

Housing ordinances discussed by City Commission Monday

by Angie Mulkerin

The City Commission voted on Monday to consider ordinances on off-street parking, the definition of a dwelling unit and the definition of a family at next Monday's meeting.

The ordinance on off-street parking would prohibit the construction of apartments or the conversion of houses to apartments unless two parking spaces are provided per living room.

The definition of a dwelling unit would include anyplace with living, sleeping and eating facilities.

A family would be limited to no more than three unrelated individuals in a dwelling unit.

Most of the discussion at the meeting was centered around the definitions of a family and a dwelling unit.

Keith Burkholder, the Fargo city planner and a supporter of the ordinances, said, "We must recognize that the definition of the family and the definition of the dwelling unit are inter-related."

"Parts of our town have undergone severe changes so a policy is needed to stop the deterioration," he said.

Several residents from around the campus supported Burkholder's complaints. They said that "students" parked their cars on lawns, let the houses run down, held wild parties and left beer cans all around the house.

City Commissioner Roy Peterson objected to the definitions. He said, "There are many well run boarding houses with students living in them."

"From the standpoint of the city of Fargo I can see complete chaos if we don't take care of our college students," said Peterson.

Peterson put the blame for the problems on some of the landlords rather than on the students. He said, "Ninety-nine per cent of the landlords are good, but three or four cause the problems of overcrowding and off-street parking."

Burkholder went on to explain that these definitions aren't perfect but that they are the only possible solution. He said, "We really postponed doing anything to see if there wasn't a better answer."

Several people including a representative of the F-M Homeowners Association objected to the definitions.

One of the major opponents to the definitions was Rick Bellis, SU Student President.

Bellis said, "This is one of the first times I've agreed with the landlords."

Bellis like Peterson put the blame on some landlords instead of the students.

"It's not the students who let the houses who run down, it's not the renters who don't provide enough parking, it's not the tenants who don't provide adequate garbage facilities," Bellis said.

Bellis added, "Maybe instead of defining dwelling unit and family you should define slum landlord or absentee landlord."

No one wants to see the quality of housing improved more than the student renter. To place these people between the city and the landlord in a city with a housing shortage is a tragic injustice," he continued.

Bellis said that a better answer to the problem would be to enforce the existing codes. He also would like to see an economic study to reveal a feasible solution to the housing shortage.

The Commission will be voting for the first time on the off-street parking and the definitions on Monday. Bellis encouraged any interested students to attend the meeting at City Hall at 7 Monday evening.

Burkholder Ken Paulus melts a patch over a hole in the steamline that lies in the bottom of the trench north of the Union. It is hoped the patched line will continue sending heat to Churchill and the other buildings along University Drive for a few more years before having to be completely replaced. Judge allows limited searches at Civic Auditorium concerts

by Angie Mulkerin

The city has not decided how searches will be conducted at the Ozark Mountain Cardevil concert next Saturday at the Fargo Civic Auditorium. The city will then use a check-in system to search packages and coats that could contain more than eight ounces of liquid.

The city will base its search procedures on a new written policy. Several different search procedures could be used under this policy.

District Court Judge Paul Benson gave the opportunity to try a new search policy at the Civic before ruling on the constitutionality of the system.

Benson decided not to rule on the constitutionality of a search policy that had not been used. Benson did, however, retain jurisdiction of the case. Both parties agreed to go back to court if it is found that the new system is unconstitutional.

The new policy limits searches to "bulky clothing with the outline of a container capable of holding eight ounces" or a "parcel or container capable of concealing or transporting a similar container."

The police previously had a written policy to be used for the searches, but were given verbal instructions on what to search for. The previous system gave more discretion to the police.

Dennis Kaldor, director of the Fargo Civic Auditorium, said "the new policy will be implemented at the November concert."

One alternative open to the auditorium is a check-in policy. This system would have all concert-goers check in their coats and packages before entering the concert.

"Whether we use the check-in policy or not will be discussed before that concert. Judge Benson didn't order us to use a check-in system but he wanted us to try it," Kaldor said.

Student government committee positions open

Applications are now being taken for appointment to about a dozen student government committees.

