

SU student taken in custody after incident Thursday

A 19-year-old SU student was taken into custody late Thursday afternoon after a two hour rampage during which he wielded a knife at two other university students and threatened to kill them.

Dale William Brien, a resident of Stockbridge Hall, was charged with terrorizing in Cass County Court Friday. He was also charged with criminal trespass at the Llyal Hanson home at 2822 2nd St. N., Fargo.

Fargo Police say Brien smashed up his room in Stockbridge, then smashed up a room in Dinan Hall which is being occupied by Michelle Gannarelli. He also threatened to kill Timothy Hugelen, another SU student.

According to police, they received a call at about 5 p.m. that a man went berserk."

Fargo Police Capt. George Pavlicek said Brien left the university and struck a fire hydrant at 12th Avenue and 19th Street North before proceeding to the Hanson residence.

While at the home, Brien brandished a knife, which has been described as a 3-inch folding jack-knife. After leaving the Hanson home, Brien headed back to the university.

An off-duty police officer spotted a car with a flat tire and smoking and followed it to SU. The officer, with aid from two other SU students, subdued the driver, who was later identified as Brien.

Brien also received a driving violation for knocking over a fire hydrant and running into a tree with his automobile.

Scientist's work is one of top 20 developments

(NB)—The use of high-energy ultrasonic sound waves in literally exploding away impurities in chemical reactions has earned national recognition for an SU professor of chemistry.

Dr. Philip Boudjouk's research might one day lead to a revolutionary light-weight, heat-resistant insulation for delicate instruments aboard future spacecraft. Boudjouk's work has been cited by the American Chemical Society as one of 20 outstanding new developments in chemistry for 1983. The ACS has more than 130,000 scientist members nationally and internationally.

The society recently published a summary of Boudjouk's work in "What's Happening in Chemistry," an annual publication of research and accomplishments in a variety of areas, many at the forefront of the chemical sciences. Boudjouk recently shared space in the distinguished publication with a handful of 19 other scientists including Dr. Henry Taub of Stanford, winner of the 1983 Nobel Prize in chemistry.

Ultrasound may one day lead to cleaner, more economically produced drugs, ultra-lightweight insulation, lubricants, agricultural chemicals, dyes, rubber and urethanes at low energy costs with fewer contaminants and pollutants.

"Ivory tower research is on the second floor; not far from the ground floor where it can be applied," Boudjouk said. "I've always been interested in speculating on practical application in a general way."

Ultrasonic waves that generate frequencies high above normal hearing range have been used routinely to clean jewelry, surgical and dental instruments and even to provide pictures from inside a mother's womb.

Boudjouk and his associates at SU have tried the technique with a number of chemical reactions through the use of a simple commercially-produced $200 ultrasonic generator filled with distilled water and a reaction flask through which the ultrasonic waves are applied to create a number of chemical reactions.

Employed in Boudjouk's organosilicon chemistry research, ultrasonic shock waves can produce some important chemical reactions in a few minutes that in the past have taken up to eight hours. Using the ultrasound as a catalyst enhancer, Boudjouk has increased the rate of some chemical reactions 1,000-fold.

When the waves pass through a liquid, they cause tiny bubbles and their subsequent collapse releases highly energetic shock waves.

Lightweight materials produced by ultrasonic techniques will come in the form of new kinds of silicon fibers. This polymer of the future, said Boudjouk, has great potential to be a far superior insulation than fiberglass, asbestos or other forms currently in use.

"Silicon technology is still very expensive, probably too expensive for lightweight coats for use in severe winter weather," Boudjouk said, "but we can create lightweight insulation material that will protect delicate instruments from temperatures of several thousand degrees."

Currently conducting research under a three-year $260,000 U.S. Air Force grant, Boudjouk's work might ultimately lead to the development of such insulation materials to protect spacecraft such as shuttles from the high temperatures of launching and re-entry through the atmosphere. He said the tiles used to protect NASA's shuttlecraft are in the same family of organosilicon research.

While Boudjouk will be looking at the problem, he is quick to point out that his work in the area is preliminary, highly speculative and being pursued on many research fronts around the country.

Reports on Boudjouk's work have appeared in such prestigious journals and magazines as Nation's Business, Chemical Week, High Technology, Inside Research and Development, Chem Tech and England's Economist.

Richardson comments on Higher Ed topics

By Kevin Cassella
News Editor

North Dakota's Commissioner of Higher Education indicated he will recommend the Board of Higher Education wait until fall before finalizing tuition increases for the next biennium.

