

Brown asks Cass County District Court for tenure from SU

By Kevin Cassella

An SU employee's lawsuit seeking tenure is expected to go to trial soon in Cass County District Court.

Judge Micheal McGuire made a ruling in an initial hearing held July 30.

The suit brought by Dr. Muriel Brown asks the court to order the university to grant her tenure or make her a candidate for tenure.

The controversy centers on whether Brown's position as a "lecturer" for the English department qualifies as a faculty position entitling her to tenure rights.

Brown has worked for the university for the past 10 years and should have been eligible for tenure after six years, although for the past several years she has been hired as a lecturer on a year-to-year basis, according to Daniel J. Chapman, Brown's attorney.

"Basically our contention is that teachers at North Dakota State University are supposed to be either tenured or probationary, with the single exception that there can be special appointments for a short duration," he said.

He said in Brown's case SU's attempt to avoid the tenure rule was a means of saving money.

Campuses asked to bare their shelves of Penthouse

(CPS)-If Penthouse magazine readers overrun newsstands in January searching for the second series of nude ex-Miss America photographs, they'll avoid the University of Colorado-Boulder bookstore.

On August 17, Tom Cruff, CU's bookstore trade book manager, banned Penthouse, Playboy, Playgirl and other "skin" magazines from the racks when Penthouse published nude photos of former Miss America Vanessa Williams in its September issue.

The Williams controversy, which re-emerged last week when Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione announced his magazine plans to publish more photographs of the former Syracuse University student engaged in various sexual activities, has accelerated previously-building pressure on magazine sellers on several campuses to cull certain publications from their shelves.

In the days after Penthouse announced it would publish the first set of photos, some Ohio State students joined demonstrators asking Columbus bookstores to drop the skin magazines.

Students at the University of Minnesota also renewed their campaign to get bookstores around campus to drop the magazines.

Efforts to rid campuses of sex-oriented media, both printed and filmed, are not new, of course.

In 1980, Antioch University removed skin magazines from its racks when feminist groups threatened to boycott the campus bookstore.

Last spring, students at the University of California-Davis and the University of Massachusetts-Amherst also threatened boycotts to rid their bookstores of the magazines, but the attempts failed.

In June, the University of Hawaii students government voted down a bill to ban the campus sale of magazines and postcards featuring nudes. A month earlier, the University of Virginia student government junked a similar proposal because it smacked of censorship.

Colorado, in fact, is one of the few schools to actually implement a ban.

"It was a buyer's decision to remove part of a certain line, not censorship in any form," Cruff said.

The ban, effective the last day of CU's summer semester, has produced little student reaction, but Cruff said "everyone is happy with the decision. I continue to receive letters of support from people off campus."

Cruff says he had long considered the ban, and the Williams photos finalized his decision.

CU Feminist Alliance and Lesbian Caucus members, who lobbied for the move since at least 1981, are happy Cruff's action was a personal choice, not a result of their pressure.

The CU outlet sold 30 to 50 copies monthly of both Penthouse and Playboy, but Cruff said the ban won't affect sales figures.

"Compared to overall sales it won't show even if you try to calculate it."

Store managers are most likely to drop magazines for economic, not moral, reasons, said Charles Phodt of the National Association of College Stores (NACS).

Acrobatic footwork was the name of the game for SU cheerleader Janis Thompson. (Photo by Scott Johnson)

"While there have been store managers who remove pornography as a matter of propriety or of taste," he said, "the usual reason is people who hang around the racks, thumbing through the magazines. Racks become reading rooms instead of sales points."

NACS takes a dim view of censorship, though Phodt adds, "I happen to know the management in the Boulder bookstore is strong against censorship."

Penthouse magazine disagrees.

"We hear about things like the CU ban and we're not happy about them," said Leslie Jay, a Penthouse spokeswoman. "Basically, it's a form of censorship."

The controversial September issue sold will over five million copies, Jay said.

"It was our all-time best-seller. For the first time in 15 years, we went back to press a second time."

Jay said the September issue's success is driving up distributor requests for the January edition, which will contain more Williams photos.

Gregory named director of Annual Support Program

(NB) In a staff expansion program approved by the SU Development Foundation board of directors, Rosemary Reichert Gregory has been named director of the foundation's Annual Support Programs. Gregory previously was development associate for Prairie Public Television in Fargo.

