Music ed center gets House OK... it's on to Olson

By Julie Holgate

The North Dakota House of Representatives has given its final approval to the additional $600,000 needed to complete construction of the SU music education center.

The OK came late yesterday after a 72-24 vote.

The House had asked for the vote on the music building to be separate from the deficiency bill it was included in. Legislators labeled the bill a controversial one which raised special questions.

Some lawmakers felt SU had not handled the original appropriation (for the music building) properly and wondered why the additional money was needed.

Another concern was that the request should have been included with the SU budget presentation instead of being attached to a deficiency appropriation request for the departments and institutions of the state.

Rep. Steve Swiontek (R-Fargo) said the reason it wasn't was because the bill that had cleared in the Senate included other buildings in need of deficiency appropriation.

The music building bill now goes to Gov. Allen Olson for final approval. That action is expected early next week.

When they say 'no pets,' housing people mean it

By Deb Farrell

Live on campus and have a pet? Not for long.

Notices were mailed this week to married students in West Trailer Court, leaving them the choice of giving up their pets or moving off the premises by Friday.

Pets in married student housing is in violation of the resident's housing contract, according to Matthew Mauk, SU housing area supervisor.

He said the university has had the "no pet" rule for 32 years and every resident in married student housing is aware of that rule.

"Those people with pets have consciously violated their agreement with the university," Mauk said.

"I know there are at least three domestic cats in West Court," Mauk continued. "But since they were loose when I saw them, I couldn't identify them to any particular trailer or owner."

Besides trouble with pets in West Court, Mauk said there are about a dozen feral cats running through the court. These cats, he said, are creating a sanitation problem by living under the trailers.

"The domestic cats are probably going to breed with these feral cats," Mauk said. "Then the problem will be worse."

If a resident is found to have a pet, he will have to choose between the pet and moving, Mauk said. However, the university cannot ask any resident to move until there is positive proof there is a pet in the trailer.

"This is the U.S. of A. I don't believe in snooping around a man's trailer to find if he has a pet or not," Mauk said. "But if I see a dog chained to a trailer tongue, I'm going to talk to that student."

In one instance, Mauk said, he saw a cat on the doorstep of a residence. When he approached the cat, it began scratching on the door to be let in.

"Even the actions of the animal can positively identify it to a residence or owner," he said.

Jennifer Bates scholarship started

Beginning in the 1982-83 academic year, a $150 scholarship will be offered annually in the name of Jennifer Bates, a 1979 SU graduate.

The scholarship will be made from a $2,000 memorial established by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bates, through the SU Development Foundation.

The recipient of the scholarship must be a resident of North Dakota and a full-time graduate student preparing for a career in guidance and counseling.

The award, based on financial need and selection, will be coordinated by Wayne Tesmer, director of student financial aids.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in psychology, Bates was a graduate student in counseling and guidance at SU when she died in April, 1980.

Century II Fund begins to raise money

By Joni Astrup

A fund raising goal of $350,000 has been set for the 1981 campaign of the newly formed SU Century II Fund. Fund raising activities began March 1.

The campaign is the combined effort of the SU Development Foundation and Alumni Association.

Money raised will be used for scholarships, improving teaching and research, the Little Country Theater Fund, and special programs such as Homecoming, Agriculture Recognition Day and Harvest Bowl.

Promotion of university and public relations, an alumni-faculty center, publications and information programs for alumni and the budget of the two organizations will also receive money from this fund.

"We're out of the brick and mortar," said Roy Johnson, foundation coordinator for the Development Foundation.

Therefore, future funds will help finance "more programs that benefit students--all students."

In conjunction with the Century II Fund, a Centennial Endowment Fund has also been established. To commemorate SU's 100th birthday in 1990, a $10 million goal has been set for that year.

Donors often earmark their contributions for certain programs and it is difficult to project what future needs will be. Jerry Lingen, executive vice president of the Alumni Association, said the organizations can't say exactly what the money will be used for.

He emphasized there will always be student scholarships and faculty-development funding available through the centennial Endowment Fund.

This year, SU awarded about $90,000 in scholarships. But when the full $10 million endowment goal is reached, Lingen said, the university hopes to award $250,000 to $300,000 in scholarships to both incoming and upper-level students.

University needs also will be assessed annually and money from the endowment fund will be delegated to pay for special needs as they arise.

Presently the Development Foundation has approximately $2.5 million of this endowment on hand. Officials estimate the bulk of the remaining $7.5 million will come from "planned gifts," such as wills, estates, property gifts, stocks, bonds and trust gifts.

Funding for the Century II Fund, on the other hand, will be solicited primarily from SU's alumni and friends.

