

NDSU fall enrollment up; campus housing falls short

With the total number of freshman and transfer students applications and projected numbers of returning students up slightly from a year ago, State University officials are optimistically forecasting a final fall quarter enrollment total that will top that recorded in the fall of 1978.

With the addition of approximately 2,350 first-time freshman and transfer students the total fall quarter enrollment at SU should reach approximately 7,760, according to Ann Winship, acting director of admissions.

"We're up slightly in applications for first-time freshman and transfer students and we'll be going in to fall quarter Sept. 6 with what we're happily projecting as continued increasing enrollment figures despite 1978 declining enrollments of about 1 percent nationally in public institutions of higher education," said Winship.

"One reason we feel so positive about our enrollment picture is that we've been increasing our own totals over the past five years even though the number of out-of-state schools sending admissions counselors into North Dakota for intensive recruiting campaigns has increased significantly."

SU appeal to new freshman and transfer students is large-credited to increased interest in its College of Engineering and Architecture [up 23 percent], and College of Science and Mathematics [up 7 percent] from a year ago, according to Winship. Particularly strong interest by the incoming group of students has been registered in the areas of architecture, electrical engineering, computer science, business, pre-med and various health related fields.

Winship indicated that SU has repeatedly shown enrollment increases in the past five years. However, the number of North Dakota high school graduates is expected to stay near the 12,000 mark until 1983 when it will drop to 11,200. By 1985 that total will fall off to a projected 9,500.

"All 12 residence halls on campus and the Graver Inn will be filled to capacity at 2,600, plus 300 students in temporary quarters set up in floor lounges, study rooms and recreation lounges and we're meeting the demand for on-campus housing," said

MSU, NDSU cooperate to offer TV courses

Four television courses will be taught for credit over KFME-TV [Channel 13] on Saturday mornings this fall beginning Oct. 6.

The four courses will be offered for three hours of University credit through Moorhead State University and North Dakota State University in cooperation with the University of Mid-America, North Dakota [UMA-ND]. None of the courses require any previous college or university experience.

Supplemented by textbooks, assigned readings, occasional discussion meetings and examinations, the following courses will be taught at the times indicated:

"Connections: Technology and Change," 8 to 9 a.m., a ten-week course offering a different way of viewing relationships between technology and human values. The evolution of modern inventions, including the atomic bomb, the computer, plastics, television, and the jet aircraft are traced with attention not only to the impact on their own field but on society.

"The Great Plains Experience," 9 to 9:30 a.m., a course exploring the roots of midwestern life through combining history, art, literature, anthropology, geography and sociology. Discussions will focus on the land and people, frontier movement, cattlemen, Indians, agricultural settlers, Great Depression and New Deal.

"The Long Search," 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., a 13-week series charting the experience of one man as he travels four continents and encounters religion's role and its influence on human lives. Christianity, Judaism, Hinduism, Islam and Buddhism as well as the new religious phenomena in America are included in his journey to search for an understanding of religion in human life.

"As Man Behaves," 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., a 15-week course serving as an introduction to psychology. Basic terms, concepts, principles and methodological approaches associated with the study of behavior are presented through a blend of behavioristic, Freudian and humanistic points of view. Outstanding psychologists, psychiatrists and psychoanalysts appear in the televised lessons.

The courses will be taught by professors from the two Fargo-Moorhead universities.

For more information or preregistration for the television courses contact either of the following offices: Mary Ellen Schmider, director of Continuing Education at MSU, 236-2181, or Dr. Richard Chenoweth, associate director, Division of Continuing Studies at NDSU, 237-7016. For registration at other North Dakota institutions call 1-800-732-4380 (a toll-free number).

Placement Center says less teachers, more jobs

Despite a 22 percent increase in 1978 and an anticipated 15 to 20 percent increase this year in the number of teaching vacancies in secondary schools, the Job Information and Placement Center at NDSU estimates the number of SU graduates eligible for certification will drop by 16 percent this year.

The number of candidates eligible for certification as secondary teachers has dropped from a 10-year high of 320 in 1971 to an anticipated 160 in 1979, according to George Weatherston, teacher placement coordinator at NDSU. Meanwhile, the number of teaching vacancy announcements received by the placement office has increased from 3,841 in 1975 to an estimated 6,000 in 1979. Most of the vacancy announcements received are from North Dakota and Minnesota.

Young people appear to be rejecting teaching as a profession nationally as well as at SU in increasing numbers because of predictions in the late 1960s that there would be a surplus of teachers, according to Weatherston. Other reasons range from lack of job security in the face of declining enrollments and school district financial problems, remote location of many of the jobs, working conditions, discipline problems, and the temptation of more attractive jobs in private industry and government.

The most critical shortages are in the areas of vocational agriculture, English, mathematics, music, science and speech therapy, according to Weatherston.

The SU Job Information and Placement Center is a division of the North Dakota Employment Security Bureau.

Courses offered by Div. of Cont. Studies

Two reading efficiency courses will be offered by the NDSU Division of Continuing Studies from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning Monday, Sept. 17, and Thursday, Sept. 20. The courses will cover speedreading, comprehension and study skills.

