

Only few SU graduates are unemployed

By Kevin Cassella

The majority of the 1981-82 SU graduates are either employed or continuing their education, according to a recently released survey by the office of academic affairs.

Although a preliminary report was issued last fall, the final report has been broken down to include statistics according to the various majors and academic majors. Included in the survey are comments about the education the graduates received while attending the 1982 may sound like history to some students, Roberta Quick, an administrative assistant, said she took about a year to complete and some of the students have had their jobs only about a year.

"This is the first time anything like this has been done on a university level," she said.

Quick added some colleges and universities may have followed the graduates on a part-time basis.

Of the 993 respondents, 92 percent said they were employed in a permanent, full-time job, continuing their education or were in an activity other than full-time work, such as internships, temporary or part-time work. Only 5.5 percent were unemployed and looking for work.

Most of the employed graduates found work within the region. The majority, 43 percent, work in North Dakota, with 20 percent working in Minnesota. The remainder is widely scattered throughout the nation with higher concentrations in Texas and California.

The survey indicated 55 percent of those employed have salaries of $15,000 or more, while 21 percent reported salaries less than $10,000. About 3 percent indicated salaries of $30,000 or greater.

The majority of the graduates described their jobs as being creative, satisfying, challenging requiring responsibilities and an enjoyable experience with fellow workers. Only 35 percent indicated their positions had good opportunity for advancement.

The graduates reported the main reason for accepting a position was the learning opportunity involved. Geographic area, job security and salary were also common reasons given for accepting a job.

Securing a position clearly required a great deal of personal effort. Over 25 percent received jobs apparently by direct contact with the organization. The SU Placement Office, friends and family also played a major role, the survey said.

Almost 50 percent of the graduates had found jobs by graduation or within a week after the start of their job search. Over 11 percent required over six months to locate a job.

Of the graduates responding, 21 percent are continuing their education. Some of these may also be working at the same time.

Most students wanted to study in a specific field, while others cited a need for further training as reasons for continuing education.

Comments from the graduates advised students to take a lot of practical courses and get part-time jobs in their field, said Quick.

"That is about the most valuable thing we can give students here, is to tell them about past experiences of recent graduates."

The purpose of the survey was to gather information that would be useful to current and prospective students in making career and education plans.

"Because no matter how things were 10 to 15 years ago, we've got to check to see how things are now."

Copies of the complete report are available at all administrative offices, including the counseling center and with all college deans. Abbreviated copies are available in each academic department.

Loftsgard's yard used as a bronc's temporary corral

Horse thieves made an early morning raid atop of Bronks Drive-in Package Store, 20 South University Drive, Fargo, and made off with the store's bucking bronco.

A police posse, however, soon corralled the hollow, 15-pound replica, which measures about 4 feet tall, in the yard of SU President L.D. Loftsgard's home. By the time the posse arrived, the suspects had already made their getaway.

The horse, which is about one-third the regular size, is the store's advertising logo. It was rounded up by authorities at about 3:30 a.m. and was returned to the store.

A tip on the horse's whereabouts was made in an anonymous telephone call to WDAY-FM announcer Jason Palmer, said Capt. George Pavlicek. The callers referred to themselves as "The Condo Brothers."

Pavlicek said that if the horse thieves are apprehended, they could be charged with theft. But Pavlicek also noted that in this part of the country, "horse thieves are hung." (reprinted from The Forum)

House bill would adjust payment according to borrower's income

Beth Forkner

You may have seen an advertisement reading something like this: "You can reduce the amount of your monthly student-loan payments by 50 percent or more by refinancing at a 7 percent rate over 20 years. If your loan totals $7500 or more, ask at your college student aid office about the 'option' plan."

There was such a program and it excited many people. However the program expired in November 1983. According to "Student Aid News," "Unless Congress moves to create a new federal student loan consolidation program this month, prospects are grim for getting the program under way before 1986."

According to Wayne Tessmer, director of student financial aids, there used to be only one agency, Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae), which handled the option program. Apparently though other agencies wanted to be part of the program, no one could agree on what to do, no one would compromise, and the bill sits in Congress.

"Student Aid News" says, "Long debate over the program's structure and a crowded election-year Senate calendar threaten to delay passage of the legislation and make it unlikely and action will be taken until the re-authorization of the Higher Education Act next year."

"By the time that bill is rewritten and rules are put in place for consolidation there is a strong possibility it would be another two years before the program is operational again."

The proposed bills have a couple of changes from the original program. The Senate bill, introduced by Robert Stafford (R-Vt.) would raise the interest rate on the consolidated loan payments from 7 percent to 9 percent and would shorten the repayment period from 20 to 15 years. It would also limit the pro-

Today's babies will pay high for education

(CPS)—By the time the babies born this year get to college, they may have to pay $45,000 to $180,000 for their degrees and face a huge post-graduate debt, according to a recent accounting firm study.

