Students have more aid dollars, but less aid, studies show

By Coreen Stevick

Financial aid adds a crucial relief to many students budgeting problems. The dollar amount received can mean the difference between continuing an education or dropping out to get a job for awhile.

According to reports published by SU's financial aid office, 57 percent of the enrollment in 1983 received some form of aid. It amounted to $13.1 million dollars last year.

There are a variety of financial aid programs, said Wayne Tesmer, SU Financial Aid officer. A student can apply for loans, grants, on-and-off-campus employment and scholarships.

"Need of the student is of primary concern, but isn't a concrete factor. We do look at other things," he said.

A uniform methodology formula is used to determine the need, based on a variety of factors including parental support.

Tesmer estimates a cost of $4,165 for a student living on campus for one year. This includes tuition, $350 for books, a seven-day room and board contract and approximately $100 per month for personal expenses.

"In the spring we look at the applications and provide that everyone gets at least something. The initial idea is that needs won't be entirely met. In many cases students have access to extra money from parents or other sources."

Tesmer said it is getting harder to get loans. According to College Press Service reports, the face of financial aid has changed drastically. Grant money has dropped from 80.3 percent of the total aid package to 48.2 percent while loans increased nearly 31 percent.

President Reagan is expected to sign the fiscal 1985 education funding bill which is now on his desk.

This bill is part of a $17.9 billion education package. Nearly $8 billion is set to be used in student financial aid packages with $3.6 billion for Pell Grants and $3 billion for Guaranteed Student Loans.

There appears to be considerable controversy surrounding the education bill. Some experts say it will greatly increase the number of students who are able to receive aid, while others predict it will only help those already in the program.

Regardless of the President's attempts to limit the education budget, this bill is $1.7 billion more than last year's and well over $1.5 billion more that he wanted.

In the budget request Reagan delivered to Congress last winter, he wanted to fund most programs at the same level, eliminate Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants and State Student Incentive

Campuses still battling phone systems

(CPS)—It's been a year now since court order broke up American Telephone and Telegraph's, communications monopoly into one long-distance service and seven regional carriers.

And it's been an unusual and occasionally rocky year for students as campuses struggle to cope with the changes by testing new phone systems and sometimes even becoming their own phone companies.

Moreover, a number of colleges don't know what they're doing, one consultant charged.

Other observers don't see the situations changing much in 1985.

For State University of New York Binghamton (SUNY-B) students, 84 was a year of dead lines, charges for extra services, and higher phone rates. "The university installed the system in good faith," Marjorie Lefler, the student government president, said "They hoped to provide cheaper service than the phone company."

It hasn't quite worked out on other campuses either.

The jury is still out on college-owned telephone systems, said Michael Toner, president of the Association of College and University Telecommunications Administrators (ACUTA).

Some schools considering telecommunications equipment purchases are appraising the mistakes of colleges that have already ventured to become their own phone companies.

"Most (systems) have been in service for less than two years," Toner noted. "Some schools that had the old Centrex (Bell owned) system would have been better off not to switch as Bell rate decreases have made some alternative systems more expensive."

While most schools buy phone systems to save money, expenses for new staff and equipment can mount up quickly, he added.

The University of Chicago's three-year-old system cost nearly $15 million to install, administrator Carol See explained, while the university hopes to save only $10 million over the next five years.

UCLA expects to save $15 million over the next 15 years with its $19 million system, John Terrell, system manager, said.

But Larry Larson, University of New Mexico telecommunications manager, claimed UNM has cut phone expenses by 50 percent since its December, 1983 purchase of a $6 million state-of-the-art Nippon NEAX 22 system.

Monthly phone bills have decreased from nearly $270,000 to about $107,000 a month, he said.

University of Missouri officials hope redesigning the telecommunication systems at all four UM campuses will save up to $10 million in 10 years.

Beginning with its Kansas City campus, UM officials are developing long-distance and local service for faculty, administrators and students, reported Coleman Burton, UM's director of telecommunications.

"Another reason for the system is to get our act together," Burton admitted. "At Kansas City there are eight different phone systems for three different locations. With the new system, we hope to save $3 million to $5 million at KC alone in 10 years."