"I would anticipate tuition increases of 6 to 8 percent per year," said Dr. John Richardson, adding that the State Legislature asked higher education to bear the brunt of balancing the state's budget for the current biennium.

North Dakota has traditionally been lower than other surrounding states in the area of tuition. But with increases of 30 percent in the last two years, tuition is average when compared to other states' systems.

Richardson also said he doesn't know how the board will decide SU's request to spend about $500,000 to create seven new microcomputer clusters for student use.

"The board is very aware of the problem and is very concerned about it."

President L.D. Loftsgard made the proposal at the board's last meeting at SU. The money is excess income generated from the tuition surcharge. If the money is not spent by July 1 of this year, it will be turned into the state's general fund.

"The two universities really paid the price for balancing the state budget the last time around."

Regarding faculty pay, Richardson said, "We don't like paying new faculty more than faculty who have been at our schools for two or three years or more, but it's been forced on us by the lack of resources provided for salaries by the legislature."

"We would hope to rectify that by the next session."

In the area of new buildings, Richardson said he expects the computer center to remain at the top of the board's building request for the 1985 legislature.

Richardson said most legislators in the state agree that the facility is needed.

The building to be recommended to both the board and to the Legislature will incorporate the entire computer science center at an estimated cost of $4.5 million.

Also during its next meeting, the board will be looking at the governor's recent recommendation that state employees below pay grade 29 (about $27,000 per year) receive up to a $60 month raise effective May 1. The recommendation was based on a survey showing employees in those pay grades are below the marketplace salaries.

"One of the problems is that some of our institutions don't have the resources."

Richardson said his inclination is the state's higher education system could not afford the raise and that it not be given.

"The Board of Higher Education does not have the authority to shift funds between institutions."

The quality of higher education in the state is tied to the quality of the faculty, Richardson added.

"If we do poorly at the 1985 session of the Legislature as we did in 1983, higher education will be in deep trouble. We'll see an exodus of our best faculty from the state."

The people of North Dakota may be taking the higher education system for granted just as higher education has been taking legislature's support for granted time of increasing competition state funding, he said.

But they're going to have to make some fundamental changes a higher education in the future added.

"They can't have this continuing high level of services and low tax the two are simply incompatible

Quality of higher education

People are worried about the quality of higher education in North Dakota and senior faculty members leaving their institutions. I am also concerned about this. It seems that professors and instructors with some years of experience would be better off financially if they quit their current positions and started over. Chances are, they may be offered a beginning salary equal to or greater than what they had when they quit.

An increase of 5 to 8 percent in tuition is expected by Dr. John Richardson, North Dakota's Commissioner of Higher Education. With increases of 30 percent in the last two years, tuition is about the same as other states' systems.

Although tuition has increased, faculty salaries haven't gone up accordingly. This is because of the lack of resources provided for salaries by the legislature.

Some instructors entering the system are being offered a salary comparable to faculty who have been at the school for two or three years.

I hope we can keep our senior members and increase their pay accordingly. I don't feel it's fair to them to have a newcomer earning almost as much as they are when they have more years at the institution.

Student travel in Europe cheaper because of strong U.S. dollar

This summer thousands of students will fly off to Europe, taking advantage of low transatlantic fares and a strong U.S. dollar. Many will wisely be using a Eurailpass or Eurail Youthpass, but almost all of these will be unaware of many of the pitfalls and dangers of such travel that a little advance planning can easily help to avoid.

Eurailpass is easily the cheapest and the most pleasant way to get around quickly on the continent. In just hours you could get from Amsterdam to Paris, or Frankfurt to Zurich. However, there can be complications.

During the summer months you may find yourself standing for a few long hours rather than sitting for a few short hours if you have failed to get a seat reservation. This may seem to be unimportant at first thought, but the consequences are obvious. Most of the time, however, if you're traveling Monday through Thursday, you should have little problem finding a seat.

Another consideration of seating comes up with the decision to buy the cheaper second-class Eurail Youthpass (expressly for people younger than 26), or the first-class Eurailpass. There is somewhat more money involved with the purchase of the first-class pass, but if you've ever tried cramming into second-class accommodations at the height of the European tourist season, then you might appreciate the value of the first-class pass.

European trains are excellent; they run (even in Italy) with the precision of a well-machined Swiss clock. On the other hand, they run too efficiently. If your train stops at a station, don't get off the train to stretch or run off to buy a souvenir; your train will disappear instantly, leaving you in the station and your belongings racing off to Budapest.