Advance registration is required. For further information contact the NDSU Division of Continuing Studies, 237-7015.

homecoming ahead

Homecoming--the first big all-campus-event of the year is less than a month away. Scheduled for the week of Oct. 8-13, numerous activities along with the traditional Homecoming football game, parade and bonfire have been planned around SU's 1979 Homecoming theme "Bison Pride."

In addition, for the second year in a row, a Homecoming Button Contest is also being held. A student must draw an original button design to be used for the 1979 Homecoming buttons. Homecoming committee members will make the selection and the winner of the contest will receive $50. All entrants must adhere to the following contest rules:

1. Must be an SU student to enter the contest.
2. Button must contain the following: "BISON PRIDE," October 8-13, 1979, and NDSU Homecoming
3. Deadline: September 17, 1979, 4:30 p.m. Students may submit designs to Jackie Ressler, Student Affairs Office, 204 Old Main. For additional information, call 237-7350. (Circle is actual button size.)

There are better ways to handle a tough semester of math.

The Slimline Business Analyst-II™ for business and finance.

The Slimline TI-50™ for science and math.

Choose the Texas Instruments calculator that's right for your major.

When you're working in a specialized field, you need a specialized calculator. That's why Texas Instruments designed the Slimline Business Analyst-II™ for business and finance . . . and the Slimline TI-50™ for science and math. Each provides the tailored power and the reliability you'll need as you learn to solve the problems you'll face as a professional. And each has a price you'll appreciate as a student.

Slimline Business Analyst-II. Sleek LCD calculator with versatile business capabilities.

Solving financial problems with the Slimline Business Analyst-II can make working with your old calculator seem like pencil-and-paper arithmetic. The functions required to perform many common business, financial and statistical calculations are built in to help you make quick, accurate evaluations of many complex business situations.

Special financial keys are used to handle time and money problems such as compound interest, annuity payments, mortgage loans, investment yields, amortization schedules and more.

Statistical and linear regression capabilities provide the power you'll need to boil down data and automatically handle problems such as sales and earnings forecasts.

Profit margin calculations concerning cost, selling price and margin can be performed rapidly when any two of the variables are known. Other features include a four-function data register with Constant Memory™ feature that retains its contents even when the calculator is turned off. Two miniature batteries provide up to two years of operation in normal use. And TI's APD™ automatic power down feature helps prevent accidental battery drain.

The Business Analyst-II, with detailed owner's manual and suede-look vinyl wallet with pockets for notes, $45.00*.

The Slimline TI-50 packs 60 powerful functions into a handsome, compact package.

The pocket-portable Slimline TI-50 is a remarkably powerful LCD slide-rule calculator. Yet it's as thin as a pencil and weighs only three ounces!

Its 60 versatile functions can help you handle a wide range of college math problems. Capabilities include common and natural logarithms. Six trigonometric operations that can be performed in three angular modes (degrees, radians or grads). Two constant memories that retain their contents even when the calculator is turned off. And more.

Seven built-in statistical functions simplify the task of boiling down large sets of data points so you can perform accurate analyses and draw reliable conclusions.

The power of the Slimline TI-50 is made easy to use by TI's AOS™ algebraic operating system, which provides 15 sets of parentheses and accepts up to four pending operations. That means you can enter most problems just as they're written, left to right.

Two miniature batteries provide up to two years of normal operation. And TI's APD™ automatic power down feature helps prevent accidental battery drain.

The Slimline TI-50 includes a detailed owner's manual and a durable vinyl wallet, $40.00*.

Make sure your next calculator has the specialized power to handle the problems unique to your major. See the Business Analyst-II and the Slimline TI-50 at your college bookstore or other TI dealer today.

m. "Our students won't be comfortable, but temporarily they will be a little crowded."

Seim predicted that none of these students would be temporarily housed beyond the week fall quarter and that over two weeks, a 20 percent surcharge on housing costs is due to those students remaining in temporary housing to offset any inconveniences. Some 110 family units were on the waiting list for married student housing this summer.

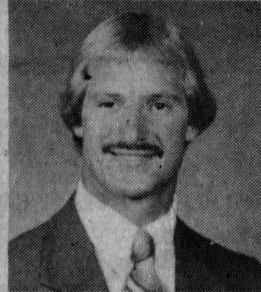

but 30 or 40 of those families were housed by the time classes began, according to Seim. SU has some 367 family housing units, including 62 trailer lots in West Court which are available for married student housing.

The SU 1979-80 academic year is as follows: fall quarter, Sept. 6 through Nov. 20; winter quarter, Nov. 26 through Feb. 29; spring quarter, March 10 through May 23; first summer session, June 5 through July 10; and second summer session, July 14 through Aug. 15. SU will be closed for Christmas vacation from Dec. 14 through Jan. 6, with Commencement scheduled Saturday, May 24.

SPECTRUM EDITORIAL

By now, everyone seems to be well established into a class day routine. Most of the money Mom and Dad sent with is gone, and picking out roommates from across the room doesn't seem like an impossible task any longer.

It will soon be easy to fall into the same old role that many other students have already begun to mold—that of the apathetic student.

Freshmen, transfer students—you've had your first taste of this university. Without much effort, you could draw a line through every positive thing on this campus by saying—this place is lousy.