"We've witnessed an increase of more than 330 percent in tuition and required fees over the past 15 years in the public sector alone," said Clark Bernard, chairman of higher education planning for Coopers and Lybrand, which conducted the college costs study for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU).

If such rapid tuition increases continue through the turn of the century, as many financial experts expect, "families who have a child this year will probably have to spend $45,000 for a public college education in 18 years," Bernard said.

The cost of sending a child to a private college, moreover, will run from $140,000 to $180,000, the study predicts.

"The implications (of the study) are extremely serious," said Allan Ostar, AASCU president.

We may well be creating a debtor class of students by charging so much for tuition that students will spend decades paying back their education loans, he said.

Currently, the cost of attending a public college averages $15,000, Bernard says, while four years at a private institution runs about $37,000.

A recent University of Wisconsin study, Oster says, shows that today's average college student already has a debt of $8,200 upon graduation.

Compounding high tuition rates is the federal student aid programs' shift from giving students money through grants to a greater dependence on loan programs.

Two decades ago, Ostar said, about 70 percent of all federal student aid was in the form of grants and other awards. Today, 70 percent of all aid money is in loans which students must repay after graduating.

If tuition rates continue to soar and the balance between grants and loans remains lopsided, he says, a student's ability to purchase summer goods, a car, clothes—things it takes to get started in life—will be seriously impaired.

And future college students such as momentous debts "may be influenced in what kind of field they go into based on how well they help them repay their loans, rather than choosing the field they want to go into."

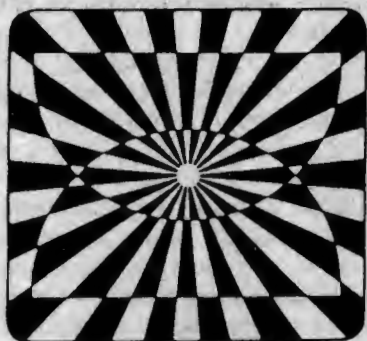

The teaching field, he notes, will be drastically affected by big tuition debts, as more and more graduates are forced to work in the private sector, where salaries are significantly higher.

program to borrowers with debts greater than 500 percent of their income and would allow banks and agencies to consolidate student loans.

The proposed House bill would adjust debt payment terms on a sliding scale based on the borrower's income. Commercial lenders, but not state agencies, would be allowed to consolidate loans under the House plan.

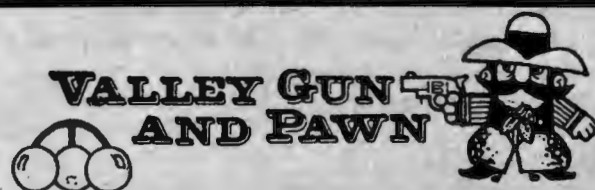

"This program is something that is really needed bad," Tessmer said, "and it is going to be needed more and more in the years to come. Individual obligations are getting to be upwards of $8,000, $10,000, or even $15,000. Something has to be done."

Nominations of students are due for submission to "Who's Who"

College deans, department chairs, faculty members, members of Student Government and student organizations are asked to submit nominations of students for submission to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Nominations are due by Tuesday, October 9.

Only college juniors, seniors and graduate students matriculated in a four-year undergraduate or graduate curriculum are eligible for nomination. Consideration should be given to students whose academic standing, participation in extracurricular activities and community service are definitely above average.

Since 1934, "Who's Who" has furthered the aims of higher education by rewarding and recognizing individual academic excellence on a national level. As a lifetime benefit, student members of the "Who's Who" program are entitled to use the special Reference Service, maintained for the exclusive assistance of students seeking postgraduate employment or fellowships. There is no charge to the student, the prospective employer or graduate school for this service. SU is one of 1,400 institutions of higher learning across the country participating in the program.

For more information, contact the Student Organization Development and Activities Office.

EEE graduates are in demand nationally

While the survey data showed similarities among graduates from the various colleges, there were some differences, especially in the data provided by students from the College of Engineering and Architecture.

For example, these graduates indicated an 8 percent unemployment rate.

Electrical, industrial and mechanical engineers are in demand nationally and it might have been easier for those majors to get jobs, said Roberta Quick, an administrative assistant in the academic affairs office.

But one area that had low placement was construction management.

"The market for construction was low and I think that probably hurt some of the construction management majors too," she said.

A lower number of graduates, 45 percent, reported as having jobs in either North Dakota or Minnesota. The reason being that the appeal for jobs seems to be more national rather than local, Quick said.

These students also reported the SU Placement Office as where they located their job.