In announcing Gregory's appointment, James Miller, foundation executive director, said "Our development program had reached a point that significant future growth could only come through the addition of staff with specific fund-raising responsibilities.

"We have had several programs on the drawing board for two years, but they have not been implemented primarily because time was not available through existing staff. The addition of Gregory will allow us to begin implementing many of the programs which should strengthen our fund-raising endeavors in behalf of SU."

Gregory attended Lehigh University, Lehigh, Pa., graduated from Dickinson College and completed graduate courses at the University of Rhode Island, Kingston, and Salve Regina College, Newport, R.I.

She previously taught in secondary schools in Middleton, Wis., Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, and Red Lodge, Mont. She received her M.P.T. in Fargo in 1979.

Gregory's appointment was announced Sept. 20.

Joyful wedlock portrayed in popular play at FMCT

The musical "I DO! I DO!" announces its forthcoming appearance on the stage of the Emma K. Herbst Playhouse, where it has been scheduled for presentation by the Fargo-Moorhead Community Theatre for performances beginning Sept. 14 to 29. Reservations are required. Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for students and senior citizens.

Brandy Lee and John Klocke (Agnes and Michael) will be starred in this musical that is lauded with the record of two 19 month runs in New York, followed by two highly acclaimed cross-country tours.

With book and lyrics by Tom Jones and musical score by Harvey Schmidt—the imaginative authors of the enduring success, "I do! I do!," is a joyous recital of the lives together of a happily married couple over a span of 50 years.

The Fargo-Moorhead Community Theatre's production of "I do! I do!" will be directed by Martin Jonason, who accounts for the popularity of the musical, may be the fact that it is a happy mirror of many actual marriages, and that it is full of the belief that marriage, love and life can still be pretty wonderful despite the pessimists who seem to be writing a good many other plays, musicals, movies and novels nowadays with the sour viewpoint.

The settings will be designed by Marvin Jonason. Costumes—a parade of fashions of the years 1890 to 1940—will be designed by Bonnie Edwards. An opening-night gala is scheduled for September 14 immediately following the show. Ticket reservations are required for the show and can be procured by contacting the ticket office.

Opinion

A recent article in The Forum concerning relationships between students and long-term residents of near-campus neighborhoods applies to SU students, also. Moorhead city officials have been trying harder to form a "peaceful coexistence" between the long-term residents of neighborhoods near MSU and Concordia and the young people who live nearby.

Some permanent residents are concerned with many students' behavior. These problems also occur around SU's campus. They include parking problems, blaring stereos and crowds of partygoers wandering around at night.

I feel that students can get along with their neighbors whether they are classmates or families. Compromises must be made by both parties.

Students have to realize that just because they don't have class on Saturdays, the rest of the neighborhood doesn't have to work either. Businesspeople can get very irritated when all-night parties keep them awake. As students, I think we need to show some consideration for the general populous of Fargo. Parties are a great way to relax, have fun and get to know people, but we should try, and keep trying, to hold them down to a reasonable level.

However, I don't feel the responsibility lies solely on the students' shoulders. Long-term residents must realize that the students and other young people aren't going to move out of the neighborhood. Most of them were in college at one time, and I'm sure they have done their share of partying, also.

Kids will be kids, but somewhere along the line, everyone grows older and wiser. Let's strive for good relationships and use some common sense when we're out having a good time.

Students are willing to clean up any mess, the rule should be repealed.

As long as people are careful, it should be okay to have pop because it keeps you awake.

They should change the rule on a trial basis and see if the library turns into a garbage pit.

The rule should be changed provided people throw away the garbage.

Rules are only guidelines; with any privilege, you abuse it, you lose it.

Upperclassman dislikes previous question concerning freshmen

I object to the phrasing of last week's Spectrum Opinion Poll: "In what ways can you recognize a freshman on campus?" The tone of the question is such that it seems to single out freshmen while the responses it evokes seem to poke fun at them.

I would venture to guess that for each person who answered the poll, everyone of them would be able to reel off at least a dozen amusing incidents and perhaps bizzare situations that they encountered their freshman year. Therefore, I think a more appropriate question may have been, "What was one of your most embarrassing moments during freshman year?"