But it isn't. This campus sits in the largest city in North Dakota. It serves the second largest college student population in the state. Among its faculty are instructors who are not only locally acclaimed but also regionally and nationally.

The food service isn't, of course, Mom's home cooking, but for large order cooking, it isn't bad. Even MacDonald's will seem dull after a while; certainly the food centers will lose their appeal. But the food quality will remain good.

The campus has a modern sports stadium and fieldhouse. It has sufficient sidewalk, shaded walkways, and attractive streets.

Nearing completion is the addition to the library; the new music building is expected to be funded by the end of the biennium.

The student body is represented by excellent leaders. Any student could be involved as representatives of a dorm or a college. Student senate members have often been elected on one or two votes—it is up to you as a student to see that your opinion is voiced.

For most new students, this will be your college for the next four years. It will be up to you as to the directions it heads.

Upperclassmen—this, hopefully, will be your alma mater someday. It will be the college that employers will associate you with when they look at a job application.

Any way you look at it, it will be you that makes or breaks your years at SU. It will be you that must get involved.

Sure—there are problems. But it will be up to you to see that they are solved or minimized.

It's up to you.

The Spectrum, due to space limitations, reserves the right to edit letters for length, without destroying the writer's major thesis, and to correct spelling, style and grammatical errors.

The Spectrum is published Tuesdays and Fridays during the school year except holidays, vacations and examination periods. Opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the university administration, faculty or student body.

News stories or features for publication must be typewritten, double-spaced, with a 65-character line. Deadline is 5 p.m. two days before publication.

Ever have one of those days when you wanted to go in an abandoned refrigerator, become an arduous trainer, or join the foreign legion? Trying to find an apartment in the middle of August can bring one on for sure.

Now, I wouldn't say I was a procrastinator or anything. I would have to say mine is more a form of dilatoriness (I don't know; it was in my thesaurus. One can always find a kinder word to define a deficiency. Negligence was listed also, but...) I just had so many "important" things to do on my weekends that I couldn't make it to Fargo like mowing the lawn at home, going to my roommate in Grafton's (where I worked) softball games, and entertaining my friends from Fargo who came down to visit. Besides, how hard can it be finding an apartment anyway, right? Everybody does it.

The day I finally decided to get down to business started out on a bad note anyway. I had left a job I enjoyed and the friends to go along with it and just returned from a trip to the cities with my folks (I'd forgotten what traveling with them can be like, "Turn here!" No, I'm certain it's the next exit!" "Mother, you've got the map upside-down")

Armed with tips from newspaper ads and a rental agency, we set out on our search. The agencies big tips were mainly on apartments owned by a man we heard referred to as the "slum lord." They were right.

One was described as a one-bedroom with rec room. Well, the bedroom was the size of three telephone booths put together and the rec room was the basement complete with art-deco cobwebs and fountains spurting from leaky pipes.

Other apartments had similar niceties or else were too far away from campus for hoofing. So we decided to try the direct approach, door-to-door begging. We figured all they could say was no but either the managers were home or they actually said that dreaded word.

We finally did find a place; just what we were looking for, actually. But just the other day, my roommate was talking about looking for another apartment some day and I had this really psychic experience: my knees began to ache and I could hear the sound of a pipe dripping in the distance.

Contraceptive Contradictions

The Federal Trade Commission is quietly looking into advertisements for contraceptives. A group of law students says the ads exaggerate the effectiveness of two unnamed prescription vaginal drugs. They state that the use of the contraceptives can lead to unwanted pregnancies. The FTC has denied the group's request for a crackdown on the ads, but the commission does say it is conducting a "non — public investigation."

Peace Conference

The stage is set and the cast of characters is complete for another Rhodesian peace conference. Britain is the sponsor and host this time. Representatives of the black Rhodesian Government, its white minority and the guerrillas seeking to oust it are all in London for the session.

The Middle East

Special Mideast ambassador Robert Strauss is in Egypt on a fact-finding mission. Strauss says that during his four-day visit, he hopes to find out how Israel and Egypt view the results of their latest summit. Then, he says, he hopes to find out where the peace process stands.

Prime Lending Rate Up

Several of the nation's largest banks raised their prime lending rates to a record 12 and three-quarters percent. The banks going to the record top include Bank of America, the number one bank in the nation. It's an increase of one-half percent. The rate hike will affect the other banks this week.

SALT II

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd acknowledged Friday that his timetable for consideration of the SALT-two has slipped, because of a combination of circumstances. He said, however, he is determined to bring the treaty to the Senate floor for debate this year.

Teddy Kennedy

Senator Edward Kennedy's news secretary says key members of the Kennedy family have given the green light to his seeking the presidency. News secretary Tom Southwick says Kennedy's wife, Joan, and his mother, Rose Kennedy, told the senator they no longer object to his candidacy and would support him if he decides to challenge President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

College Party

Police in Kalamazoo Michigan said about 75 police officers broke up a party that amounted to a mob scene on the campus of Western University in Kalamazoo. More than 600 people streamed into the streets and pelted officers with rocks, bottles, and bags of trash. Nine policemen suffered minor injuries. Twenty two people were arrested.