"SU is known for its engineering programs and for that reason the Placement Office attract employers," she said, explaining why engineers had an easier time getting positions through that office.

But it was these graduates, along with students from the College of Pharmacy, that reported the highest salaries, Quick said.

More graduates from the College of University Studies, at 48 percent, decided to continue their education than any other college. The College of Home Economics, at 12 percent, had the least number of students continuing their education.

Measure could initiate 911 emergency number

The people of Fargo will have the opportunity to vote on a measure which would initiate a 911 emergency telephone number.

A 911 emergency telephone number would help residents immensely. In case of an emergency, one phone call would do the trick. You wouldn't have to look up various numbers for different kinds of emergencies...just dial 911.

This system would benefit people of all ages— young children who find themselves needing help in an emergency, the elderly and anyone who is under stress during an emergency.

Many cities the size of Fargo have an emergency number. Although there are many advantages with this system, people can find ways to abuse it, also. Many times the system gets used for routine business and informational calls. Those people who tie up the system with trivial calls, are the same people who have the capability to get the system cancelled.

If Fargo voters get the measure passed, please use it for true emergencies only. It is a good system and we can all benefit from it if it's not abused.

Student feels dorms have much to offer to students

This letter is in response to an article in the Friday, September 21st issue of the Spectrum. This article, written by Jennifer Olson, reported the new policy of NDSU fraternities this year concerning their rush week activities; no alcohol. I have no opinion on this and it is not what this letter concerns.

What I am concerned about is the way Jennifer portrayed the NDSU residence halls in the article. She bluntly states that the residence halls do not offer the leadership skills, sense of loyalty, and qualities of brotherhood associated with the frats. As a former president of Reed-Johnson, I cannot let a statement like that go by without comment.

Granted, the fraternities can offer the chance to develop those qualities mentioned. But the condemnation of the dorms as being lacking in these departments justifies rebuttal.

I can verify through my own experience that residence halls can offer these qualities as well as fraternity. The residents I know were loyal, hard-working and felt a responsibility to our organization. As far as enhancing leadership skills goes, the potential can be greater in a dorm than in a frat in that the budget, affairs, and activities concern hundreds of students rather than a handful associated with a fraternity. Finally, to state that dorms lack brotherhood is misleading in that the potential for meeting new people, making friends, working with others, etc. is found in NDSU residence halls as well as frats.

I respect the NDSU fraternities. They have done many good things for the campus and community. To shoot down the dorms in order to show fraternities in a good light is unprecedented and ill-informed.

Supply-side economics not taken seriously

(CPS)—Though starting their fourth school year since the advent of "Reaganomics," college economics departments still aren't taking supply-side economics very seriously.

"Supply side is a political issue," said Professor Phillip Cagan, head of Columbia University's economics department.

Cagan, like many of the professors interviewed for this article, believes, "It will be gone in a few years."

But some supply-side proponents, notably former Southern California professor Arthur Laffer, contend the theory is in fact making headway in college classrooms.

"It's being taught everywhere," Laffer says, "and has become the basic precept of the (economics) professional journals."

Laffer was one of the first advocates of supply-side theory, which forecasts that tax cuts — not the "pump priming" of Keynesian economics — would best stimulate the economy.

Laffer's ideas attracted a small coterie of followers, including a Wall Street Journal editorialist named Jude Wanniski. Wanniski's writings eventually attracted converts like Ronald Reagan, Sen. William Roth and Rep. Jack Kemp.

All, of course, eventually helped mold America's current supply-side economic policy. Despite evidence the policy has helped generate record levels of economic growth, many campus economics departments haven't adjusted their courses.

"Professors have the luxury of being able to teach obsolete theories longer than government and business can adhere to them at the risk of losing money," Wanniski said.

The reason it's not taught is that it's not a very good theory, others counter.

The recent economic recovery is explained better by traditional economic theory than by supply-side theory, said Professor Michael Veseth, an economist at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wa.

"The big spending cuts, world recession and large structural deficits that caused the recovery have more to do with old-fashioned Keynesian pump-priming than with supply-side economics."

Keynesian theory, hatched by British economist John Maynard Keynes, has been the basis of American economic policy since the 1930s, when President Franklin Roosevelt employed it to try to spark a recovery from the Great Depression.

Keynes' then-radical advice was to let the government go into debt in order to get money to inject into the economy, thus stimulating consumer demand. With consumer demand up, business would be producing goods and services to meet the demand.

When demand and government spending sparked inflation, Laffer advised the government to stop spending.

