student Organizations, and on the Traffic Committee. Vote Dec. 15, and Vote for Jim O'Donnell, Off-Campus.

After having been the Vice President of the student body, I have fully realized that an effective Senate is essential in order to achieve a functional student government as a whole. My term of office has left me with many fond memories, much satisfaction, a lot of frustrations, and a dream. My dream is that everything Doug and I strived for won't go down the tubes. I dream that the Senate will continue in its development - gaining cohesion and more easily achieving its goals. I dream that there, some day, will be a Senate that is responsible for its own action, committed to its own goals, and obligated to render service to the students. Lastly, I dream that the executive office can devote its undivided attention to vital areas of concern—rather than functioning as a watchdog over the Senators.

Yes, I do believe in dreams coming true, all this and much more can be accomplished... SUCH IS MY CHARGE.

John Strand

Amenuvor

getting on the senate. I have served on the Legislative Research Traffic Committees. I favor restoration of Day and no Saturday. Several bad traffic situations have arisen this fall and attention. I also hope the new library and buildings get started soon. I also would like to have a strong student voice in the senate. But most of all, I would like to see a working relationship between the senate and the student body. As your Reed-Johnson Senator I will work towards these goals.

Lewis

Duane Lindseth

Because I would be a representative of the High Rise residence halls, I would make the overhaul of the IRHC and other matters related to housing an area of special concern.

With respect to campus-wide affairs, I would work to establish new rules or enforce existing rules concerning the attendance of Senators at Senate and committee meetings.

I would try to extend these rules to other student government organizations, to insure that the people who hold these positions will do their job.

THE COALITION WHOSE PLATFORM IS THAT OF THE STUDENT INDIVIDUAL VOTE

WED., DEC. 15th (8:00 am-5:00 pm) MINARD, DINING CTRS, UNION

lating a new free concert policy, one which will hopefully allow for a more equitable distribution of free tickets.

In the past I have been somewhat disappointed in the sometimes lackluster performance of the NDSU Student Senate. Based on my experience in Student Government, this image is probably caused by a lack of active participation on the part of some of the senators. I am the kind of person who is not afraid to speak out and get involved. I have joined the SCC because I believe that cooperation, participation, and involvement are integral parts of government. I will strive to represent my constituents to the best of my abilities. Thank you, and VOTE tomorrow.

Experience:

1. Chairman Elect of the Board of Student Publications, member of BOSP-2 years.

2. Close contact with Student Body President and Finance Commissioner.

John Hanson

Mark Erdman

Personal contact does not always work, many times persons are afraid to express their views publicly. After being elected to the Senate three times previously, I feel the only way I can adequately represent students would be to represent them on what I feel in my heart is truly an expression of my beliefs for student concerns. My interests are improving the facilities concerning the architecture department, investigating prices of the Varsity Mart and of athletic uniforms, designing a physical education board and working towards all campus traffic fine monies be used to improve campus safety facilities. My purpose is not to undermine students but to accomplish what I feel the students' concerns may be.

Marian Cady Kirk

I am presently one of few freshman senators and am running for an off-campus seat. I know many of the needs and problems confronting off-campus students. Promising things would be unrealistic but I will tell you about some of the things I am working toward: a shuttle bus from the parking lots to the center of campus, a new music building, keeping fees down and a new library. It is my job to find out what the needs and problems of off-campus students are. I do this through personal contact, Spectrum and phone calling. If you want something changed and I haven't contacted you it is up to you to contact me. Call me at home, leaving a message in the Student Government Office. I've got ideas and I want to continue working for you.

C.A. Board

My name is Debbie Grundhauser, I am majoring in Business with an emphasis in Financing. I transferred here from Mary College in Bismarck, so I am fairly new on campus.

This past quarter I became a part of Campus Attractions (CA), serving as Coffeehouse chairperson. Although I was a member of CA for a short time, I have learned what college students want in entertainment, and many people have given me their ideas of what they would like to see in the future, and I want to help make these ideas a reality. Although I'm new on campus, I feel I have new ideas to offer SU students. I would appreciate your help in making them a reality.