Search on for State Potato Queen entrants

The Park River Jaycees have started planning for the 27th Annual North Dakota State Potato Queen Pageant, which will be held October 26, 1979, at the Park River City Hall.

Any girl interested in entering should possess the following qualifications: shall be between the ages of 18 and 28 by Labor Day of 1980, a high school graduate by that same date, must never have been married, be of good moral character and shall possess some quality of talent, poise, personality, intelligence and charm. Each contestant will be judged in evening gown competition, swimsuit competition, and a talent presentation, which must not exceed three minutes.

The entrant must be a resident of North Dakota for the past six months. This rule is waived for a contestant whose residence is out of the state, but who is attending a North Dakota college or university at the time the pageant is held.

Only 14 girls will be accepted for competition in the local pageant. The winning contestant will be entered in the Miss North Dakota Pageant at Bismarck next June under the sponsorship of the Park River Jaycees.

For the lucky girl that reaches the state contest, there are over $8000 in scholarships besides many gifts. Contestants may be sponsored by a potato grower or anyone interested in the potato industry.

Official entry blanks may be obtained from Gary Greicar [284-6758] or from Stephen Larson [284-7584].

'Melon'choly Baby makes it big everything she can't sell at prevailing wholesale prices.

Barb has grown melons since she was 16, and has sold them door-to-door, to produce departments at area food stores, through farmers outlets on the Red River Mall, at West Acres and on her own at Trollwood Park.

"A good price is $1 a melon, but you seldom get it," says Barb.

Growing muskmelons is more than just a way to earn money, at least for Barb. Rolling each melon over carefully by hand and examining it with a trained eye before plucking it from the vine, Barb can be heard at times to proclaim with delight, "This one is alive and beautiful," or to sigh with disappointment, "This one is dead," as she tosses it aside or into a nearby shelterbelt. The "hurt" melons — damaged only slightly by mice or crickets — can't be sold and are consumed by Barb's family and friends.

The 6,000 muskmelon plants that are producing a bumper crop of melons under Barb's skillful touch were carefully placed in the ground by hand in May and nurtured through spraying, weeding and worrying — a labor of love for some 10,000 melons she imbues with human characteristics.

Barb has been working in muskmelon patches to seriously earn money since she was 16, when a brief stint as a salesperson in a Fargo clothing store sent her scurrying back to the melon patch, where she feels more at home in the outdoors battling cucumber beetles, crickets, mice and dirt diseases. Last year she lost more than half her crop to beetles.

"I sprayed about once a week this year and set out poison for the mice," said Barb. "I had to spray the plants a lot when they were babies and I hate putting chemicals on them when they're young, but you lose so many otherwise."

The rent Barb has to pay for the 4-acre melon patch, double the size of her 1978 patch, which was double the size of her 1977 patch — will cost her about what Zeb Vogel could have made off the land planted in soybeans. Barb's father, a district director for the Extension Service at SU, helps to cover the cost of plants, chemicals and other necessities, but Barb pays him back. He also works in the field whenever he gets a chance, and so does Barb's mother, Marian, a practicing Fargo attorney, realtor and part-time instructor at MSU.

helped to harvest over 2,000 melons.

If the weather holds, meaning no early freeze, and wholesale prices for her melons stay at about 75 cents each, Barb will earn enough to cover the cost of attending SU again this year — something she has done with varying degrees of success over the past two years. An extra good crop might bring in more than $1,000 in profits and even provide enough extra for covering the cost of Barb living in for one quarter at her Gamma Phi Beta Sorority House. Barb is rush chairman for her house this fall and has served for the past two years as a freshman and transfer student orientation leader.

Like most farmers, Barb doesn't know whether there will be any profits or not when the season is over. This year the season is running about two weeks late.

"Usually I'm finished up before school starts and I can focus full-time on my studies and other school activities," said Barb, but this year it's late."

With the prospects for a bumper crop over the next 10 days and all in such a short span of time, Barb will be directing the work of up to six people loading, washing and transporting muskmelons to area stores, farmers markets and the Pines-to-Prairie Farmers Co-op at Frazee. The Co-op has promised to buy

Santa Claus, chimney sweep, train conductor, taxi driver — a variety of hats have been worn over the years by students working their way through North Dakota State University.