In retrospect, I remember my freshman year and the many upperclassmen who went out of their way to give me hints on registration procedures, encourage me to get involved in campus organizations, and direct me when I wandered aimlessly in search of Van Es Hall. I like to think that there is an unwritten rule here at SU that says upperclassmen are willing to go out of their way to help freshmen, because they remember the trials and traumas of freshman year.

As a seasoned upperclassman, I would like to extend a special welcome to the new students on campus. Despite the maze of fee payments, registration procedures, and long lines in the bookstore, I know that you will find SU to be an inspiring, exciting, and friendly school. I think I speak for many instructors, administrators, and students when I say, "We're glad you're here!"

Auditions being held for parts in a Tennessee Williams drama

Auditions for the Little Country Theatre production of "The Glass Menagerie" will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, in Askane Auditorium.

One of the most famous plays of the modern theater, this Tennessee Williams drama reflects great tenderness, charm and beauty as it depicts the plight of Amanda Wingfield, a faded remnant of Southern gentility, and her children. They all seek a world of illusion in order to make life bearable, but Amanda's son, Tom, escapes reality.

The production, directed by Tal Russell, professor of the arts, requires two males and two females. Any SU student, regardless of major, may audition. Auditions are Nov. 1 to 3 and performance dates are Nov. 1 to 3 and 10.

You can't ask for better navigator training than you can get from the United States Air Force. And you can't be better prepared to chart your own course for the future than through Air Force ROTC.

If you're a young person who can qualify for navigator training, you've got a good start. You can also compete for a scholarship that will provide financial assistance while you work on your degree.

After commissioning, your top notch training will continue at Mather Air Force Base near Sacramento, where Air Force navigators are trained in the ultra-modern T-43 jet aircraft.

Following 33 weeks of intensive training, you'll be awarded the silver wings of an Air Force navigator. From there on, the sky's the limit!

Is your calculator in the same class you are?

Move up to the TI-66. The easy 512 step programmable.

You're into higher math and your old calculator helped get you there.

But now it's time for something more. The TI-66 from Texas Instruments. The TI-66 offers full programming power and flexibility so you can solve complex and repetitive math problems quickly, easily and with fewer keystrokes than you thought possible. Its 512 merged program steps and over 170 built-in scientific, engineering and statistical functions make for powerful programming. And the sleek, streamlined design makes for easy use.

Its Algebraic Operating System makes it easy on your brain by allowing you to key in problems as they are written, left to right. And a 10-digit angled Liquid Crystal Display not only makes it easy on your eyes but provides alphanumeric notation of your program steps so you can make easy modifications as you go along. There are large, readable keys for your fingers, and an easy-to-follow guidebook so you shouldn't get confused. And last, but certainly not least, at a suggested retail of $69.95, there's a price that's easy on your pocketbook.

All in all, if we made the TI-66 programmable calculator any easier to use, it would deserve its own degree.

Counseling Center approaches student needs

By Beth Forkner

Can't figure out what classes to take? Confused about a major? What about choosing a career? If you're worried about any of these, the Center for Student Counseling and Personal Growth has something to offer you.

Dr. Gary Narum, director of the Counseling Center, says they have various ways of approaching students' concerns.

An individual approach is sometimes used. The student meets with a counselor and talks about his indecisiveness. The emphasis is on working at moving toward being able to make choices and decisions. An interest inventory is usually used as a tool to help the student make these choices. Sometimes an ability test is also taken.

Other times a student can come to classes where the emphasis is on abilities and individual values. In these classes the student can research possible occupations, interview people in various professions, and take a look at himself to develop decision-making skills.

One such class is Education 124—Career Planning. The class meets for 10 weeks, two hours a week. It is designed to help students explore and synthesize the two major dimensions of career development: understanding of oneself and understanding careers and the world of work.

A third option for students is going to the career resource center, a small room located in the Counseling Center. It is a library of career and occupational materials. Open during regular business hours (8-5, Mon.-Fri.), the center also has a microcomputer students can use to find out about careers.

Students can use the room anytime. Narum encourages students to limit their time on the computer to one hour. Appointments can be made to use the computer.

The computer uses a program called Discover which is a guidance information system containing majors, schools and careers.