Despite anticipated savings, many campuses still are finding a few bugs—and some resentment—in their systems.

University of Tennessee dorm residents charge the number of available AT&T lines had been cut to force users onto the university-owned Infonet system.

Dickinson displays versatility in production

By Lori Lechtenberg

"Love in the Musical Theater" will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Askanase Annex Theatre at SU.

This graduate showcase production will be presented by Janet Dickinson in partial fulfillment of her post-graduate degree. The performance compiled by Dickinson brings together scenes, dances and musical selections from "A Chorus Line," "Fiddler on the Roof," "The Pirates of Penzance" and other popular musicals.

The show demonstrates the versatility a young woman must possess in order to succeed in the final audition and to find "Love in the Musical Theatre."

A graduate student in theater arts, Dickinson is from Bemidji, Minn. While in Fargo she has performed as a principal dancer in the Red River Dance and Performing Company and choreographed the Little Country Theatre production of "Once Upon a Mattress." She performed with the MSU Straw Hat Players in 1983 and the Valley Fair Performance Company this past summer. Following graduation from SU, she plans to pursue a singing and dancing career in professional theater.

Dickinson will be assisted in her performance by Grant Steven Norman, who performs with the Red River Dance and Performing Company and was a member of the North Dakota Repertory Theatre Company in 1983.

Jay Johnson, a sophomore speech major at MSU will provide the accompaniment. Dr. Carolyn F. associate professor of speech communication and theater arts, is project director. The set design is Brad Cook, a senior theater arts major, and Gail Anderson, a graduate student in theater arts, will coordinate costumes.

There will be no admission charge for "Love in the Musical Theatre" but reservations are recommended because of the limited seating in the Annex Theater and the popularity of the graduate showcase production.

Students at other schools complain of high rates, poor long-distance connections and unprofessional maintenance, but the issue is here to stay, predicted Phillip Beidelman, president of Western Telecommunications Consultants, Inc. "It's good and bad news both ways, not an open and shut case."

Schools that have purchased their own equipment seem to be learning to run the systems and to solve problems that arise, he noted.

"We anticipated problems during the change to the new system," UCLA's Terrell remembered. "One minor problem occurred, but users didn't even notice because our service was so lousy before."

"There are good and bad systems," ACUTA's Toner explained. "Some systems are absolutely horrible. Schools putting more work into the selection decision generally get a better system."

"Universities have to find and train quality people," Beidelman continued. "They have to be able to offer competitive salaries."

"If my clients don't make commitments, they fail and there's nothing I can do about it," he added. "They're very aware of problems, but I can't say they all know what they're getting into."

Schools must choose equipment, services and options based on such things as the college's location, the type, age and cost of the current system, penalties for conversion, and the school's academic mission, Beidelman said.

Grants as well as cutting National Direct Student Loans.

In addition, the Office of Budget and Management proposed to lose even more aid by keeping budgets the same for the next four years, thus allowing inflation to chip away at the dollars remaining for students.

Several campus-related student organizations are lobbying in Washington D.C. to aid in keeping Congress from making cuts that are too drastic. The head of the College Republicans in Washington is hopeful that some cuts will eliminate some of the waste in the higher education department. "There is tremendous waste in that department," said Jack Abramoff. He also predicts the administration will increase its hunt for students who have defaulted on student loans.

Some resolutions that will more directly affect SU students are in the works within the state department of higher education. One such bill has already been approved and is intended to increase state grant appropriations to students.

A scholarship bill and one for Native Americans are also proposed. They are estimated to provide about $100,000 in funding for the students.

The fourth bill, which is still being prepared, will be related to college work study programs.

"Cost is approximately $1,000 per line," he said, "and it's a highly politically oriented expenditure. Pressure by vendors on governing boards and universities becomes hostile and extremely competitive."

But a more obvious problem, especially to colleges selling dormitory phone service, is student abuse of long-distance service.

The University of Oklahoma's digit billing codes have tempted some students to charge long distance calls to as many as 30 different codes.