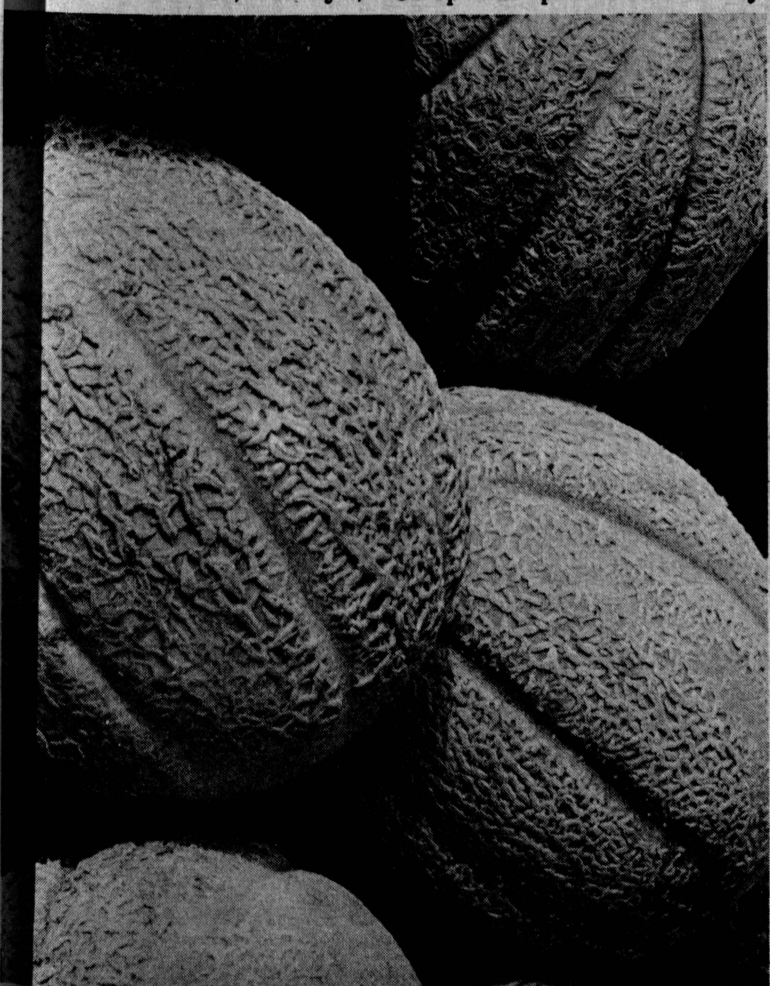

But a melonhead? That's what Barbara Stine, 20, a junior in business from Fargo, calls herself.

"Maybe I'm just kind of a melonhead, myself, but I love it, and this way I don't have to work to get myself through college," said Barb. A city girl, she gets "some surprised looks" when friends ask what she'll be doing for the summer and she tells them growing melons.

But grow melons she does — some 10,000 of them this year on a 4-acre rented field near the Red River on the Zeb Vogel's farm just north of Hector Airport.

How did a city girl from Fargo get into the melon business? It all started about six years ago when an older brother, Gordon, tried it one summer on the advice of Dr. Earl Scholz, associate professor of horticulture at SU. Gordon soon dropped the idea, but not Barb.

She liked working in the melon patch. Most of the Stines do. Barb recently predicted that if the temperature hit 95 degrees, she'd have 5,000 melons ready for harvest. Soon it hit 98 degrees and Barb, her father, Jim Stine, brothers Rick and Paul and a sister, Marilyn,

LCT tryouts scheduled for production of "Deathtrap"

Tryouts for the national college premiere of Ira Levin's comedy-thriller, "Deathtrap," will be held in Askanase Auditorium Tuesday, Sept. 11 and Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. All SU students, regardless of major, may audition for the two female and three male roles.

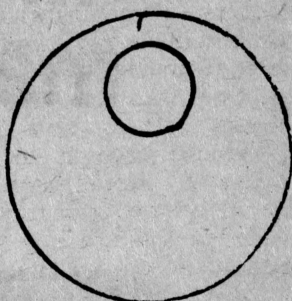

"Deathtrap" portrays the devious machinations of a writer of mysteries whose recent books have been flops. As the play progresses, it becomes apparent that the desperate writer will go to any lengths to improve his fortunes...even murder.

This Little Country Theatre premiere will be directed by Dr. Carolyn Gillespie Fay, assistant professor of drama.

DSU to offer two workshops on letter writing techniques techniques and skills needed for writing business letters and memos will be at Fridays, Sept. 14 and in two separate one-day workshops sponsored by the Division of Continuing Studies of North Dakota University. Dolores Pavicic, a lecturer in communication for the past years, will teach the workshops from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Meinecke Lounge of the Memorial Union. Pavicic has taught both SU writing courses and conducted writing workshops for companies and businesses in the Fargo-Moorhead area. Sessions will cover various principles for changing letter writing habits, strategies that work in most letter writing situations, and techniques to eliminate jargon from business correspondence. Letters and memos written in class will be reviewed by Pavicic to provide on-the-spot help. She will also critique business letters and correspondence brought to the workshop by participants. For further information concerning fees and registration, contact the SU Division of Continuing Studies, 237-7015.

More than sixty evening Classes available for fall

SU is offering more than 60 late afternoon and evening classes during the fall quarter, Sept. 6 through Nov. 20. The SU Registrar's Office will process registrations for evening classes from 7 to 8:30 p.m. each evening this week through Thursday, in Room 320 of Minard Hall. Area residents interested in enrolling should complete registration on the meeting night of any class or classes they plan to attend. A complete schedule of late afternoon and evening classes can be obtained from the Registrar's Office in Old Main or at the Division of Continuing Studies Office in Ceres Hall. For more information call 237-7981.

Opening dance sponsored by Theta Chi a success

Over 1500 people, mostly SU students, were willing to pay $3 per person or $5 per couple last Thursday night to attend SU's first dance of the 1979-80 school year featuring Johnny Holm. Over a thousand dollars was realized in profits by the Theta Chi fraternity, who sponsored the Holm dance. Former president Dave Lambert said the funds will be used for this year's fraternity rush.