Discover has four parts. The first part, called "Learning About Yourself," has three exercises which help a student collect and organize information about himself. The exercises are an interest inventory, an abilities assessment and a values inventory. A list of occupations is printed after each exercise.

The second part of Discover is "Searching for Occupations." A file of more than 400 occupations can be searched in various ways. One way is to enter the scores of various interest inventories. The Strong-Campbell Interest Inventory and the Ohio Vocational Interest Inventory are only two such interest inventories. Aptitude or ability test scores can also be entered, as well as college majors or programs of study. Another way of searching this file is to enter a selection of desired job characteristics such as employment outlook, work setting, supervision, income level and pressure on the job.

After you've learned about yourself, it's important to learn about occupations. Part three of Discover, "Learning About Occupations," is designed for this. This program has two levels. The first level is Browsing, which teaches how occupations are organized and gives some information about each. The second part, Detail, allows the student to ask up to 14 questions about each occupation. Some of the questions asked include:

- What are the work tasks?
- Where is the work done?
- What are ways of getting training?
- How is the occupation likely to be affected by technology or change?
- What personal qualities are needed?

Discover's fourth part, "Searching for Educational Institutions," helps students learn about various schools. The student can enter characteristics important to him such as majors available, cost range, size, competition for admission and affiliation.

In addition to Discover, the career resource center offers many college catalogs, as well as post-graduate program information and vocational guides.

Besides the career resource center classes and individual counseling, Narum encourages students to talk to their instructors and advisers. "They are excellent resource people especially for subject matter. The most important thing is to use all resources available."

WHAT EVERY STUDENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN LEASING A TELEPHONE AND LEASING A CHICKEN.

Yes, there are differences. And we think you should know what they are. Ask yourself these questions.

WHEN YOU LEASE A CHICKEN, DO YOU GET THREE MONTHS FREE DURING THE SUMMER?

Probably not. But when you lease your telephone from AT&T this fall, you won't pay any lease charges next summer. You can use your phone at home, and bring it back to school in the fall.

DO LEASED CHICKENS COME IN A SELECTION OF COLORS AND STYLES?

No. Chickens don't come in many colors. But the AT&T telephone you lease this fall comes in a variety of colors and three popular styles.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS REPAIRED FREE?

Don't kid yourself. Repairing a chicken is a delicate process that requires the work of expensive professionals. However, in the off chance your AT&T leased telephone needs repairs, we'll fix it absolutely free when you visit any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ARE LEASED CHICKENS SHIPPED DIRECTLY TO YOU?

Ship a chicken? Don't be silly. However, your AT&T leased telephone will be shipped directly to you after one call to 1-800-555-8111, or you can pick up your phone at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

ONE FINAL QUESTION: DOES IT COST THE SAME TO LEASE A CHICKEN AS TO LEASE A TELEPHONE THIS FALL?

Hardly. While we have no hard data on the exact cost of leasing a chicken, we can tell you with some certainty that the cost of leasing a telephone this fall is far less than you might think.

The decision to lease a chicken or a telephone, of course, rests with you.

But should you opt for the telephone, remember: you get three months free next summer, and you can take the phone home with you. There's a choice of colors and styles, free repair, and we'll ship you the phone or you can pick it up at any of our AT&T Phone Centers.

It doesn't cost much either. And that's something to crow about.

SU winning streak is bombed Saturday night

By Michael Morey

The North Dakota State Bison snapped a 23-game home win streak Saturday night losing their North Central Conference opener 28-21 to the Mankato State Mavericks.

In losing their first game of the year, the Herd played to a very hungry, fired-up Maverick football team. Mankato State was out to avenge their 10-9 loss a year ago, and they did just that.

The Bison defense found themselves vulnerable to the run again, giving up 265 yards to the Mavs on 60 carries. Mankato runningback Dave Beyer led the attack on the ground with 141 yards in 29 attempts.

It was a costly game for the Herd in more ways than one. Strong safety Tom Van Voorhis broke his arm, and could need surgery. Outside linebacker Lee Munson left with pinched nerve in his neck, and the other outside linebacker, Jim Dick, suffered an ankle injury.

The Bison offense met its match in the well-prepared Mankato State defense. Mankato stopped the Bison five yards away from the end zone with what could have been the game-tying score in the last two minutes of the contest.