Politics is emphasis of quarter's Science and Theology Forums

(NB)—Politics will be emphasized during the fall quarter Science/Theology Forums. The speakers and their topics are Dr. Dean Alger of the political science department at MSU, "The Political Process and the Media," Oct. 4; Dr. David Danbom of the history department at SU, "Elections in Historical Perspective," Oct. 11; Dr. Joyce Flint, coordinator of the Master of Liberal Arts Program at MSU, "Image in the 1980s (or Whatever Happened to American Character?)," Oct. 25, and Dr.

Arland Jacobson, director of CHARIS at Concordia College, "Religion and Politics," Nov. 1.

The forums are held at 12:30 p.m. on Thursdays in Meinecke Lounge of the SU Memorial Union and are open to all interested persons. Those attending may bring sack lunches or purchase light lunches from a food service cart.

Sponsored by the University Lutheran Center, the forums are aired live by KDSU-FM, SU92. For further information contact the Rev. Ralph Rusley, campus pastor.

"Talks, not Troops in Central America" is presentation in the States Room on Friday

(NB)—A discussion in support of a policy of "Talks, not Troops in Central America" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the States Room of the Memorial Union.

Speakers will include a representative of the Nicaraguan Women's Association, Sister Marjorie Tuite, director of citizen action for the national office of Church Women United, and Melinda Plastas, national program director for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

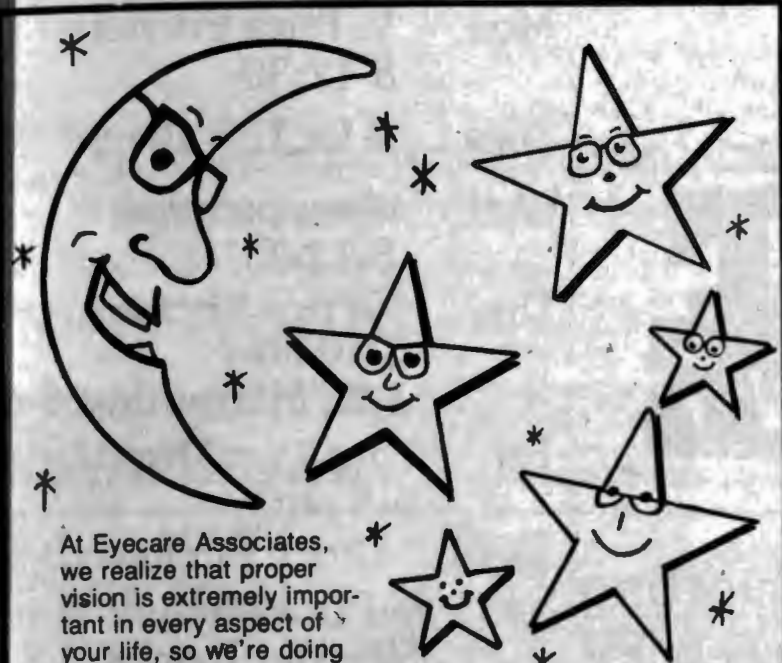

The women are on a speaking tour sponsored by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and promoted by a national random sample of 11,000 women conducted last spring documenting the existence of a gender gap in Central America.

The survey revealed that 65 percent of women believe the United States should decrease in military involvement in Central America and only 4 percent support the administration policy of enlarging the U.S. military presence there.

The speakers also will provide an update on recent developments in this region.

Open to the public at no charge, the talk is sponsored by the F-M Peaceworkers and SU St. Paul's Newman Center. For more information contact Dave Haley.

Education proves to help in finding jobs

(CPS)—A college education continues to be a big help in getting a job according to a newly-released report by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

As of March, 1984, the unemployment rate among college graduates averaged 2.7 percent, compared to 7.2 percent for high school graduates and 11.6 percent for workers with an eighth grade education or less, the report shows.

The unemployment rate for college grads this year represents a significant drop from the 3.5 percent in 1983, and 3.0 percent in 1982, notes BLS spokesman Rick Dedens.

College graduates make up a majority of the workers in most managerial and professional fields, as well as the bulk of workers in technical and sales occupations.

Among professional occupations—health and medical services, law, teaching, engineering, math, and computer services—college graduates comprise 78 percent of the work force, the report reveals.

In addition, college graduates make up 43.5 percent of all executive, administrative, and managerial jobs, 36 percent of sales positions, and 33 percent of all technical occupations.

For the third consecutive year, the number of college graduates in the labor force rose by more than a million, the report also shows, 600,000 of whom were women.

Women graduates now comprise 38 percent of all workers with 4 or more years of college compared to 32 percent in 1970. Over the same period, the report notes, the number of women graduated who work rose from 61 percent the 78 percent.

Black female graduates show an even higher employment rate, according to the study, which shows that 88 percent of all black women grads hold jobs.

Among white female grads, 77 percent are now employed.

And among male graduates, both white and black, 95 percent are active in the labor force.