The Development Foundation and Alumni Association will conduct a national campaign directed at the 36,000 SU alumni, including presentations at alumni meetings and a mail campaign.

Local businesses and state corporations will also be encouraged to contribute to the Century II Fund. As incentive to contribute to SU, three gift clubs have been organized.

The Old Main Club will be made up of members who contribute $1,000 or more annually. Contributors who give $500 or more may belong to the Bison Club while donors who give $100 or more a year can join the Prairie Club.

Recognition will also be given to those donors whose gifts reach a specific accumulated total. This is to recognize those people who have supported SU in the past as well as the present.

Three President's Medallion awards will be presented for accumulated gifts.

A Bronze Medallion is given for an accumulated gift of $10,000 or more, a Silver Medallion for a gift of $50,000 or more and a Gold Medallion for $100,000 or more.

Recipients of the awards as well as all donors to the Century II and Centennial Endowment Funds will be recognized at an annual banquet.

All money raised will help supplement state appropriations because less than half the money the university runs on is taxpayer's money. Johnson said. "We are state-assisted rather than state-supported."

While this fund raising drive represents a financial merger of the Development Foundation and the Alumni Association, the organizations are still distinct and retain separate board directors.

This merger will prevent the solicitation of the same people by two different organizations, and will be "less confusing and give recognition due people for their donations," Lingen said.

Traditionally, the Alumni Association has been the public relations arm of the university while the Development Foundation has sought funding for special projects such as the Music Education Center and the Family Life Center.

SPECTRUM EDITORIAL

An American tradition is being attacked...right here in River City.

Last week, several "Christians," as they call themselves, grouped in Moorhead to discuss some of their views on issues. One of these was rock 'n' roll.

They hate it. The entire affair climaxed with a record-burning ceremony, where one of the leaders-Horton-got his picture on the tube.

The older generation has damned rock music ever since the Beatles and some of it we can expect.

This I can almost understand. With a new sense of conservatism sweeping the country, it was only a matter of time before someone questioned the values of "drug-crazed rockers."

The efforts of acid rock, heavy rock and killer (?) rock musicians are, of course, bound to come under these "Christain" hatchets, who talk of the horrible lyrics and how non-Christian they are. The lives and friends of rock stars are condemned.

But when that sweet baby James Taylor comes under the gun, I really begin to wonder of the credibility of these "Christians."

He was the guy who gave his all to get us out of the dumps-a real friend. What are those "Christians" thinking about when condemning those types of feelings, feelings that mean so much to so many people?

And, as expected, the Beatles-album-run-backward thing had to come up. The Strawberry Fields Forever track run backwards is supposed to have all sorts of evil themes running through it. Actually, what is heard is Reverof Sdleif Yrrebwarts.

Is it wrong to question authority, especially one so outrageous as theirs? Doesn't American value, tradition and freedom protect the right to expression...even through music?

Give Little I coverage next year

I was very disappointed to see no coverage of the 55th Little Internatioanl in the Spectrum the week of Feb. 9-14.

It is my understanding that the Spectrum is SU's student newspaper and as such I think that an event as big as the Little I should be able to receive some coverage, even if it has to be on the back page.

Not only was this the 55th Annual Little I, it was perhaps one of the biggest in its history.

As you may or may not know, Little I is more than just a livestock show-it includes 4-H and FFA judging contests, an ag engineering show, open houses and tours of the home economics, horticulture and physics departments, a floral design contest and model tractor performance contest.

It just so happens that the Little I involves a better part of the SU campus. Next year you may consider giving the Little International a little coverage. Not only would Saddle & Sirloin Club appreciate it, but a lot of other people might just like to know what, when and where the activities of the Little I are going to be held.

Reagan's cuts will hurt SU students

President Reagan's budget cuts have been the topic of many many television reports.

He's planned cuts in busing, legal aid and student loans and grants.

All three affect student life at SU quite dramatically-area transit at least twice weekly.

This service is free to SU students just by presenting a current activity card. In one year alone, college kids rode Fargo buses 135,000 to 150,000 times. Two thousand use it consistently.

Federal money for this service could be cut severely. To continue it, student government would have to increase the activity fee.

Legal Aid of North Dakota will have to tighten its belt.

Each student at SU is entitled to 30 minutes of free legal counselling. The cost of this service will increase if the proposed budget cuts go through. This will call for more student money to be made able to continue this service.

One of the toughest areas is student loans. At present, about 5,000 of the 8,000 SU students receive some loan or grant assistance. That in itself says a lot.

With students trying to dig up the money on their own and the $100 tuition increase on the way, I expect fewer full-time students and an increased enrollment of part-timers.