Bison squeak past Wildcats in final minutes 11-10

Story by Ron Dessonville

The Thundering Herd kept mostly to the ground as they came from behind late in the fourth quarter to overtake Weber State in the Bison's home opener up at Dacotah Field by a score of 11-10.

The Bison who have not lost a home opener since 1963 were on the verge of losing this game but with four minutes left in the fourth quarter they put together a 93-yard drive, mostly on the ground, and scored with a little more than a minute left in the game.

Mike Kasowski scored the touchdown with a seven yard burst to bring the Bison within one point at 10-9, and Kasowski also scored the two point conversion to win the game for the Bison.

The Bison running attack was back to old form as they averaged nearly four yards per carry.

Robert Blakey led the Bison with 96 yards in 10 carries, followed by Kasowski with 77 yards and Thurman Cotton with 31 yards.

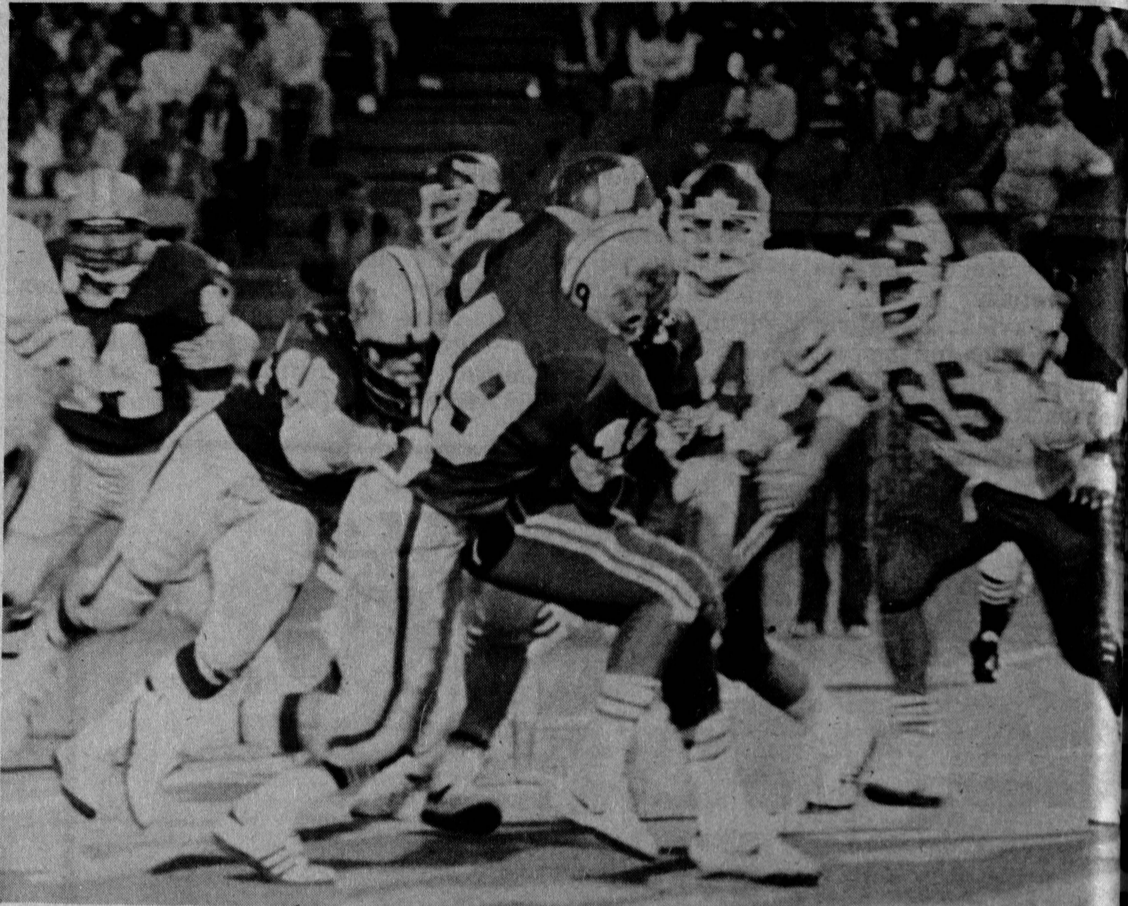

The Bison had two good scoring drives in the first half but were unable to come up with any points due to a fumble and loss of downs.

As the third quarter rolled around Jon Lundberg finally got the Bison on the board with a 37 yard field goal.