Student President Rick Bellis needs one person for each of the University Senate committees. These include the Student Affairs, Academic Affairs, Academic Resources, Scheduling and Registration, University Athletics, Educational Development, and Tri-College committees.

In addition, he is looking for three persons for the Commission on Government Relations and Student Services, three for the Student Court, three for the Art Selection Committee, two for the Grade Appeals Board and two for the Health Committee.

Positions are also open on the Finance Commission, the Fine Arts Committee, and the Board of Student Publications.

"I'd really like to see a lot of new people involved in student government this year. Tell your friends—push them up to the student government office and get them to sign up," Bellis told the Student Senate.

All those interested should contact Bellis, Student Vice President Larry Pronovost or secretary Cherie Johnson in the Student Government office on the second floor of the Union.

Olson speaks to College Republicans

Attorney General Allan Olson

by Craig Sinclair

"It's hard to convince a bunch of Georgians about our water needs," said North Dakota's Attorney General Allen Olson when referring to the lack of support for the Garrison Diversion from the present White House administration.

Olson's remark came from a interview prior to his speech at SU's College Republicans meeting on Tuesday evening.

The attorney general felt that energy policies were the main concern in North Dakota and particularly those that dealt with water.

Everybody thinks that we are hell-bent on destroying North Dakota with the Garrison Diversion. What people don't realize is that we are native North Dakotans, whether we be Republicans or Democrats, and that we are concerned about the welfare of this state said the Republican attorney general as he slashed the air with his finger.

Olson maintains that the water project would provide a stable water source as well as suitable habitat for wildlife. Referring to the McClusky canal (a small part of the Diversion which has been completed), he said, "I have seen the pheasants, the grouse and the waterfowl that have utilized this habitat."

The attorney general countered the statistics that 220,000 productive acres will be taken for Garrison to irrigate 250,000 acres by saying, "Irrigated land is four times more productive than unirrigated land."

Soviet doctor talks on human rights

Dr. Mikhail Stern

A Jewish Soviet medical doctor will talk about his struggle for human rights in the courts of the Soviet Union at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1, in Stevens Auditorium.

Dr. Mikhail Stern's talk is titled "Soviet Justice: Guilty until Proven Guilty."

Stern claims to have the transcriptions made from the first tape-recording of a court trial ever to be smuggled out of Russia.

In April, 1974, Stern, a noted endocrinologist in the Ukrainian town of Vinnytsia, was arrested because as he states he would not forbid his adult sons to emigrate to Israel. Stern was convicted and sentenced to eight years in a labor camp.

Jean-Paul Sartre drafted a petition for his release which was signed by more than 50 Nobel Prize winners and published in "Le Monde." Andrei Sakharov wrote President Jimmy Carter asking for the release of Stern and 14 other political prisoners. Protests and demonstrations from throughout the world went essentially unnoticed by the Soviet Union.

But the transcript of the tape recording of Stern's trial ensued in a book, "The Us vs. Dr. Mikhail Stern." Reactions in the book forced the Soviet Union to release Stern after he had served three years of his sentence and allowed him to emigrate.

The city is reluctant to use the check-in policy because they are not sure that it is feasible. They are concerned about the mechanics of running a check-in system because it may cause delays.

The major concern of the city is that the city may be liable for any losses from checked-in material.

"The real problem is not the actual check-in but the liability involved," Kaldor said. The city attorney will have to resolve the question of liability before the check-in policy is used.

If the city does not institute a check-in policy the case will probably be back in court.

Dr. Albert Melone, SU political science professor, was the plaintiff in the case. Melone contends that the searches are in violation of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution which prohibits illegal search and seizures.

"I don't think there is any question about it. We'll go back to court if the check-in policy isn't tried," Melone said. "If perchance Judge Benson rules against us we will actively consider the possibility of going to the Court of Appeals," he added. Judge Benson's decision "gives the city a chance to rectify the problem," according to Malone.

After the city ignores several judicial rulings, Melone decided to become involved in the case.

Initially Judge Davies ruled that the searches were unconstitutional. Then Judge Benson supported this view. Finally Judge Davies issued a temporary injunction to stop searches.