Another danger is car switching. Be careful to read the train boards in the stations as to where each car on your train is going, because they will, at one point or another, be switched off to some point far removed from each other. If you've become separated from a friend who is just in the next car — become unseparated immediately — he or she could end up in Oslo and you in Istanbul.

The Thomas Cook Timetable has maps of some cities showing the locations of stations. Be particularly careful that you are in the correct station. Many European cities have several terminals and some have as many as five.

Some common sense points need to be brought out here as well. Plan your itinerary; don't expect that Europe is a postage stamp. It's not. Lots of students are surprised that they haven't planned well and leave Europe after covering very little.

Be sure, before you board your first train using the pass, to have it validated at a ticket window. If you don't, you can get it done on the train, but you'll also pay a small fine.

Once on the train you'll be shocked by the price of food and drink. Again, plan ahead and stop at one of the small shops usually found in and around train stations that sell bread, cheese, wine and other necessities. The savings are unbelievable. If at all possible, never check your bags on the train unless you absolutely must because it will take you forever to get it back. The red tape borders on sheer nonsense. Avoid the whole thing and travel light, keeping your bag securely with you in your compartment.

The 100,000 miles of the European Rail System are remarkable. If you need a Eurailpass or Eurail Youthpass, call "Student Rail" at 1-800-828-8888. Along with the purchase of any pass, it will send you a copy of "U.S. Student Rail Guide to Europe." It's a good deal. The booklet also contains a sample list of cheap places to stay in major cities.

By keeping all of these things in mind, your trip should go quite well. With a little common sense and some imaginative preplanning, your trip through Europe will turn into a rewarding experience.

Dietetics professors to talk at convention this weekend

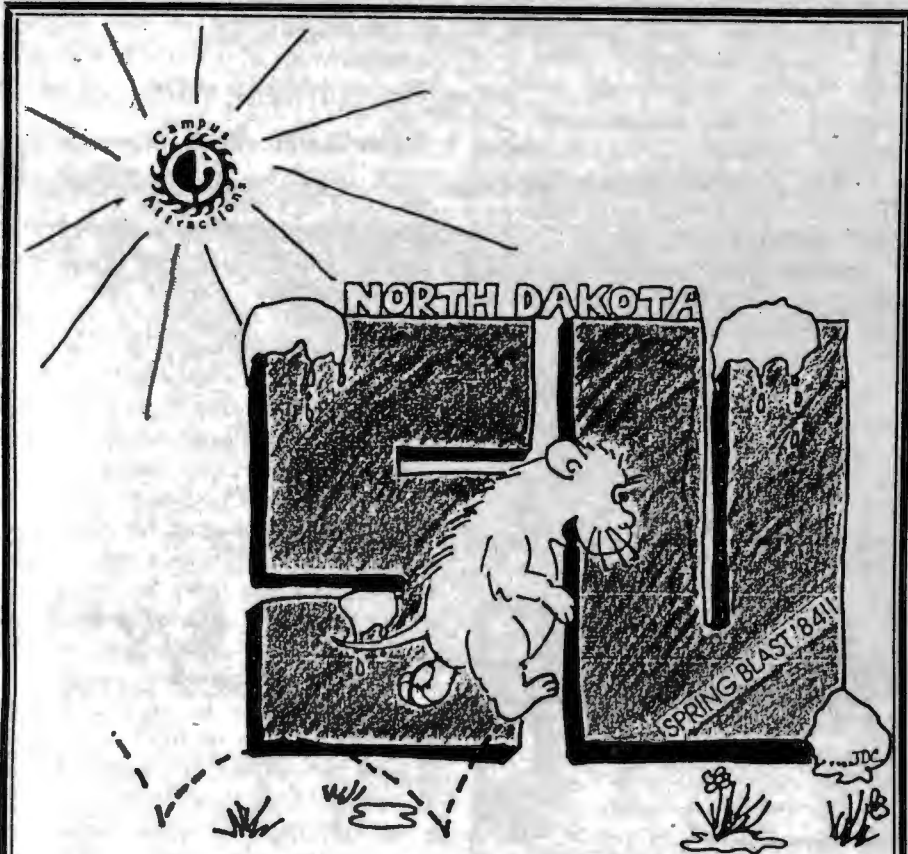

"Present Trends—Future Directions" is the theme of the first joint spring convention of the Minnesota and North Dakota Dietetic Association to be held Thursday and Friday at Concordia.