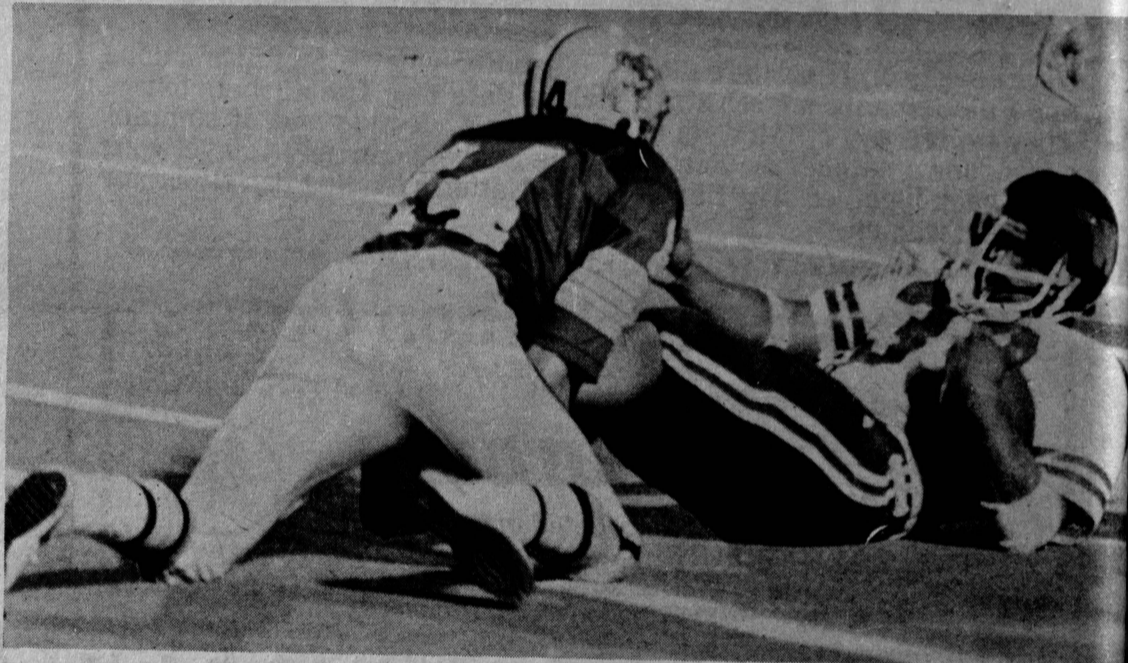

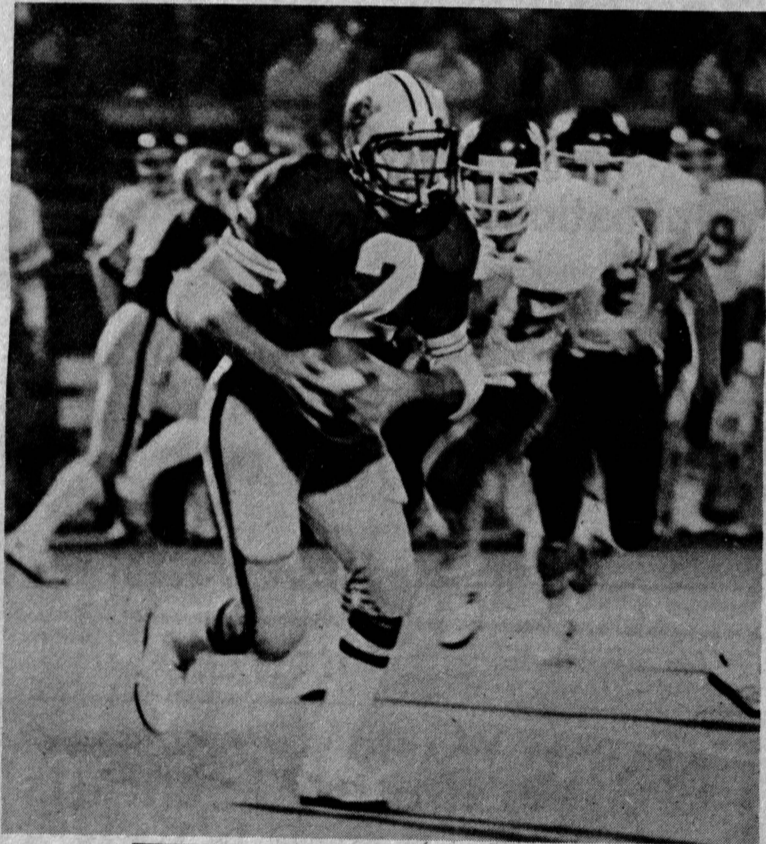

Weber State, though made up for that field goal with one of their own when Roger Ruzek kicked a 42-yard field goal late in the third quarter.

After the Bison had scored their winning touchdown, Weber State had a last shot at winning it but that was denied when Ron Grabowski made an interception with 10 seconds left in the game.