"Three judges told the officials that they were acting in a lawless way," Melone said. "What really bothered me was the obvious disregard of judicial pronouncements," he said.

Melone does not place blame on the police because, he says, "You can expect police to be overzealous in the fact of life." He points his finger at those responsible for restraining the police.

The case is not yet resolved. Whether Melone and the American Civil Liberties Union take the case back to court will depend on how the police decide to implement the new search policy.

Society receives national honor

by John Diepolder

The student section of the Society of Women Engineers (SWE) at SU has received honors regionally and nationally for the degree of participation and for its career guidance program for high school students.

A national conference of SWE student sections was held last July. SU's chapter was named the best of 13 new schools in Region II. The chapter then was selected the best new student section in the nation out of three regional winners from a total of 44 schools competing.

Schools that started the program within the past two years were eligible for the competition. The SU section was started last December. Both the national student conference and national convention were held in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The SU section was given checks of $100 for both the regional and national awards from Union Carbide Corporation. Twenty women presently hold membership in SU's section of the society that is open to students from the F-M colleges through the Tri-College program.

Activities in the area of career guidance and high school recruiting supported through a 76-77 Tri-College University grant of $150 played an important role in winning the awards for SU according to Margaret Pearson, forensic chemist in the SU College of Pharmacy and an associate member and student advisor for the SU society.

Sheila Anderson and Pearson represented SU at the national convention, with expenses funded by the College of Engineering and Architecture.

EDITORIAL

Midterms are those awful inevitabilities that arise when you are living the life of a student. What most of us go through just to pass an exam is known to almost every student or to someone who has been in a student's position.

It's amazing how one little word can mean so many things—late nights of very little sleep, worrying yourself into a large headache or just giving up and saying the heck with it all. Then you decide that you must remember to stay awake in class next time so the notes at least make sense.

There are a few people who don't fit into this but if you can manage a 4.00 without all the hassles of late nights and such you are one of the lucky ones.

It's finally about time for those midterms to be over—at least until that last week of the quarter known as finals week. That's the last chance each professor has to really make an impression on his students. They want to make sure you remember them and to send you off on vacation worried to death if you are going to pass or not.

After four years of getting yourself psyched up for an exam every few weeks and then attempting to enter the "real world" it's not going to be easy to get on an even keel. You won't have to be motivated every three or four weeks and then come back for the next two and then get ready to go through the cycle again. Actually it might be great.

After studying for a test for so long you finally decide that it's only a class and you can probably get through on what you already know. Not so. Some teachers love to make hard tests and they don't have low curves. I've never seen the point to it but obviously it's there somewhere, we just don't see it.

Anyway, exams, papers and all the projects are a fact of college life that seem to be unavoidable. As much as we'd like them to disappear I don't think they will. They say it's the best way to evaluate a student in such a large institution. If I ever had time to stop and evaluate this position maybe a different conclusion will be obvious but now between exams and papers there isn't much time to evaluate anything.

to the editor:

I wish to thank President Loftsgard and every one of the students that took part in our airport emergency exercise on October 17, 1977. Each and every one of these young people should receive some type of commendation medal for the weather they withstood so bravely, and some unfortunately becoming ill. Moreover, for the attitude of which they had toward this exercise, the professional manner they portrayed which made the exercise what it was, and for the service they gave to this community in hopes it will never come to pass, but in the event that it may what they did may save hundreds of lives. Through this exercise we have found that many things need to be changed. We found many things that we are doing right, and we also found some things we have to practice until they become acceptable. I wish to have all these young people know that the Federal Aviation Administration personnel inspecting this exercise stated to me that in all of the emergency exercises that he has seen and critiqued he has never seen the professionalism and seriousness these young people displayed. Likewise, I received the same comments from the attending physicians and nurses of the various hospitals.

I again wish to thank these students and instructors that took part in this exercise, and am only sorry for the weather conditions that evolved on that particular day. Nevertheless, we had a very good learning tool. The fact there were no blankets available, steps are going to be made to have them available for the next exercise and/or emergency.