The convention will get underway with registration at 7:30 a.m. on Thursday. The opening address at 8 a.m. will be given by Jon Vanderhoff, M.D., of the University of Nebraska Hospitals and Clinics on "The Rational Use of Therapeutic Infant Formulas." Four concurrent workshops will be held in the afternoon on such topics as diabetes, dysphasia, positive individual programming and breast feeding.

Friday's sessions will open at 8 a.m. with an address by Ronald Kayne, vice president of professional services, Beverly Enterprises, Pasadena, Calif., on the topic, "Who Needs a Dietitian?" Dr. Patricia Jung, assistant professor of religion at Concordia, will discuss "The Moral Formation of a Profession."

Subliminal messages studied by student

I am currently putting together a short paper on "subliminal messages" for a marketing class. In reference to persons who are afraid of being influenced by music in the RDC, I have a few points to make.

My research so far is a yes/no answer. Yes, under very strict control conditions, it is possible to influence a person by subliminal message, but only very slightly. Because each person's threshold to these messages are different under different conditions, it is almost impossible to influence a mass audience like in the RDC.

My personal opinion is that persons who claim to be influenced by things like music, video machines, or whatever were not that sane in the first place. If it is not music, then it will be something else.

Student objects to 'radical' photo captions

I don't believe it is the job of a newspaper to print the biased, lopsided, and sarcastic views of its reporters. I'm referring to the captions under a couple of photographs presented in the Spectrum on Friday, May 4, 1984. One caption referenced a "salute" being given to a "radical preacher" and the other caption referenced a picture of a distraught looking female spreading "joy and happiness throughout campus." Most professional newspapers place reporter's opinions in the editorial section, not the front page. Also, professional newspapers don't caption newsworthy photographs sarcastically.