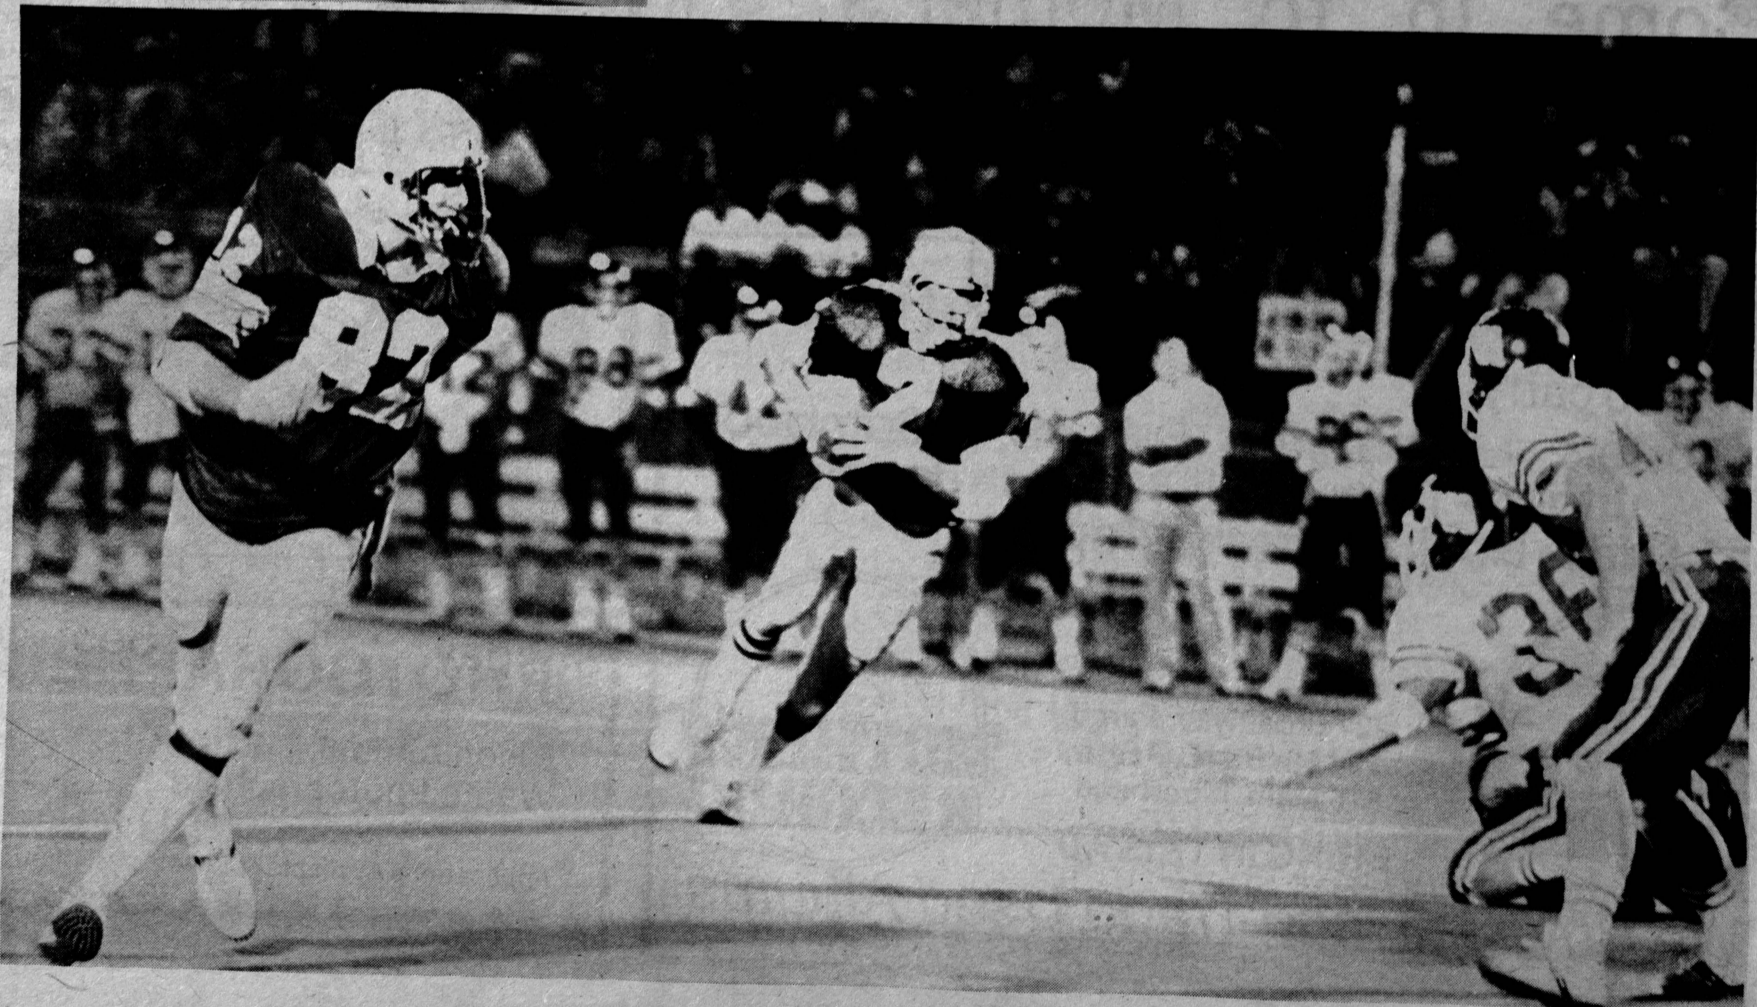

The bison now will take their undefeated record to the road as they take on Northern Iowa. The next home game will be September 22 when the Thundering Herd takes on Nebraska-Omaha at 7:30.

SU defenders Todd Lecy and Dirk Kroeze gangtackle the Wildcat running back to the ground.