Sincerely,
James C. Kapitan

Ugh!!$$!!$!!$$!!*
In case you didn't notice that first line, I'm taking my frustrations out in this column. It's been another one of those weeks.

I'm so mad that I'm about ready to report a certain pop machine in the Crows Nest to the State Attorney General's office. Why you say? Because one-armed bandits are illegal.

I thought I was going to be able to salvage the week when I finally got a date (after two years of trying).

When I called her up an hour before I was to pick her up, suddenly her plants were sick and she had to take care of them. Besides, she said, "There's a sink full of dirty dishes."

The beer drinkers of America and especially those (with the overhanging stomachs) on campus, have been making obscene remarks to me. In fact, I've been dodging a few empty beer cans because of my stand against dispensing beer on campus. Maybe I'll go over to my dates house and pretend I'm a dirty dish. Maybe that way I'll get some attention.

Have you ever had problems making a decision?

For instance, when you develop a headache, there's about 21 different choices to make. Should I take the one with the quick relief, long lasting relief, strong relief, mild relief or the candy coated one?

I usually take all of them and instead of the world spinning, it goes black.

Take antiperspirants, for example. I can be under the dome, on top of the dome, or sure. To get the desired effect, however, I usually end up smelling like stagnant pond water.

Heck, until I started watching TV, there was a lot of things that I didn't know were the matter with me. And solving them is as easy as one, two, three.

Panel Rejects Ban on Gas Guzzlers

The Senate-approved ban on gas-guzzlers was rejected Tuesday by the House-Senate conference committee writing up a new energy package.

Some of the members thought the ban on cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon was unnecessary because of a law requiring manufacturers to average 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985.

KKK Watches Border For Illegal Aliens

The 2000-mile-long border with Mexico is being watched by the Ku Klux Klan, a Klan spokesman said Tuesday.

What the group terms a "citizen watch" is looking for

The spokesman said that about 250 members of the white-supremacy group were involved and that they did not intend to make any arrests.

A bill to bring several hundred Americans jailed in Mexico back by Christmas was given final congressional approval when it was passed by the House Tuesday 400 to 15.

The bill affects about 600 Americans held in Mexico, most of whom were convicted of smuggling drugs.

Panel Approves Fuel-Conservation Grants

Grants of up to $800 low-income families to insulate their homes were approved by House-Senate conferees Monday.

Also approved was a $3 million a year, 3-year program to aid schools and hospitals energy conservation.

They also approved a tentative agreement giving the new Energy Department 10 years to issue energy efficiency standards for large home appliances such as conditioners, washers, dryers, dishwashers and water heaters.

If you are interested in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about.

It's called the NUPOC-Collegiate Program (NUPOC is short for Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate), and if you qualify it can pay you as much as $611 a month for the remainder of your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you will receive an additional year of advanced technical education, education that would cost thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. Only one of every six applicants will be selected, and there are fewer than 300 openings. But those who make it find themselves in one of the most elite engineering training programs anywhere. With unequalled hands-on responsibility, a $24,000 salary in four years, plus travel, medical benefits and education opportunities.

Olson also added that both sides of the issue were guilty of distorting the facts and making it impossible to sort out the truth.

He said that he based his pro-Garrison feelings on a 1973 study he did as soon as he was elected to his attorney general post.

Referring to a study on the water project, Olson said that a special committee of the Canadians and the Americans favored Garrison even though they found a few problems with the project.

"When the findings of the special committee were brought before the overriding International Joint Commission, they took a pro-Garrison stand (the IJC was formed as a part of the Boundary Water Treaty of 1909 between the U.S. and Canada). The IJC discusses problems of pollution and other water-related matters that affect both countries).

"I believe, however, that there will be a Garrison Diversion in some way, shape or form. Too much has been invested."

In the question and answer period following a brief speech at the meeting, Olson termed North Dakota Democratic Insurance Commissioner Byron Knutson a disaster."

Olson's remark followed a question as to what he thought about the insurance commissioner and a request by several freshman legislators for the commissioner to take the insurance test.

Olson related the commissioner's reply which was Olson related the commissioner's reply which was that he had passed his test last fall (meaning the election).