Debbie Grundhauser

I believe that I can improve the student input to Campus Attractions and its members. I have not been previously involved in their overall planning and I should be able to provide an objective view of their activities--keeping in mind their purpose, which is to provide quality entertainment and activities for SU students.

To: the students
Students, I need support to get C.A. working effectively for you this year. I've been with C.A. itself for 2 years and my experience will lend itself on my job.

Debbie G. hasn't been with C.A. very long and though she does know some of what C.A. does, she doesn't, however, know it as well as I do.

Mike on the other hand doesn't have any real experience and exposure as to how C.A. works. He has participated in our shows, but that's all he's done.

There are a lot of good concerts and things in the works right now for you students and to do them, C.A. will need your support both right now with me on the board and later when going to the shows that C.A. gets for you. So let's get out and BOOGIE!!!

Student publications have been in a state of decline for some time now. Part of the reason for this unfortunate situation is due to a series of decisions by BOSP in the past that constitutes a record of mismanagement. I intend to press for greater student interest and power in the management of publication affairs, since they along with advertising income constitute the sole sponsors of student publications. I have been involved with the Spectrum for two years and have some sense of the internal problems, and an understanding of past decisions. I respectfully request your support and vote as a signal that the students of this university desire the full potential of student journalism be strived for at SU.

I sincerely feel that my work to create the Congress of Organizations, guarantee student interests on 12th Ave., are planning and traffic and positions for students in the City, revitalize the Commission of Student Organizations, and make a more effective body and more than justify my election. But work with IFC Liaison, Student Senate, Faculty Senate, Academic Resources Committee, Fargo Office Advisory Board, or as Commissioner of Student Organizations, last term is not justify to you my next year. That I intend to get Tri-Edge Coop involved with discounts at grocery stores and places we really use, or routing bus service through out and places we need it, or student run rental and errand service that rates the quality and saves you the time and money you blew during summer, and keeping accreditation, should!!

As a member of Student Senate over the past quarter, I've done my best to serve campus. To this end, I fight a position on the Vocational Development Committee and as the Senate liaison to the board of Campus Attractions (CA). On Vocational Development, I've begun working with a new evaluation system that has been quietly swept under the rug. Over the next quarter, I would like a chance to form an evaluation system into a meaningful process rather than a tedious exercise in futurity. As for C.A., I worked with the board to help select what would prove to be the best C.A. in years. Next quarter, my job will include formu-

Dinner, music combine for Madrigal program

by Beth Richardson

"How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank! Here we will sit and let the sound of music Creep in our ears. Soft Stillness and the night Become the touches of sweet harmony."

The Merchant of Venice

The fifth annual Madrigal dinner is over and done with, but this is not the end of either the choir or work that was put into the program.

The Union Ballroom was arrayed with pine and holly, Renaissance banners, shields, a stained glass crest, and candles galore. The singers wore brilliantly colored costumes of satin, velvet and lace, hats for the men and tiaras for the women, and intricate medallions around the men's necks.

The dinner consisted of a Wassail toast, roast prime rib [au jus], oven-browned potatoes, peas with water chestnuts, various fruits and flaming pudding, served by waitresses in medieval costuming.

And one mustn't forget the music. The songs, both madrigal style and originals by Dr. Edwin Fissinger, chairman of the Music Department, gave the evening a total air of Elizabethan Christmas spirit.

Only a great deal of preparation could make an event come off so effectively. For the past five years, the Madrigal choir has been accumulating costumes and decorations for the annual concert.

The work has finally paid off. This was the first year that the choir didn't have to stay up late nights before the program doing last minute details on the physical structure of the show.

Fissinger said that they make it a point to add something new every year. This year a stained glass crest was made by the Art Department, plus medallions for the men and tiaras for the women.

Fissinger added that a great deal of organization goes into the final product. "I have to be involved in every aspect, making physical arrangements, sending out announcements, organizing ticket sales, and many other things."

The work for the show really starts immediately after the previous year's show is over. Fissinger says that he likes to sit down with some of the choir members after the program and really think about what can be done to improve it, visually, musically and dramatically.