Besides the big three, a few other things may concern you as a student:

-raising parking ticket fines from $2 to $5,

-increasing the impoundment fee from $25 to $50,

-or hiking bus fares from 50 to 75 cents.

What can you do? Contact your student representatives and get on their backs—voice your concerns.

They may not be able to change the entire Reagan proposal, but we can react in ways that will make the hurt as small as possible.

Fargo bus authority reps will be at Sunday's senate meeting (7 p.m. in Meinecke Lounge of the Union) to go over the problem. Tell your student senators how you feel.

If you don't care enough about this to contact them, I wonder about the apathy that people say is so popular at SU.

One more thing...the 12th Avenue bridge idea will be presented at the next Fargo city commission meeting (...if the bridge was OKed, it would increase traffic on 12th Avenue as well as cutting off boulevards along the route to widen the roads).

If you have opinions on these issues, voice them. It's up to you.

Duginski, Hansen sign Bison letters

The total of high school seniors who have signed letters of intent to play football for SU has risen to 21. Phil Duginski of Fargo Shanley and Karl Hansen of Madison West (Wisconsin) join the first 19 athletes who signed national and North Central Conference letters of intent in February. Duginski, a 6-1, 230-pound linebacker, was an All-Conference performer at Shanley. Hansen was an All-City and All-Conference pick for West High as a 6-2, 230-pound defensive tackle. The additions bring the total to four North Dakotans and eight Wisconsinites who have signed with the Bison for 1981.

By Dave Haakenson
 Even his name strikes fear in musicians everywhere. John Lydon used to be called Johny Rotteon. He and his clan formed an innovative group called Sex Pistols and went on to international fame. After the breakup of the group, Lydon and his new friends formed Public Image Limited. PIL developed a sound of its own, rejecting the ideals of Sex Pistols entirely. Lydon had worn leather and chains while in Sex Pistols. He scrapped this image for PIL. Now he wears suit and tie. PIL's latest release is "Paris au Printemps," a collection of songs from a concert in Paris in the spring as the title suggests.

deaf ears. "Paris au Printemps" propels live versions of "Lowlife" and "Attack" from the grooves. These two tracks are the best on the record. The studio versions of these songs are on the first self-titled LP, not released in the United States. The other five songs are from "Metal Box," a three-record set of 12-inch singles encased in a metal container. PIL is not a run-of-the-mill band. The music is extremely crude in its studio form. It is even more crude live. Lydon is famous for his remarks to the audiences at Pistols concerts. This album is full of the same talk between songs. Why this wasn't edited out will probably never be known. It does show the real musician, though. What's surprising about PIL is Lydon claims for the first time in his career he is really working to put out good music. He also quickly points out it is music he enjoys. If the public doesn't like it, tough. "Paris au Printemps" is excitement and boredom all rolled into one unattractive package. Buy it if you dare. It is available only as an import on Virgin Records, No. V2183. Oh, and happy listening.

When you first walk into the store you'll recognize the record immediately. The jacket boasts a portrait of the band drawn by Lydon himself. Lydon is the red-headed donkey in the bottom left of the cover. Guitarist Keith Levine is the one on the right side. Bassist Jah Wobble is the creature top center. He has recently left the group to pursue other interests such as driving a cab. He has released an album and an extended-play single to a public with

The Gold Star

By Fran Brummund
What could have been a highlight of the 1981 Gold Star Band spring tour turned into a calamity.

The whole thing started last Friday at the state capitol...

Sixty-one SU students, under the direction of Orv Eidem, were to perform one of their 15 shows in Bismarck.

This trip was special in that it was a promotional thing for the SU music building and the music program. The jolly group purposely planned extra time in Bismarck for that reason.

Eidem had arranged an event through Rep Matchie about two weeks ago. But somewhere, somehow, when they didn't expect it, something went wrong.

It seems former Link's hometown had a musical group that was scheduled to play at the same time.

But schedules were tight in Bismarck last Friday and only one band could play.

So as the Alexander High School band played, 61 Fargo kids

And a quartet makes four

Next in store for the SU people was a saxophone quartet performance in senate chambers. You know the old saying, "You can never find the bus driver when you need him." Well...the instruments for the sax show were safely tucked away behind the locked doors of the bus, with the driver unlocateable. And he had the keys. It was off to the House side for the Gold Star Band...or the SU Stage Band, as the announcer alleged.

Entertainment serious business for FMCT

By Kris Linder
The focus is to involve the interests of the community. Fargo-Moorhead Community Theater is a community-oriented organization with the primary purpose of entertaining Fargo-Moorhead residents.