Since "we don't really ask people their motivations or reasons for being employed," the BLS's Dedens says, the report doesn't explain the increases in labor force participation among women and blacks.

Apply at Student Affairs to become a Truman Scholar

The Scholarship Program

Harry S. Truman Scholarships, which honor the thirty-third President of the United States, are awarded on the basis of merit to students who will be college juniors in the forthcoming academic year and who have an outstanding potential for leadership in any phase of government. Each scholarship covers eligible expenses of tuition, fees, books, and room and board, to a maximum of $5,000 annually for up to four years.

How To Apply

Colleges and universities nominate students for Truman Scholarships. Obtain information from the Truman Scholarship Faculty Representative on your campus, or inquire at the President's office.

Deadline

Official nominations must be submitted postmarked on or before December 1.

Eligibility

To be considered for nomination, a student must: be a sophomore pursuing a bachelor's degree on a full-time basis. A student in a two-year college who plans to transfer to a baccalaureate program may be nominated.

have an average of at least B and be in the upper fourth of his or her class.

be a U.S. citizen or a U.S. national.

have selected a major that will permit admission to a graduate program leading to a career in government.

have a demonstrated interest in a career in government at the federal, state, or local level.

be nominated by his or her college or university on the official nominating materials provided by the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation.

Selection

Applicants will be judged on their submitted credentials. Semifinalists will be personally interviewed by Regional Review Panels.

PRESENTING THE IBM COMPATIBLE CHAMELEON

$1,595⁰⁰

The Chameleon by Sequa lets you run popular IBM software like Lotus 1-2-3 and dBASE II. It gives you a keyboard just like the IBM. A disk drive like the IBM. And a bright 80x25 character screen just like you know who. And it all comes complete at a price that isn't at all like an IBM.

But the Chameleon's $1595 price tag isn't its only advantage over its famous competitor. The Chameleon also has an 8 bit microprocessor that lets you run any of the thousands of CPM-80 programs available. It comes complete with two of the best programs around, Perfect Writer and Perfect Calc. It's portable. And you can plug it in and begin computing the moment you unwrap it.

So before you spend all your money on an IBM, consider the IBM compatible Chameleon by Sequa.

It's a tool for modern times that won't set you back a fortune.

Wellness and health are topics of new class at SU

By Beth Forkner

"Wellness is the right and privilege of everyone. There is no prerequisite for it other than your free choice. No matter what your current state of health is you can begin to appreciate yourself as a growing, changing person and allow yourself to move toward a statis state. You don't just get well and stay well.

"There are many degrees or levels of wellness just as there are degrees of illness." John Travis said in the early 1900s. It was appropriate then and is even more appropriate today in our health-conscious nation.

With so much emphasis put on health, most people recognize that smoking, everyday stress, obesity, poor nutrition, lack of regular exercise and excessive consumption of alcohol are harmful. Most of us want to assume greater responsibility for our health. However, we sometimes need help in knowing how to do so. This is why SU is offering a wellness class, Food and Nutrition 196.

The purpose of the class is to give students information on which they can make good health decisions, according to Dr. Guen Brown, chair of the Food and Nutrition Department. "We want to instill the idea of self-responsibility for wellness and health."

"We need to give people the appropriate tools to make good decisions. There has been a real increase in interest among the total population in health and wellness. Anytime you have lots of people interested in something there are going to be a lot of people trying to make money from that interest."

By teaching people ways to make their own health decisions Brown wants to help people avoid spending excessive money, misusing their time, and injuring themselves.

"A few decades ago doctors were expected to take care of you. Today the emphasis is more on self-responsibility for your own health," Brown said.

"We're for the medical profession but feel that responsibility rests with the individual and the family rather than external experts such as doctors."

Another reason the course is offered is because of the growing job opportunities in the health and wellness fields. There are several places a job like this might exist. Many health and fitness jobs are connected with corporations and businesses. A growing number of businesses have corporate fitness programs for their employees. Parks and recreation departments also need people in the field of health. The YMCA or other community-based recreation area would be an example of this. Brown says many hotels and motels also have well-equipped fitness programs, with swimming pools, workout rooms and saunas. All these areas need people to set up and operate such programs.

Wellness, according to Brown is preventive medicine but it is also much more than that. "Being well is more than not being sick. It's functioning at your best, both physically and emotionally."

The total wellness concept includes mental well-being, physical fitness, and positive dietary practices.

Currently, the Food and Nutrition Department is working with the Physical Education Department to develop a health and wellness major. Meanwhile both departments offer areas of emphases with options in wellness and fitness.

Food and Nutrition 196 has no prerequisite and is required by no major. "People taking the course are there because they want to be," Brown says.

The first time the class was offered was last spring. Starting this year it will be offered on a regular basis, both fall and spring quarters.