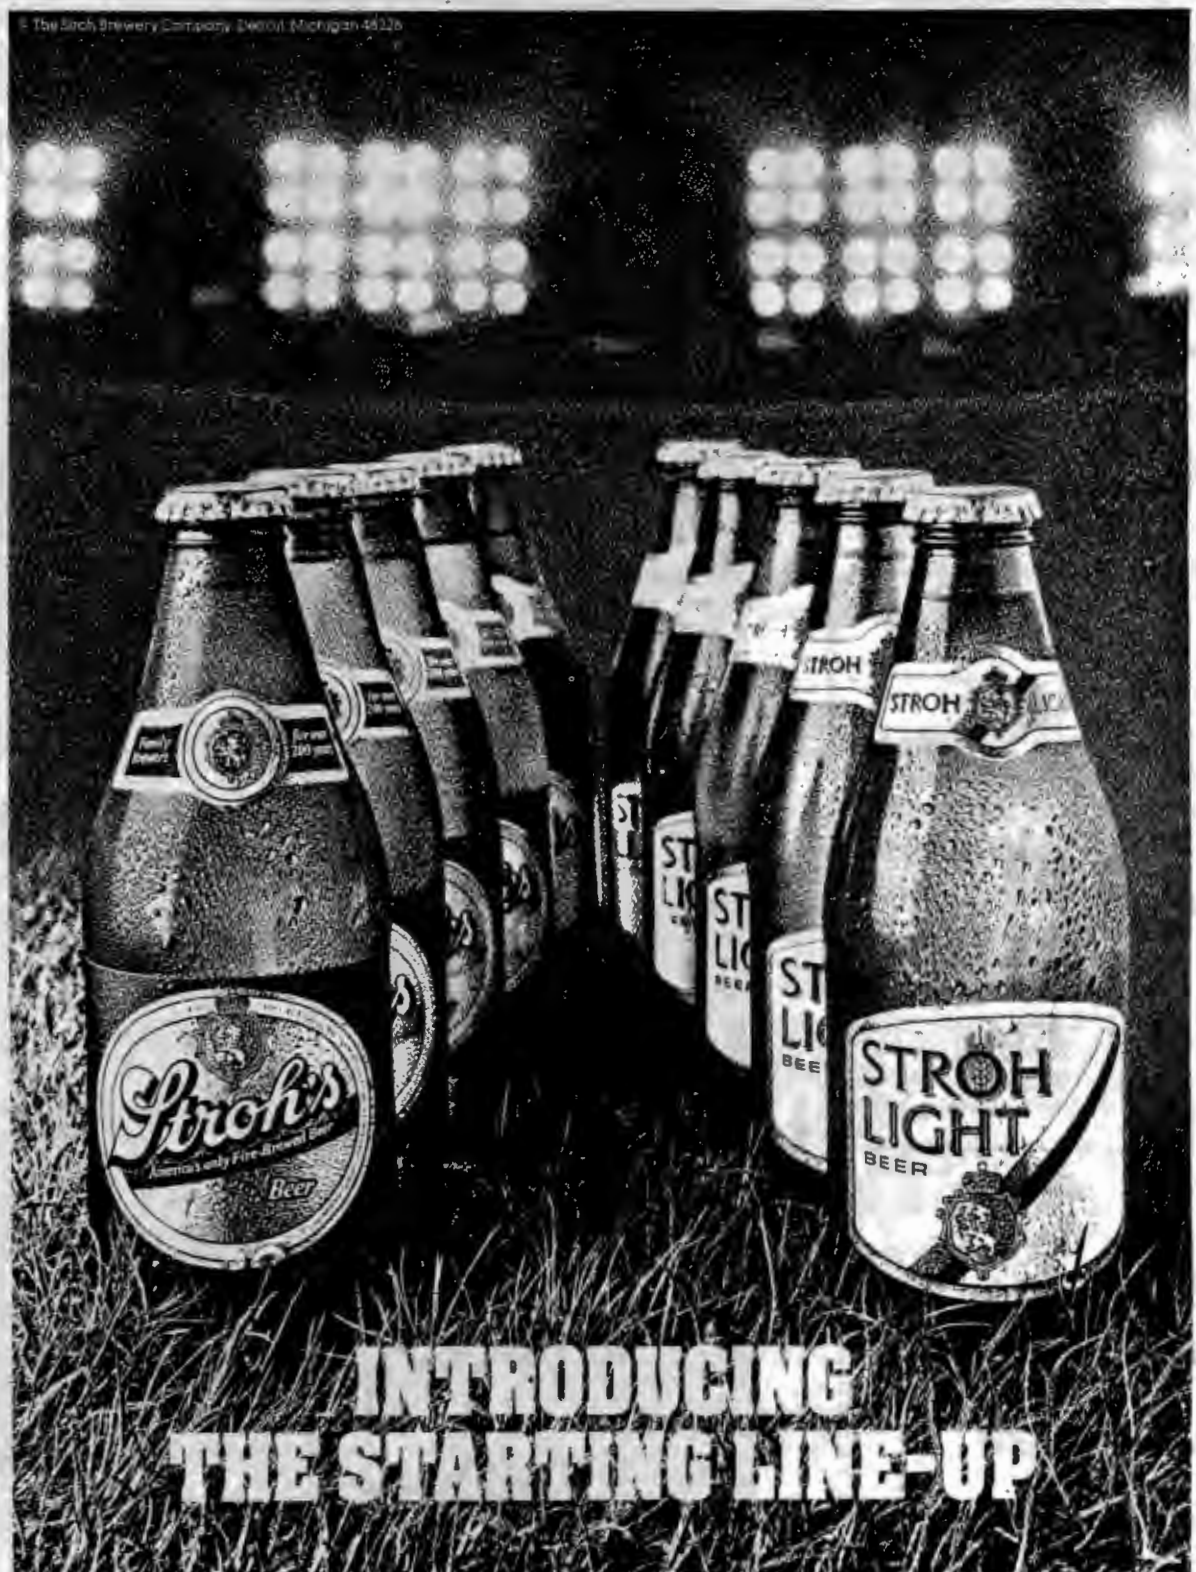

As a student, I also found the usage of the photograph featured on the front page offensive. It was not newsworthy and certainly is a poor representation and example of the NDSU student body. I'm sure you wouldn't run a picture of that caliber, with that caption, if it had been directed at a person involved in a different profession — John Anderson for example. With the awards the Spectrum has won (ND Press Women Name winners in communication, Spectrum, May 4, 1984) I would think the student body could expect a little more in the way of responsible and professional journalism and editing. I think we deserve it.

National security, arms control part of peace issues broadcasts

Minnesota Public Radio will broadcast live five public discussions on national security, arms control and peace issues as part of the project, "Prospects for Peacemaking: Rethinking National Security and Arms Control."

The first discussion, "Domestic Politics of Arms Control," will be broadcast from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. May 21 and will feature a panel including two members of Congress, the executive director of the Minnesota Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign, the national director of Physicians for Social Responsibility and a board member of the Committee for National Security.

Subsequent discussions will be held from 2:30 to 5 p.m. May 29, June 5, June 11 and one next fall not yet scheduled.