According to Robert Myers, general manager of the theater, it is called a "community" theater because of its sensitivity to the interests of the community and efforts to utilize these interests to create quality entertainment for the community.

FMCT has been in existence since 1946. The facility, built on funds, has been in its present location since 1967. It is a non-profit cooperation owned by the community "for the purpose of furthering and encouraging the living theater."

The theater is supported by contributors, sponsors, season ticket holders and memberships held by both private citizens and commercial businesses.

Membership is open to all residents of the Fargo-Moorhead area and surrounding regions. Contributions go through the Coordinated Art Fund, a part of the Lake Agassiz Art Council.

The facility holds up to 300 people. Thus far, the theater has increased attendance from 885 to 2,200 in four years.

"FMCT is constantly trying to reach more people with live theater," Myers said.

Five main-stage productions are held from September through May.

Ten performances are given of each play, lasting approximately two hours a night, including a dress rehearsal, open to special services.

Next season, the number of performances will increase to 12 performances of a play production.

During the off-season, the summer months, members of staff begin planning for the next season and put time into putting their personal lives together.

Auditions are held regularly prior to each production in the Emma K. Herbst Playhouse. These auditions are open to anyone with a desire to perform or for a technical assignment.

"When choosing a season of productions, the play-reading committee of board members and theater staff seek a slate of plays that will offer the community a balance of theatrical experiences."

Myers said he along with the artistic director and other theatrical staff, comes up with several ideas for plays.

The ideas are presented to board members for discussion and selection.

"No play will be enjoyed by all people. FMCT spends a great deal of time deliberating over a vast quantity of scripts in attempting to select an interesting season," he said.

Many changes are in the making for improvement of FMCT. The biggest problem is space.

The theater has become too small to handle the growing demand for live theater by the public.

The next play to be presented by FMCT was to have been "The Tempest" by William Shakespeare.

However, for the first time in the theater's history, a performance had to be cancelled due to lack of men auditioning for the 20 male parts.

Another factor which contributed to the cancellation was the complexity of the Shakespearean language. In lieu of "The Tempest," FMCT will produce "Bus Stop" by William Inge which is currently being staged.

sportsview and review

While the rest of us spent spring breaks basking in the glory of such hotspots as Daytona Beach, Ft. Lauderdale and Kulm, Bison athletes were busy wrapping up the winter seasons. Men's and women's basketball, wrestling, men's and women's indoor track, gymnastics and men's and women's swimming closed their seasons in the last couple of weeks. Here's a look at how things went.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Ervin Inniger's Bison basketball team capped one of its most successful seasons of all time with a 95-87 win over Central Missouri March 7. The win gave the Thundering Herd first place in the North Central Region Division II playoffs. The win gave the SU a 20-win season for the first time since 1942.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The SU women's basketball team was scheduled to take Emporia State University Kansas yesterday in the opening round of the AIAW Division II Region 6 Tournament at the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

Amy Ruley's Bison earned their slot in the tourney by defeating North Dakota for the right to represent the state.

MEN'S SWIMMING

Only 19 points separated the top two teams as Northern Colorado edged the Bison 430-411 to take the 1981 North Central Conference men's swimming title at the New Field House Jan. 28.

NCC Coach of the Year Al Koster guided his team to the runner-up spot by a slim margin over South Dakota State (370), South Dakota (329) and North Dakota (192).

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

The SU women's swim team finished third in the North Central Conference in only its first year of existence at the New Field House Feb. 28.

South Dakota State grabbed top honors with 615 points, South Dakota came up with 504, SU followed with 307 and North Dakota had 228.

WRESTLING

Bucky Maughan's wrestlers claimed fifth place in the nation for Division II schools in the nationals held at Davis, Calif. Feb. 28 and March 1.

California State-Bakersfield (144½ points) and Eastern Illinois (98) finished one-two as expected, Nebraska-Omaha (53) finished third, Humboldt State of California (45½) was fourth, and SU (43) was fifth.

MEN'S INDOOR TRACK

Don Larson's men's track team finished fifth in the North Central Conference Indoor Championships held at Vermillion, S.D., Feb. 27-28.

South Dakota State claimed the championship with 133 points, Nebraska-Omaha had 102, host South Dakota finished third with 76, Northern Colorado claimed fourth with 65, the Bison had 44, Augustana took sixth with 30, North Dakota managed 11 points and Morningside brought up the rear with 4.

GYMNASTICS

First-year head coach Deb Wilson guided SU to a second place finish in the North Central Conference gymnastics championships at Grand Forks Feb. 28.

South Dakota State won the conference crown with a score of 100.9. The Bison were close behind at 95.45 and host North Dakota took third with a total of 79.15.