SU's cross country team starts the season off well

By Bamson Fadipe

Despite the heavy graduation loss of athletes, including All-American Paul LeBlanc, the Bison Men's cross country team is off to a good start this season as the team captured the UND Invitational this past Friday.

The Bison easily outscored the rest of the teams with 42 points, followed by University of Manitoba with 53 and the host UND finished third place with 93 points. SU's long-time local rival, MSU Dragons finished fourth place with 110 points.

SU's Greg Rohde and John Zimmerman were the only top individual finishers. Rohde finished in second place with a time of 25:55 and was followed by Zimmerman with a time of 26:13. Rolf Schmidt, Mark Handerson and Darell Hovde finished eighth, ninth and 20th place respectfully.

Coach Don Larson said that the meet was a good start for the team.

"We are not at full strength yet but I'm very pleased with the team's performance," Larson added. "The kids have been working extremely hard and it is paying off."

The Bison will take its 26 member team to Minneapolis Oct. 6 to compete in the University of Minnesota Invitational.

Minnesota Twins are one game behind the Kansas City Royals

By Rob Kelly

The Baseball season is drawing to a close and contrary to all those skeptics out there, the Minnesota Twins are still in the thick of things. Heading into the final week the Twins are just one game behind the Kansas City Royals.

Press Box

A long time ago in a ballpark soon to become office buildings and shopping centers a Twins team swept to the American League title ending Yankee domination of the league in the process. That was the year many of you were born — 1965. In fact, during the 60's the Twins led all of the league in attendance for the decade and claimed two divisional titles (one actually came in 1970) while coming within one game of a world championship.

So here we are twenty years later, and a youthful corps of talented ballplayers are bringing fans back to the park in record numbers...1.6 million to be exact (or nearly so).

Names like Killebrew, Allison, Oliva and Mincher are being replaced by Hrbek, Hatcher, Gaetti and Brunansky. And that's as it should be.