"Students like to try to find ways to beat the system," Wayne Olson, OU telecommunications manager, observed.

Opinion

Respect of the elderly in America seems to be in the eyes of the beholder. A Media General-Associated Press survey polled 1,476 United States adults about their attitudes toward the aged.

Among the results of the poll, it was found that 70 percent of Americans disapproved of mandatory retirement.

I agree. When people are forced to retire, valuable experience and wisdom is lost. Anyone who is of sound mind and body with a desire to continue working should be given the opportunity to do so.

The elderly are some of the most unique people on this planet. They can tell you story after story about their lives. Seemingly, they are also a never-ending gold mine of experiences and lessons learned.

Only 30 percent of the nonretired felt they would benefit from the Social Security system. The majority of the polled (60 percent) believe there won't be enough money for them when they retire.

Lack of money when we retire is a very realistic possibility. This represents one of the flaws in the system. People who haven't paid into the fund have received benefits. For every person like this, at least one less young person will be able to collect the money he or she paid into the system.

Fifty-two percent felt America's elderly weren't treated respectfully, but 91 percent said their own families treated their older family members with respect.

These results point to the fact that people define respect differently. Even if we all treated our elders identically, there would still be a difference of opinion. We've been brought up with varied beliefs, morals and background. The elderly shouldn't be looked down on, but rather be applauded for what they have accomplished in their lives.

Grandparents can be wonderful friends. If you have lost your grandparents and wish you still had access to the elderly's wisdom, maybe the Adopt-a-Grandparent program can help you.

Student warns others about no-name backpacks spiriting away

To the Editor,

Last Wednesday, Jan. 9, I had an unfortunate incident happen to me while eating at the Residence Dining Center. My backpack and its contents disappeared. I have not heard anything concerning its whereabouts, so I must believe the action of removing the pack was deliberate. I makes me sad to know that someone here at SU had to stoop so low. I would like to ask for assistance from anyone knowing about this incident.

Losing the maroon East-pak itself wasn't so bad, as it was replaceable and so was the Sharp EL-506P calculator. The books, too, were easy to come by, but they were expensive. The notes aren't so easily obtainable since everyone has a different style of taking notes. I also lost four weeks worth of work on a term project, a lab due in two days, and a research-position application which I must mail by Jan. 21. I can't see the value these items would have to anyone else so if you know about them give me a call at 285-5551.

Of course not just had evolved from this incident. I want to thank my friends who offered help in the form of books, notes, money and empathy. I just wish I could discovered these features in more positive circumstance would also like to express my appreciation to the professors were understanding and helped at least most individuals on this campus care for others.

A word of advice to you backpack owners. Please put identification on the outside of pack if you haven't done so already. While looking for mine I discovered many packs with no name, no number or address. Whenever you pick a pack up from a group of be sure to check if it is yours. If accidentally get the wrong one, do not tempt to get in touch with the owner immediately.

Now a word to you past, present or future thieves—think before you act. Put yourself in the shoes of the person's shoes and imagine how your reaction would be. If more people would think before they act, the world and campus would be a much better place to live. Also, if you take something, at least be a man/woman enough to admit it and face the consequences.

Orchesis asks for no posterlifting

To the Editor,

The Orchesis Dance Company will be performing its annual concert Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 and 2. Since the Company is a self-supporting organization on campus, the concert's publicity is kept to a minimum.

Our main way of announcing the performance to the public is through graphically designed posters. Each year these posters have been highly praised, as can be shown by awards they have received in design contests. Due the quality they contain, the posters have often been lifted by students who wish to have them for their own.

Dance Orchesis wishes to request students to refrain from the poster theft and would also like to inform them that they can receive a poster when they attend the performance.

The Company would appreciate this information being passed on to the public.

Opinion Poll

QUESTION: Do you feel every SU student should know how to use the campus computer system?

Bill Hughes

They should become familiar with computers and know how they can benefit from them.

Kris Peterson

Yes, because sooner or later everyone will have to know how to use one.

Shanon Coyle

Some type of course should be available for students who are interested in it, but it should not be required.

Mark Helm

Because computers encompass almost every aspect of life, classes should be set up to accommodate every student.