Momentum went against the Herd on their first drive, when Quarterback Jeff Bentrin threw his first interception of the year. The turnover was also the team's first of the year.

Mankato State capitalized on the turnover by scoring a touchdown on a five yard Dave Beyer run for a 7-0 lead midway through the first quarter. Beyer scored all four touchdowns for the visiting Mavs.

The Herd came back from that one touchdown deficit to score twice in the second period, the first on a Chad Stark one-yard run, then on a Bentrin 12-yard pass to Stacy Robinson leaving the score 14-7 at the half.

The two teams traded touchdowns in the third quarter, with the Bison scoring first on Stark's five-yard run around the right side, then the Mavs answering with a Beyer three-yard TD run to bring the score 21-14.

The fourth quarter began with the ball in Mankato's hands at their 46-yard line, and successfully completing the drive four minutes into the quarter, scoring on a Beyer one-yard run to knot the score at 21 apiece.

The Herd drive that followed stalled at their own 41, and the Jon Dunbar punt that followed carried 35 yards, leaving the Mavs in possession of the ball at their own 24 yard line.

The Mankato State ground game took over on that drive, with the aid of a 15 yard personal foul penalty against SU, to take control of the game, on a 1-yard scoring run by Beyer. With 3:31 left in the contest, the Bison offense was unable to tie the game.

While the Mavs running game was eating up yardage on the ground, the passing game of the Mavericks was equally effective, with freshman quarterback Jack O'Connor completing eight of nine passes for 129 yards and no interceptions.

Bentrin was nine of twenty in the air, for 104 yards and one interception, in addition to rushing for 86 yards on 15 carries.

SU now drops to 1-1 on the year, 0-1 in the NCC, while Mankato State is 2-1 overall, and 1-0 in the NCC. The Bison are on the road next week, traveling to Augustana College for a 7 p.m. contest next Saturday.

Rolf played major role in success of SU Women's Volleyball team

By Kathy Stoll

Women's volleyball at SU has increased in popularity and skill level in the past years. The Bison have passed, set and hit their way into three consecutive NCAA Division II national championships.

Senior, Pati Rolf (Hopkins, MN.), has played a major role in this continuing success. Rolf has been one of the starting six for four years of college ball in the middle hitter position.

Last year Rolf was named All-Conference for the Bison and has been chosen on numerous all-tournament teams.

Rolf considers SU as a definite volleyball threat and credits this to SU's success. "We have established ourselves as a threat, and we keep fighting to make North Dakota known. The best way to do this is to win and let everybody know that there is actually volleyball in Fargo, N.D.," Rolf said.

Competition is a lot stronger, faster and more complex since she was a freshman, Rolf said. "Women are more dedicated—it's some players whole life. Volleyball is also a major sport now. It's not a second or third sport participated in just to keep in shape," she said.

In fact, volleyball has become so intense at the collegiate level that year-round training is a major part of being a member of the SU volleyball team.

"I play year round and lift weights year round," Rolf said. "Coach Donna Palivec gives us a summer workout to do and it's back to volleyball in August. We have to come back in shape and strong.

When I do my off-season workouts I have the attitude that for every workout I'm preparing myself for a new season and I push to be stronger than the season before."

"Sometimes it's hard to keep the grades up because we miss two or three days of school every week. It's really hard to be ready for Monday's classes after two consecutive days of non-stop volleyball. But we (the team) know our grades are just as important as the success we have on the court, so we make it a point to keep our grades up and not waste a lot of time," Rolf said.

Rolf expects this year's team to be number one. "But if it's not in God's plan to win, then our team will still have a good experience trying to reach that goal, and the work would have been worth it," she said.

After Rolf's senior year is over, she plans on playing volleyball overseas. If not, she has plans to coach—possibly at the college level someday. "I'll probably play volleyball the rest of my life. I can play on some very good league teams. The workouts won't be a part of it but the competition will always be out there," Rolf said.

One of the main reasons Rolf will give up so much for the sport of volleyball is because she feels athletics can help someone both physically and mentally.

"It's important everyone has something they can work for to be number one. It doesn't have to be their whole life, but they must treat it as a job that they'll work hard at and enjoy. They have to put into it what it deserves and not cheat themselves," she said.