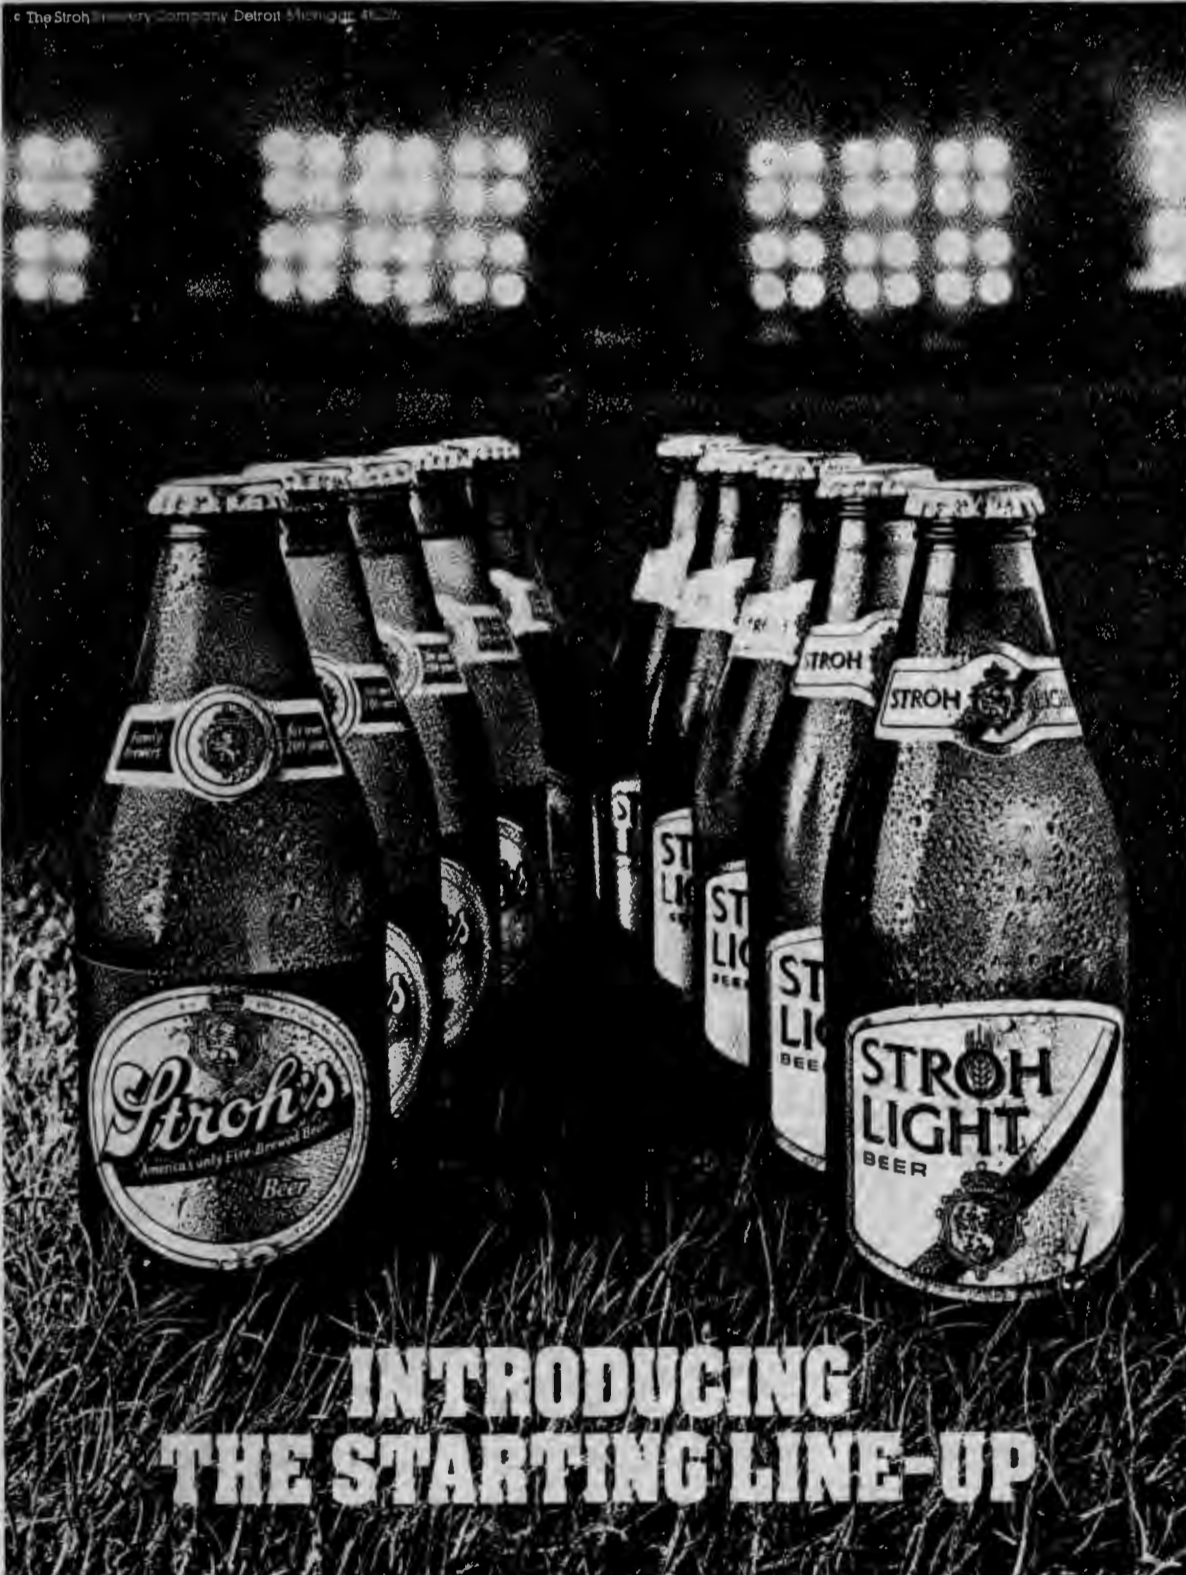

Baseball is going through some changes, and without being too judgemental, the nature of the fan seems to be one of the major alterations.

It's great to see 20 or 30 thousand fans per game at the Dome, but lets face it, some of them don't look like they belong at the game. Designer dresses, three-piece suits and Gucci shoes aren't appropriate stadium wear, but then again the Dome isn't a typical stadium.

With it's air conditioning, TV monitors in the hallways, CLEAN restrooms, and gourmet food, the Dome is bringing out the socially elite along with the baseball bum.

INTRODUCING THE STARTING LINE-UP

You've heard of us and now we're here. Stroh's and Stroh Light. The only fire-brewed beers in America. Brewed in small copper kettles. Over an open flame. To taste like no other beer in America. Smoother. Crisper. Better.

Sure, this method takes longer. And it costs more. But, after over 200 years of fire-brewing great-tasting beer, we don't plan to stop now.

So, try a Stroh's or Stroh Light wherever you buy your beer. Once you do, chances are you'll line up for another. And another.

Hockey Club has much to offer to students

By Michael Morey

The snow hasn't begun to fall yet and a group of SU students are already thinking very seriously about hockey. The students are all members of the Bison Hockey Club going into their second season 52 members strong. Hockey as a sport at SU has no affiliation with the athletic department at all and must operate as any other campus organization.