Wayne Dietrich

People that deal with computers in their major should know how to use them.

Julie Johnson

Yes, because it's good practice.

AN UNBORN EAGLE AN UNBORN CHILD

If you chose the unborn child, sorry, you're wrong... at least according to the laws in this country. You see, the penalty for taking or destroying an eagle's egg is $5,000.00 and a year in jail, but the penalty for taking an unborn child's life is nothing. In fact, people get paid a lot of money for doing it. Does something seem wrong to you? It is.

College Bowl is test of history, math and art for contestants

College Bowl has been scheduled for next week. The "Varsity Sport of the Mind" is a true test of the cognitive capacity. Contestants will answer questions from areas such as history, geography, math, science, art and literature. While there is a likeness to Triviality, the current rage of many campuses, College Bowl is more challenging.

Competition will begin Monday at 5 p.m. in Meinecke Lounge of the Union and will continue at this time through Thursday. The final round will be held at 3 p.m. on Friday in the Alumni Lounge. The final match will feature the best student team against the best faculty team.

Many of your favorite organizations on campus will be sponsoring teams, and friends of yours will be involved.

Picker says Dolphins will win the shootout

By Neil Roberts

We're only a few days from what could be the most exciting football game of the year. Super Bowl XIX on Sunday definitely has this capability. Stanford Stadium will be packed with thousands of thrilled fans, and millions more watching on their television sets to see who will win the shootout between the San Francisco Forty-niners and the Miami Dolphins.

Personally, I'm going with the Dolphins to win it all. The Dolphins will win it in a high-scoring, set close contest, 28-27. This may seem to be a slight upset when you look at the lineups, and the 49ers appear to have more talent. They probably do.

But nonetheless, I feel the Dolphins have a few things in their favor that will make the difference. They are namely, Dan Marino and Shula. With the best quarterback and coach in the league, I feel if the Dolphins can keep close until the end, they'll hang on and be the world champions.

Marino will have to once again play extremely well, and the Dolphins will have to come up with at least two 49er turnovers. I asked some familiar people associated with sports this past week for their views on the game as well. Let's take a look:

Don Morton: Bison head football coach—Miami to win 20-17.

Coach Morton thinks the score may be high but not real high. Shula will be the difference, he said.

Jim Adelson: KXJB-TV 4—49ers to win 35-30.

"First of all I'm a NFC fan," Adelson said. "If they can get to Marino, that will be the key."

Kyle Burd: KXJB-TV 4—Miami to win 33-27.

"Marino is just too hot and flashy, and the Killer Bees will be too much even if Stanford Stadium is in the 49er's backyard," Burd said.

Dan Hammer: KTHI-TV 11—49ers to win 31-27.

"Both offenses may score four touchdowns," Hammer said.

He thinks the difference in the game will be the 49er's defense creating a touchdown.

Rob Meltzer: KTHI-TV 11—Miami to win 37-28.

"The 49ers have a better defense, but right now no defense can stop Marino," Meltzer said.

Bamson Fadipe: Spectrum sports editor—49ers to win 31-16.

Fadipe said the Dolphins will put pressure on Marino and that Renaldo Nehemiah is one of the coolest and quickest players in the NFL. He's with San Francisco all the way.

Ed Schultz: WDAY-TV 6—Can't pick.

Schultz said the team are "too evenly matched to pick."

Stacy Robinson: Bison split end—49ers 28-17.

"The 49ers are just too deep and complete of a football team," Robinson said. "The Dolphins have a great offense, but not a great defense. The 49ers have both; a great offense and a great defense."

Robinson also participated in the Senior Bowl last Saturday where he was named the North's most valuable offensive player. He caught the North's only touchdown pass.

"It was fun and I learned a lot," Robinson said.

He said the scouts were good to him. About the whole week's stay in general, Robinson said "Everything was first class."

Greg Hagfors: Bison center who was named AP first team All-American—49ers to win 35-28.

Hagfors thinks the 49ers will win because they are more balanced. He mentioned he thought the 49ers would win, but hoped Miami would win because he likes to pull for the underdog.