"He (Knutson) is completely unfamiliar with the field. The political party should be more responsible in selecting and screening candidates."

Turning to government, Olson wouldn't make any changes in the way North Dakota is run. Although he said he feels there are too many lawyers in local government as well as national government.

SU brings comedy back

The SU Entertainers brought the comedy of Bob and Ray back to life Monday night at the University High School in a program for the elderly. Several short vignettes were presented in a reader's theatre along with several sing-a-longs.

The comedy of Bob and Ray originated in the days of radio and was based on man's struggle to survive his own stupidity.

Situations such as Captain Cambridge urging citizens to make better use of light-buses, Grandpa Witherston and Jasper debating the merits of Tippy, the wonder Dog; Mary McGoon sharing the recipe for her favorite salad; Bernice Cartwheel's reluctance to trade her daughters in for horses; and a trip to colorful Tahiti were the skits presented.

The challenge.

Pool champion displays talent

by Dennis Walsh

As pool balls sprang from unbelievable positions and quickly sank into a pocket, Paul Gerni, three-time world trick shot champion, showed a crowd in the Union recreation room how to be a true champion at the game.

With a display of showmanship, humor, knowledge, and outstanding ability, Gerni amazed a large group of pool buffs assembled for his clinic, Tuesday afternoon.

Gerni, 29, walked slowly around the table, set up another seemingly impossible shot and said, "There is a reason this shot works, it is Newton's third law of motion."

The 23-year veteran of pool playing dazzled the crowd with samples of his 185 trick shots and surprised them with his clean-cut image.

Gerni, the son of a Lutheran Minister, does not drink, smoke, or swear and admits his only vices are little children and cashew nuts.

As a professional in his game, Gerni hopes to change the poor image of pool and help people realize it is the second most popular sport in America, with 38 million participants.

He displayed a new game, "equal offense," that was developed by Jerry Beriseth, a Winona, Minn., native, and explained how the game could help to improve public involvement in pocket billiards in general.

Gerni showed the importance of technique and gave the amateur buffs his tips to becoming a better player.

"When you play the game, try to be comfortable at the table," advised Gerni. "Have the fundamentals down so that you can always revert back to them."

"Treat the game as a joy to play, with a positive attitude toward it," said Gerni explaining how attitude will improve concentration and a player's game in any sport.

Gerni holds a master's degree in consumer psychology from Purdue, and now performs over 300 shows a year, including 42 that are scheduled for November.

This was Gerni's first trip to North Dakota and he added this state to his list of states and numerous countries that he has performed in. He feels that of all audiences, college audiences are the easiest to perform for because he can relate to them and they seem to be very attentive.

"I will continue until the magic runs out," said Gerni as he retired from a day including an afternoon clinic and an evening exhibition of his expertise in the game that he loves.

Saturday's game may determine the next NCC champion

One of the most powerful offensive machines in NCC history meets the league's top offensive unit Saturday in Fargo and the outcome of the battle will go a long way toward determining who will be the champion of the NCC football race in 1977. The vital NCC football clash pits the U of SD Coyotes against the SU Bison.

Women's volleyball team compete in championship

SU's women's volleyball team is ready to charge into action today and tomorrow in the Minn-Kota conference championships after defeating Concordia Tuesday and ending their regular season play.

The tournament starts at 2 p.m. today at the New Field House and continues tomorrow with action at the Old Field House.

The Bison finished third in the regular season standings with five wins and two losses behind Bemidji and Moorhead.

The Bison blend youth and veterans on this year's team with three seniors, three juniors, one sophomore and three freshmen.

Coach Donnie Lauf is handling the coaching duties on an interim basis this year for Judy Ray, who is on a leave of absence to further her education.

Lauf, who participated in athletics at SU from 1972 to 1976, said, "We've been playing well defensively but we have to get more aggressive on offense."

"Our team is quick and also smart when they want to be," Lauf said.

The three seniors on the team are Heidi Bakke, Diane Rettig and Vickie Davidson.

The team is small as far as height goes and we have to make up for it with our quickness, Lauf said. The team averages five-foot sixes.

"If we play well we can beat Bemidji and Moorhead," Lauf said.