Taking the team into its second season is Head Coach Dave Morinville who comes to college hockey after a very successful career at Fargo North High School. Morinville, in five years at North, won the North Dakota state hockey tournament twice and captured the Coach of the Year honor once as well.

"The whole purpose of the club is to serve the community and give SU students the chance to play hockey on a collegiate level," Morinville said.

"I feel very encouraged after last year due to the support that we had," Morinville said. "The students obviously gave us excellent support. I was happy with the season also because the players worked really hard."

"A lot of the students we had come out last year didn't come to NDSU to play hockey, but they thought they could try out for a hockey club, so it worked out well in that regard."

Of the 52 members that came out for the club, only 32 will make the team. Morinville said that quite a few players are returning from last year's team.

The club members are not from any one specific geographic area, either. "The goal of the Bison Hockey Club is to serve the community and right now, by getting kids from all over, from Bismarck, Grafton and wherever, we will see that goal realized," Morinville said. "If they think where they came from, or what they did in high school, is going to make a difference in them making the team, that is not how I look at it."

No matter who ends up playing the Bison Hockey Team has got a busy winter ahead. A total of 28 games are scheduled, with 16 of them being played at the Fargo Coliseum, the site for the club's home games. The club will even be making a local television appearance this season with Channel 4, KXJB-TV, televising their December 4th contest with Concordia College.

All decisions are made by a vote of the club members, and they decided to hold practice from 8:15 to 9:45 in the morning, instead of the 11:30 p.m. until 1 a.m. practices they had with the team last year. The time the club selected does not interfere with any other group or team needing ice time at the Coliseum. Ice time will be paid at regular rates by the club.

The budget for the club has been set at $75,000 for the year. The club plans to pick up all expenses for the players, including equipment, sticks, travel, etc. With the Hockey Club only in its second year, the finances don't come as easily as with a more established program.

"The community has been very supportive and the students are selling ads for the programs. The publicity chairmen are doing a great job," Morinville said.

Obviously, one of the largest planned sources of revenue will be ticket sales. The Coliseum seats 3,500 people and the club averaged 2,500 for each of their 3 home games last year. Students with their activity fee will be admitted for $1 each, and public will be charged $3. Season tickets are also available to the public for $40 each, a savings off the regular price.

The scheduling of the games is very carefully planned as not to conflict with Bison basketball. Five home games are scheduled for Saturday afternoons at 2 pm, so that could possibly hurt attendance, but the club is even taking that into consideration.

Several area businesses are working with the club for giveaway promotions, and fan appreciation nights are being planned. The club is working with area auto dealers to hold a "Drop the Puck" promotion where a lucky fan could walk away with a new automobile.

"We are definitely going to make some good attendance this year make it," Morinville said. "If we don't make it, maybe we are beating our head against the wall, but I think the hockey community in Fargo will respond."

Morinville, who teaches half-time at Ben Franklin School in Fargo, is being paid a salary by the club, but the amount is only the difference lost in wages from going to part-time employment.

Morinville said he still wants interested persons to get in touch with him or faculty adviser B. Nielsen. "The club is in need of cheerleaders, publicity people and just plain members," Morinville said. The hockey club's season is underway on November 3, with a home game against Bemidji at 7

If they continue to come to the games, some of those social dynamos will begin trading their suits for Hawaiian shirts and their Gucci's for Adidas. They may even learn appropriate baseball lingo instead of discussing the big gains made on the Stock Exchange that day. Let's hope so. But for now, we'll take anyone as long as it helps fill the stands and give the players a lift.

This is a tough time of the year for me. I'm still intensely into baseball, but I've got football on the mind as well...and the hockey season is starting. The North Stars opened camp a few days ago, and the Bison hockey club gets their season practices started soon.

This will be a big year for the club, so give them some support by attending the home games...they're just a few years away from big time college hockey, but they can't make it without solid student backing.

One final comment. Last week Olympic silver-medal boxer Virgil Hill was arrested for illegal possession of alcohol by a minor. Three days earlier Hill was involved in a car accident north of Fargo where he and a friend left the scene. I think the pressures placed on Hill by his family, friends and people all across the state may be a bit too much for the 20-year-old fighter.

I hope he gets things worked out, because the youth of the state, especially in local boxing clubs, really look up to Hill. He has a chance to do a lot of good...or immeasurable harm through his actions.

The Herd pounds out the Vikings 49-28 in Saturday night action

By Michael Morey

The North Dakota State Bison rolled to a 49-28 win over the Augustana Vikings in the North Central Conference play Saturday night.

The Herd, now 2-1 on the year and 1-1 in league play, scored the first seven times they touched the ball, and didn't have to punt until there were but four minutes left in the game. SU had 512 yards in total offense to 345 yards for Augustana.