The May 29 discussion will focus on "The Role of the Military Force in U.S. National Security Policy," with featured speaker Robert McNamara, former U.S. Secretary of Defense and former president of the World Bank.

The third discussion on June 5 will feature Paul Warnke, former director of U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and a former chief negotiator for SALT, in a discussion on "Arms Control and Disarmament: Their Relevance to National Security."

The fourth discussion, "The Global Context: The U.S., The Soviet Union and The World," on Monday, June 11, will feature Dean Rusk, former U.S. Secretary of State and Sibley Professor of International Law at the University of Georgia.

The fifth discussion will focus on "National Security and Arms Control" and will be scheduled for sometime next fall.

Earn Over $900 A Month While Still In School.

Juniors! Seniors! If you're a math, engineering or physical sciences major, you might qualify to get a check for more than $900 every month.

It's part of the Navy's Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program. And the nearly $22,000 you can earn while still in school is just the start.

When you successfully complete your studies and become a Naval officer, you receive an additional $6,000 bonus. On top of that you receive a year of graduate-level training you can't get anywhere else at any price.

As an officer in today's Nuclear Navy you have a career advantage no civilian job can offer. The Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. The early responsibility and unequalled experience you get as a member of the nuclear propulsion officer team place you among the nation's most respected professionals in one of the world's fastest growing fields.

In addition to the professional advantages, as a nuclear-trained officer, after four years with regular promotions and pay increases you can be earning as much as $37,400. That's in addition to a full benefits package.

Find out more about the unique and rewarding Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program. Call or write the Naval Management Programs Office:

Price to speak on the family in the 1980's at state meeting

(NB)—Dr. Sharon J. Price, president of the National Council on Family Relations, will be the keynote speaker during the state meeting of the North Dakota Council on Family Relations Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12, in Room 122 through 124 of the Family Life Center.

The theme of the conference is "The Family in the '80s: Emergent Themes."

Price will discuss "Families and Work" at 7 p.m. Friday, May 11. Professor of child and family development at the University of Georgia, Athens, Price is the author of numerous scholarly papers in the family studies area. A graduate of MacMurray College for Women, Jacksonville, Ill., she has a master's and doctorate from Iowa State University.

Sessions beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 12, include "Families and the Law," Beryl Levine, Fargo attorney; "Family Violence: Intervention Strategies," Bonnie Palacek, Bismarck, director of the North Dakota Parents Anonymous and North Dakota Spouse Abuse Network; "North Dakota Families and the Legislature," Donna Nalewaja, state representative and Dr. Charlotte Bennett, dean of the SU College of Home Economics; and "Sexuality Education: The Next Step for Parents," Dr. Hal Pufall, Minot, private consultant in family life education programs and Dr. Sally Pufall, Minot, Lutheran Social Services.

The meeting will conclude with a panel discussion, "Families of the '80s."

Dr. Richard Hanson, chair of the SU department of child development and family relations, is the state president.

The conference is sponsored by the NDCFR, the Red River Human Services Foundation, the departments of child development and family relations, sociology, psychology and education at SU and the SU Cooperative Sponsorship Committee.

'Once Upon A Mattress' is rollicking good fun

By Gail Williams
Arts Editor

SU's Little Country Theatre's presentation of "Once Upon a Mattress" Thursday night presented the reviewer with a problem.

It's harder to review a play you like than it is to review a play you don't like. The trick is to describe the play without resorting to cliches such as "madcap merriment" and "rollicking good fun."

But what else can it be except madcap merriment when mute king Sextimus pantomimes the facts of life to his son Dauntless the Drab?

What else is it but rollicking good fun when the princess sings about being very shy while arm wrestling with her prospective husband?

The play is not without pathos. There is the tender moment when the princess asks the prince to call her Fred, and the heartrending song "The Swamps of Home," when she shares her longing for the place of her birth.

You'd think a down-to-earth princess who swims a moat to reach her intended bridegroom would feel right at home in a palace where the king spends his time chasing maids-in-waiting, where the wizard snorts a mixture containing eye-of-newt and spine of spider and where lords and ladies dance the Spanish panic, an intriguing combination of the jerk, the bump and the butterfly.

Alas, the queen, who makes up for what her husband lacks in speaking ability, doesn't consider the princess good enough for her son and is determined to thwart true love.