The next work comes in the summer, when Fissinger starts to write the new music for the procession before the dinner. He said that he doesn't mind all the work that eventually goes into it, and added, "It's my baby."

Then arrangements must be made. The Art Department works with Fissinger to produce a new Boar's head, new benches, and the extra things Fissinger has added for this year's show.

The Home Economics Department also helps out a great deal. The Madrigals originally got their costumes as part of a major project by a Textiles and Clothing student who had been in the choir for five years. Since then, the Home Economics Department has continued its support, and makes new costumes every year to supplement the Madrigals' wardrobe.

Gladys Eisinger, manager of the Union Food Service, prepares the menu for the dinner, attempting to recreate a Renaissance feast.

The students start practicing for the concert the first week of school, and rehearse once a week until a week before the concert. Then some intense rehearsing begins, with practices every night lasting three to four hours.

The choir is also responsible for setting up all the decorations, which requires a bit of extra time.

The dinner and concert tickets are only $8.50, which, according to Fissinger, doesn't even cover the cost of the production.

"We don't break even," he said, "but that isn't the idea. This is the Music Department's contribution to the Christmas spirit on campus."

But now it's over, and the thoughts of the next year's concert are giving way to other priorities. The Madrigal choir will continue its work, however, performing in the Christmas program, and later on tour.

Dear Susie,

Dear Susie,

What would you suggest as a means of eliminating a pesty visitor who is continuously in our room? This person is very lonely and has nothing to talk about and is also a compulsive starrer. She walks up and down past our door, just waiting to be invited in.

Please rescue me before my roommate gouges out this persons eyes.

Signed,

13 Desperate Women

P.S. Please print this as soon as possible!

Dear Desperate Women,

I'm sorry your letter wasn't printed sooner. If your situation is still the same [or you haven't done in this pest] either let her pace outside your door until she gives up, or lay the truth on her. Tell her that her staring is driving you crackers. Maybe she doesn't realize she does it. Ask her why she's so quiet, be more understanding and friendly OR tell her to go away. No one benefits from a friendship like that...speak up!

Susie

Dear Flusy Thusy,

My problem began in September. I came to SU and trim 125 pounds and now in December is coming up. I've noticed that my weight has shot up to 145. I was under the assumption that I would eat a little bit everything from the food service menu that my diet would be complete with health and nutritious food so I would be saved from malnutrition. After being Connie Coed and Kari cheerleader in high school—I'm not used to being obese. Help me, I'm at my wits end—and still on contract.

Signed,

Thunder Thigh Thighs

Dear Thunder Thighs,

Common sense should tell you eating a little of everything from the food service would not be a balanced diet. I suggest the Family Practice Center on campus. Make an appointment with the dietitian and stick with what they tell you. Being 20 pounds overweight is not obese. You should have no trouble losing weight.

Movie review

by Glen Berman

The Next Man—Lark Theatre

Sean Connery stars as a newly appointed Arab leader following the murder of his predecessor in this film involving foreign intrigue.

To the dismay of fellow Arab leaders, he addresses the United Nations with proposals of outright peace with Israel, which makes him a marked man.

Cornelia Sharpe is good as the beautiful, rich woman of the world who is also a hit "man" with Connery being her current assignment.

The major acting flaw of "The Next Man" is Connery's inability to keep a constant accent throughout the film. There is a lot of blood and the story is somewhat far-fetched. As a whole the movie is just average.

Return of a Man Called Horse—Safari II

The sequel to "A Man Called Horse" again stars Richard Harris as the English nobleman who lives with and became a member of a North American Indian tribe.

Back in England, he realizes he must go back to Indian life, but on his return he finds that the tribe has lost its power and will.

The entire gory ritual from the original film is repeated in this film and it's pretty sickening.

The scenery and cinematography is beautiful, but the plot that has Harris returning and giving the tribe their pride and strength back is implausible.

Plains Art Museum Gift Shop offers new Christmas presents

by Beth Richardson
 's Christmas—and the rush of shopping for presents has begun.