The Bison will play the University of Minnesota-Morris in the first round. Minnesota-Morris finished fourth in the conference this year.

Rettig and Autumn Ross, seniors, were Minn-Kota all-conference selections last year.

The other two juniors are Mary Goebel and Jane Bakke. Goebel is a strong offensive player and Brakke is a strong serve.

The only sophomore on the team is Lisa Zwick and she is known as a team player.

The three freshmen are

The 1969 SU football team enjoyed an average of 361.5 yards per game and the 1951 SDSU team scampered for 351 yards per game. Another top effort was turned in in 1975 when the Sioux of UND finished with a 333.1 yards per game performance.

The Bison have rushed for 365 yards and 465 yards respectively in the last two outings and could be on the verge of threatening those lofty performances but they will have to do it against the best defensive unit in the league on Saturday.

"South Dakota is the up-and-coming team in the NCC," said Bison head coach Jim Wacker. "They had an excellent win over a good SDSU team last weekend." The Coyotes stopped the Jacks 15-10 to remain in the running for the league title with a 2-2-0 record.

"As a matter of fact," chimed in offensive line coach Sam Neis, "they not only beat SDSU, but they destroyed them. SDSU got only eight first downs in the game and just three in the second half. And SDSU was one of the best rushing teams in the NCC."

"They change up well defensively and give you many different looks," said Wacker. "Our offensive linemen will have to have their heads in the game for us to move the ball."

While the Bison don't throw the ball that frequently, it may be forced to do so against the NCC's best pass defense. "They play the secondary man-to-man," said Bison offensive backfield coach Don Morton, "and they do a great job. We have not seen a good man-to-man team this season but SDSU does it well, maybe as well as we have seen in a long time."

It all adds up to the fact that the Coyotes are allowing just 233.0 yards per game total offense to the opponents and only 13.5 points per game. The Bison are gaining 440.4 yards per game and scoring at a 38.2 points per game clip in league play. What it means is that something has to give.

Jana Hovey, Lynn Peterson and Deb Beeler. All three freshmen played volleyball at Moorhead High School.

The last time SU won the Minn-Kota Conference tournament was in 1975 and they finished as runner-up in AIAW Region 6 that same year.

IM Women's Football

Women's intramural football is winding up its season with its championship this Saturday. The championship will be played at 10:30 a.m. on the astro turf.

The playoffs were held Wednesday night on the astro turf. The Thundering Thetas played the Kappa Deltas and the Co-op Clowns played the Independents as the top four teams in the league were the teams that participated.

The Thundering Thetas finished first in the season standings with a 5-0 won-lost record.

The Co-op Clowns and the Independents tied for second with 3 wins and 2 losses.

Mary Link, women's intramural director, said, "The teams have shown a lot of cooperation all year long."

There were only two forfeits all year long which shows the women had a lot of enthusiasm, she said.

All the teams, even the losers, displayed good sportsmanship all year.

"We can also be grateful there were no major casualties," she concluded.

The championship game will be refereed by Lynn Dorn, acting women's athletic director, and Tom Krom, student who is involved with intramurals.

SU's athletic barrier broke by woman joining soccer club

by Trina Eitland

One of the new additions to the athletics program is the soccer field which lies south of the New Fieldhouse. The field is the newly named SU Soccer Club. The club itself has a unique feature besides being the best team sport at SU. The predominantly male team prescribes the action with a woman.

What makes a second-year woman a major go out for a male dominated sport? "I got a flyer for Skills Warehouse and saw the thing about soccer," Diane Radtke said. "It said anyone could do it and I thought playing would be fun."

Ms. Radtke, a native from Ellendale, ND, recently broke the barrier in SU athletics by being one of the first women to play on a men's team.

Skills Warehouse teaches the basic fundamentals of soccer. From the workshop, Ms. Radtke went on to join the team.

"A lot of the kids interested in joining the club get started that way," she said. "Others learn it in school."

When asked about the general opinion of how the men feel about her being on the team she answered that she "got a lot of grief" from them. "Now that I'm in it, I feel like one of the guys," Ms. Radtke remarked. "On one of the road trips I overheard a guy say that he was surprised to see a girl playing."