Bison to clash with fifth-ranked Vikings

By Bamson Fadipe

Two national powerhouses will clash this Saturday as the nationally third-ranked Bison take on the fifth-ranked Augustana College Vikings in a dual North Central Conference match.

The meet starts at 7:30 p.m. at the New Field House.

According to Bison wrestling coach Bucky Maughan, the meet will be the finest meet of the season for the Bison.

"Augustana has a great team, and it should be a super match," he said.

Augustana, with a 11-2 dual meet record, will be represented by three All-Americans: Kyle Pressler at 126 pounds, Jon Braskreuity at 150, and Koln Knight at 190 pounds.

Two other top Vikings wrestlers are John Frerich at 158 pounds and Keith Hanson in the heavyweight division.

On the Bison side of the action, three All-Americans will also compete for the Herd. Jack Maughan will participate at 134 pounds, Mike Frazier at 142, and John Morgan in the 177 pounds division.

The Bison are standing with a 4-0 dual meet season mark.

Coach Maughan said one of the interesting points is that none of the All-Americans are slated to meet, so the meet will most likely be decided by the remaining team members.

Other match-ups for Saturday's meet are Vikings' freshman Thon Thone, a state champion from South Dakota will take on the Bison's Steve Anderson, also a freshman and Minnesota state champion at 118 pounds.

At 150 pounds, it will be Augustana's All-American facing highly regarded sophomore Lance Rogers and Frerich of the Vikings will also battle Bene Green, an outstanding freshman from Apple Valley, Minn.

Bison coach Maughan urges the audience to show strong support for the Bison in Saturday's match.

Swimming coach is frustrated with lack of participation at SU

By Joe Link

Just imagine if Julius Erving never went out for basketball. And Dan Marino never tried throwing a football. And Chris Evert never picked up a tennis racket. The world of sports would not be the same.

Paul Kloster, SU's men's and women's swimming coach, said that some of the best swimmers in the North Central Conference could be walking around the campus of SU. But, they have never tried to see how successful at swimming they could actually be.

"It's frustrating to know how good we could be, but students are too interested in other things," Kloster said.

The numbers on this year's team are the lowest Kloster has seen in his seven years as the head coach. And if the low turnout is not enough, injuries ranging from mononucleosis to back problems have shelved a few other Bison swimmers.

"Swimming is a sport where you must have a lot of depth to be successful, and we simply don't have it right now," he said.

With no scholarships being given out for swimming, it is hard to give incentives for students to join the swim team.

Kloster said his team members enjoy the competition that swimming presents, and this is their way of representing their school.

Although Bison do not have finals, Kloster feels a couple of his swimmers have enough talent to make it to the national championships.

The team leaders include Dennis Bibeau for the men's team and Brenda Roche for the women. Both are expected to compete in next month's national championships.

According to Kloster, a school with over 9,000 students should be able to field a very good swimming team. "But with the present numbers on this year's team, it's hard to be very successful."

So, could the person sitting beside you in your English class be the next Mark Spitz? Probably not. Maybe he can't even swim. But how would anyone ever know if he didn't try?

By the end of the meet, the Bison had made the mat a very uncomfortable place to be for their opponents. (Photo by Scott Johnson)

Bison women's basketball sets sight on winning conference title

By Mark Ferguson

"There is a good balance among the conference teams this year," Bison women's basketball coach Amy Ruley, said.

The women's basketball team has set its sights on winning the conference title this year. "Everyone in the conference has at least one loss after only two weeks gone into the season," she said.

Ruley feels that this year's team is very well balanced. "We have good size at our wing positions with Janice Woods and Leanne Grosso," she added. Each player averaging about 9.8 points per game.

According to Ruley, the future looks good for the Bison women because all team members will be returning next year except for one. She also feels SU's basketball program is better than some Division I programs.

The Bison are at a 13-3 season mark. The team lost to Central Missouri State, the defending National champions, St. Cloud State in overtime, who ranked fifth at the time, and to Mankato State.

The Bison face UND, with a 14-2 record, this Saturday at 5:30 p.m. in Grand Forks.