At this year there's a new shop and a new kind of present for the people of Moorhead.

The lobby of the Red River Art Center in Moorhead has been taken over by the Plains Art Museum Gift Shop in an effort to give people a chance to buy small art works as Christmas gifts.

At Votava, a staff member of the gift shop, explained what the gallery is trying to accomplish.

"We want to get people accustomed to giving art as a gift item," she said, "to incorporate art into Christmas gifts."

"Art is such a gift, a living gift," she added. "It's like giving a part of yourself."

The shop has a wide variety of items, "so you can find a gift for anyone," Votava said.

Indeed, the number of different art works support the idea. They include jewelry, wall hangings, Christmas cards, calendars and many other things.

Regional artists supply many pieces of art such as jewelry, jewelry and small paintings.

Mary Ellen, a woman from Minnesota, makes jewelry out of wood, antlers, deer horns, and bark. She finds everything she needs for the jewelry.

Harshal Ferster of Minneapolis makes calendars with interchangeable pictures. If one picture gets old, you can exchange it for another. The pictures can also be framed.

George Pfeifer, an area artist, makes miniature color paintings. He uses a single hair brush to produce minute details in his paintings.

The Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art is also a contributor at the shop, with black coral necklaces, Christmas cards, a paper dog which is available.

One of the most interesting things from the Museum of Modern Art is a book of "Snow White". The book is a series of colorful symbols with an explanation of the symbols at the beginning, unfolding the story of Snow White.

The gift shop also has a variety of unusual items. It has a group of antiques, including a set of cuff-links presented by a Swedish envoy to his American sweetheart in 1930.

Ivory jewelry is another gift, with intricate carvings of dragons on rings.

Others include antique gift tags, a book called "Keat's Porridge", which has recipes of famous poets and poetry to go with it, and T-shirts and sweatshirts with a picture of Santa from Harpers Bazaar printed on it.

A major part of the gift shop is a series of weavings from Ecuador. Hugh Dufnor, a member of the Peace Corps, went to Ecuador to teach the people a marketable trade. They developed the art of weaving, and now he is back in the United States selling the pieces.

The shop was opened for the Christmas season, but it will be continued. On Jan. 23, the shop will add heart items in response to the upcoming Valentine's Day.

James O'Rourke, the director of the galleries, has wanted to open the shop for a long time, according to Votava, but it just now came into being. Now they have great hope to continue the shop and to expand it.

Votava said they were happy with the response to the gift shop. "The people seem really excited about it. They're used to buying cards here, but now they find so many different items."

The gift shop is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Wrestlers defeat Mankato

Bison matmen came home with a successful weekend capturing the Mankato State Open. The team won their first North Central Conference opener and coming the next day to place the champions in the Mankato Open.

Mark Anderson, Martinson and Dalfin captured championship honors at Saturday tournament. Anderson wrestling at 126 lbs. trounced on Ken Johnson of St. Cloud State in the championship match by a 11 to 4. Martinson won a 5 to 4 decision over Tom Tatarek of Mankato for first place honors in the 142 pound class. It was Martinson's second tournament championship of the young season. He also won the top spot at the Bison Open earlier in the season. He nailed Keith Ahm's legs to the mat and came home with the championship in the 190 pound weight class.

Other Bison placers in the tournament were Lon Brew, second at 134; Kevin Andvik, second at 158; Tom Krom, second at 177; Steve Weigel, third at 118; Anthony Puchany, third at 142; Mark Reimnitz, third at 150; and Jim Carruth and Ron Hilgart tied for third place rather than wrestling for the position.

Brew lost the championship match to defending national champion Jack Eustice of Mankato. It was the second time in as many days that Brew had lost to Eustice, being defeated the night before in the SU-Mankato dual. However, Brew showed signs of narrowing the gap on Saturday, losing a close 7 to 4 decision to Eustice. The night before he had been thoroughly beaten 13 to 4.