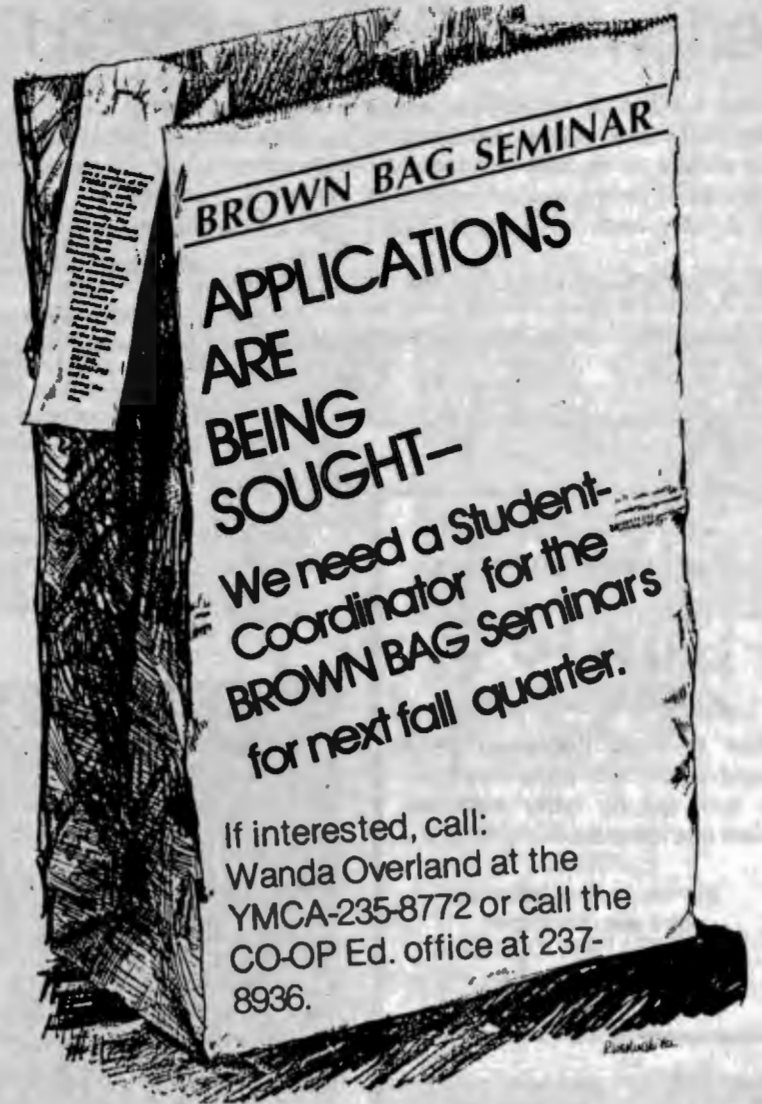

The singing was as engaging and energetic as the acting with especially good vocal numbers by Timm Holmly, Catherine von Bank, Dan Berger and Brad Cook.

These are things I wished about the play. I wished the clarinets had not squeaked during the opening number. I wished Dan Berger as Sir Harry had acted more surprised, when his girlfriend, Lady Larken, announced her pregnancy. I wished David Boyd had been a little louder in his vocal numbers.

None of that is important, though, so I'm back where I started.

It was an evening of madcap merriment and rollicking good fun.

"Once Upon a Mattress" will be performed at 8:15 p.m. Thursday through Saturday in the Askanase Theatre.

PRESIDENTIAL POLITICS: THE THIRD PARTY VIEW

John Anderson

Anderson is the only major political figure to challenge the two-party system. After serving twenty years in Congress as a relatively conservative Illinois Republican, Anderson launched a bold, Independent bid for the presidency in 1980. Articulate and provocative, Anderson is the leading advocate of new political alliances and a third party alternative for 1984.

Photojournalism class uses beats to show different corners of SU life

In the past, the photojournalism class offered by the communications department has been taught by a photographer from The Forum. However, this year the course was taught by Mark Strand, a photographer for the university.

Strand said he tries to keep a balance between the people who have good photographic skills and those who are better at expressing themselves verbally.

The class divided the campus into different areas and organized beats for one assignment, which was to show a day in the life of SU.

"Some people may question whether to do an assignment like this, but I think its fun," Strand said.

"I was hoping they (the students) would get into the different corners of the campus."

By those different corners, Strand said he meant those angles that aren't normally noticed in the day-to-day activity on the campus.

Kopperud, assistant coach, enjoys challenges

By Mark Krueger

Rolf Kopperud is a self-motivated person and as assistant basketball coach of the Bison, he admits that his job is very demanding, but he enjoys the challenge.