She feels that there isn't any resentment with her being on the team. They (the men) tend to encourage her to do her best and most of all to have fun.

Practicing for the matches consisted of three nights a week out on the field. The group would divide into teams which would pose a problem for Ms. Radtke.

"There was a standing joke on the team. The captains would always look to see what side I was on. Then they would say that my team would be in skins."

The full term is "shirts and skins" meaning that to tell the two teams apart, one would be wearing shirts and the other would not.

"Naturally I didn't take mine off," Ms. Radtke said.

Ms. Radtke feels that soccer will overtake football in popularity. Recently the team held a series of clinics for approximately 250 children from Fargo to teach them the fundamentals of the sport. A soccer little league has now been formed for the kids by the Park Board.

"If we could publicize our own games more, there would be more interest for the sport here on campus."

Ms. Radtke is the only female in the Tri-College circuit to be playing soccer which makes SU's team unusual.

The club has 28 members participating in this year's schedule. They are financed by the Finance Commission which covers their travel expenses and the purchasing of new uniforms.

In the spring, Ms. Radtke will graduate as a registered nurse. She hopes to work in Fargo.

"I'd really like to see more girls come out. Besides, just like the flyer said, anyone can do it."

Buckets, baskets league starts play

Although it may be a little different for most people to be talking about basketball, intramural co-recreational basketball teams have been playing for three weeks.

The co-recreational basketball program consists of two leagues, the buckets league and the baskets league, which are composed of a total of ten teams.

Sigma Chi currently has the most wins of any team with five victories. Each team consists of five players, two men and three women, and each team must have a referee.

Substitutions are allowed for a man for a man and a woman for a woman basis only. Each team is allowed only one time out per half and can take it if they are behind the score at that point.

There are no jump balls in co-recreational basketball. The teams alternate control of the ball at the start of each quarter.

On jump balls during the game, the team last having control of the ball before the tie-up loses possession of the ball.

Some of the special rules in co-recreational basketball are that males can't score more than six straight points not counting free throws and males can't dribble more than five times before passing or shooting.

Other rules are only one man is allowed in the key at any single time and defenses must be woman to woman and man to man.

For men, fieldgoals and free throws count the same as in any basketball game, but for women fieldgoals are worth four points and free throws are worth two points.

Games are played on Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 9 p.m. and Thursday nights at 8 p.m. in the New Fieldhouse.

League standings after 3 weeks of play are:

Buckets League
Sigma Chi	3-0
Sevrinson	2-1
Blazers	1-2
Farmhouse	1-2
Centercourt Hotshots	1-2
Slam Dunks	1-2
Baskets League
Undecided	2-0
Sevrinson No. 2	1-1
Elroy's Raiders	1-2
IDC's	1-1

SU men make their NCC bid at the league title in a cross country meet Saturday at Cedar Falls, Iowa. The 10,000-meter run begins at 11:00 a.m.

The University of Nebraska-Omaha won the NCC title a year ago with 65 points, but runner-up South Dakota State University (67) is expected to regain the honors. The Bison were sixth with 128 points followed by Mankato State University, the University of Northern Iowa, the University of South Dakota, Augustana College, the University of North Dakota, and Morningside College.

SU's top runner is all-American Mike Bollman who placed 10th in the 1976 NCC race. Earlier this season he finished first in the Inter-City meet completing the 10,000-meter course in a clocking of 33:08.

The Bison end their season

November 12 at the NCAA Division II championship Cross Country Championships in Chicago.

The SU Junior Varsity broke a string of 11 consecutive victories by losing to the UND junior varsity 22-21 on Monday.

With 20 seconds remaining, SU recovered a UND fumble on the UND 17 yardline.

On the next play, however, the Bison fumbled.

Top rusher for the Bison was quarterback Mark Rudrud, with 53 net yards.

Rudrud also completed 12 of 27 passes for 161 yards.

Rudrud scored on a 22 yard run and completed a 14 yard pass for a touchdown to Steve Sponberg.

John Paitl scored on a six yard run to complete the Bison scoring.