Friday evening the Bison won their first NCC dual of the season by downing Mankato 24 to 16. The only fall of the evening was registered by matman Kevin Andvik. Andvik put Paul Olsen's shoulders to the mat in 7:53 and was the third winner in a string of six straight for coach Bucky Maughan's grapplers.

The Bison will be at home tomorrow night against St. Cloud State in their first home dual of the season. The match will start at 7:30 in the New Fieldhouse.

The Bison, led by a superlative performance by Bob Nagle, defeated Concordia last Saturday by a score of 87 to 73.

Nagle had 36 points, 22 made in the second half. In the second half Nagle connected on all eleven of his field goal attempts. For the game Nagle connected on 17 of 22 from the field. In addition he led all rebounders with 13 rebounds. In the process Nagle also established 2 fieldhouse records for most points and most field goals in a game. This is also Nagle's career high as a Bison, breaking his previous high of 31 points set against SDSU.

The game was close as the Cobbers played scrappy ball. With 13:36 left in the game the Bison led 55 to 51 and then proceeded to outscore the Cobbers 27 to 9 in a streak that left them ahead 82 to 60.

Nagle got help from junior college transfer George Cheatom with 19 points, and Cliff Bell with 11, as the Bison shot 51.9 percent from the field. The Bison also held a 47 to 35 rebounding edge.

Head coach Marv Skaar said after the game that he had finally found a line-up, implying that Cheatom would now be starting in place of Paul Shogren, who scored only eight points and saw limited action.

The win advanced the Bison record to 4-2 and it was their fourth straight win. For the Cobbers, they dropped their fourth straight game and their record is now 0-4.

Tonight the Bison are at Nevada-Reno and Friday they take on the number five ranked major college team in the nation, Nevada-Las Vegas.

In the 200 individual medley, sophomore Grosskreutz set a new school record swimming a 2:13.8. Swimming coach Wayne Spath felt that "the team did a great job overall, with improvement needed in only a couple events."

The team's next meet will again be with the Sioux January 8 in the New Fieldhouse. Coach Spath expects the team to work hard over vacation, with a good chance of beating the Sioux when the two teams meet again.

Agriculture

Roger Dvergsten
I am running for Student Senate because I have an interest and concern in the student government at NDSU, and even more I am concerned about how students are represented in our government.

As a Senator, I would strive to represent any and all student opinions to the best of my ability. In the up-coming election, I would be very appreciative of your vote and if elected, I would use my greatest initiative to make your student government more effective.

Greek

Cherie Olson
The greek system is a fundamental and active part of SU. I feel their voice should be heard. Serving as Panhellenic Council president and working closely with Interfraternity Council for the past year, I helped greeks have a more united voice, both among themselves and on campus. Because of this I am aware of the systems potentials and needs and would like to express my views in student senate. I would like to see the greeks work more effectively with other organizations and the community, as well as the administration.

Dear Susie,
My problem is our neighbors. They seem to feel party time is every night and they don't get started until midnight. All night long with guitars, drums and a screaming kid. The campus cops have asked them many times to quiet down [we live in University Village]. The next time it happens [the pot is so strong you can smell it in our apartment] we're calling the cops.

Signed,
"Bleary eyed"

Dear Bleary,
You didn't say if you talked to your neighbors yourself. Try that. Also try contacting the people at student housing. If all else fails, call the police. I doubt even that will bring it to an end, however. You can always hope they move...to Siberia maybe?

Susie

Dear Susie,
I am interested in a female with whom I share a chemistry class. Unfortunately, she has a shadow [friend] who follows her wherever she goes. I never have a chance to catch her alone. What am I to do?

Signed,
Perplexed

Dear Perplexed,
Next time you see her, even if her friend is with her, tell her you would like to get together sometime soon for coffee [or whatever] when she has some free time alone. Be specific and honest. I'm sure she and her shadow will understand. Naturally, be tactful and polite, but say just what you mean. Good luck.

Susie

Do you have a problem you're not sure of how to handle or a gripe you need to get off your chest? Write to Dear Susie, THE SPECTRUM, Memorial Union, Fargo, N.D. 58102. You'll feel better for it.