Kopperud said that whenever a problem arises that presents a challenge he'll try and solve it.

"I think that's my personality and I'll always be like that," he said.

Kopperud, 32, has been the assistant basketball coach at SU for six years. Once a basketball player at the University of Minnesota Morris, Kopperud decided to coach because he loved the game and didn't want to leave it after college.

As assistant coach, Kopperud's duties include coaching players and recruiting new players.

Two areas he concentrates on in practice are big-man play and offense.

In the first area, big-man play, he focuses his efforts on trying to get the center to position himself right on offense and defense.

Playing the guard position in college, Kopperud had to make an adjustment in order to help the bigger guys.

"Once you've coached basketball you develop understandings about other positions. It's like a business, you learn and develop those (center position) skills," he said.

In the offense area, Kopperud helps the team members to become better offensive players.

Kopperud has much the same philosophy about the game of basketball as head coach Inniger does.

"Hard work and dedication is really important. If you make a commitment to improve and excel, a lot of other things will fall in place," he said.

He advocates that athletics helps teach a person self-discipline and self-motivation. He said that he sees a lot of athletes that don't make the grade because they're not willing to put in the time or pay the price.

When Kopperud recruits players he basically looks for three things; their ability to play division two basketball (which includes natural athletic ability, quickness and height), player attitude (which includes player relationships and how hard they work) and a capacity to make it academically.

He said the Bison generally recruit on a state proximity basis. For example, he will look in North Dakota first for new prospects, then Minnesota, Wisconsin and other points east and south of the tri-state area.

Kopperud gains a lot of accomplishment from his job. To him it's a sense of internal accomplishment.

"Within myself I know when I've done the best that I can," he said.

Kopperud first came to SU seven years ago as a graduate assistant in the basketball program and as the head baseball coach. He later became the assistant basketball coach when Erv Inniger took the helm of basketball program. Because of the extra duties of his new position Kopperud was forced to resign his post in the SU baseball program.

Kopperud would like to become head coach someday. He is currently applying for head coaching positions that look appealing to him.

"I'm waiting for the right opportunity and if it would come I would definitely be interested in it," he said.

SU track teams place high

By Bamson Fadipe

The men's and women's track teams placed high during last Friday's track meet in St. Cloud, Minn.

Bison men tallied 168 points to win the eight-team meet that consisted of SU, MSU, Mankato State University, St. Cloud State University, North Dakota School of Science, Concordia, St. Johns and the University of Minnesota-Morris.

The women's team finished fourth in its division with 68 points.

Bison's Tom Nelson and Darrell Hovde led the team in scoring as they finished 1-2 in the 1,500-meter run, with Nelson winning it with a time of 4:03.7 and Hovde finishing second with 4:04.5.

Freshman Nathan Cooper captured the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.50. Both Todd Murdock and Peter Wodrich also won in Friday's meet.

Murdock came in first in the javelin with a toss of 199-6 and Wodrich's jump of 44-1 captured the triple jump title.

David Beeksa, Mark Hanson, Keith Repko and Jerry Schafer finished third, fourth, fifth and sixth place respectively in the 5,000-meter run.

Other top place finishers were Tim Johnston, third in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, Mike Stratton, third in the shot put with a personal best of 50-2½.

Doug Schweigert also placed high in the long jump as he finished in second place with a distance of 22-6 and Scott Schiller finished third in the high jump with a leap of 6-2.

Another second-place finisher to the Bison was Mark Anderson in the 800 meters with a time of 2:00.3.

On the women's side of the action in St. Cloud, Beth Maltson tossed the discus to a first-place finish with mark of 130-63/4, with Michelle Szevie finishing fourth with a throw of 125-53/4.

Both Gretchen Hammond and Tammy Hajek finished second and fifth in the high jump with a leap of 5-1 and 4-8. Kathy Kelley raced to a second-place finish in the 1,500-meter run with a time of 4:49.8.

Another first-place finisher for the Bison was Beth Weiman. She won the 3,000-meter run with a time of 10:29.0.

Some of the Bison men's track team members also competed in the Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa this past weekend. The 4-by-200-meter relay team of Stacy Robinson, Steph Weiland, John Bodine and James Molstre finished third with a time of 1:27.00.

The team also finished second in the 4-by-100 meters, but was disqualified for a lane violation. Bamson Fadipe finished in fourth place in the triple jump with a distance of 50-2.
