Swimsuit season is coming and fitness is in the minds of many

Swimsuit season is coming and fitness is in the minds of many. By Frances Bagley

What makes a person want to get up to exercise at 7 a.m., three or four days a week? One good reason is finding it or until that summer is coming.

The season for swimsuits and shorts is approaching, and we will not be able to hide the extra pounds added (for warmth) over the long winter days.

The Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) is offering a fitness class planned to start from zero. "It's dynamic and excellent for physical fitness training," Sgt. 1st Class Fred A. Johnston said. He has assisted many individuals in achieving physical fitness and is a noted area marathoner. The class basically consists of calisthenics for 30 minutes and then a run of 30 minutes. Students are encouraged to work out 30 minutes and then individual running. It is a total program.

Opinion Poll

QUESTION: How do you feel about dormitory life at NDSU?

Mark Ondruch
I think they're kind of childish.

Cheryl Nitcher
People should be able to visit 24 hours a day.

Melanie Engel
You should be able to have visitors any time as long as you don't bother your neighbors.

Carla Was
I don't think the dorms should be strict about it. It should be up to you and your roommate.

Rick Steinkes
You should be able to visit any time you want.

Wayne Harris
They've done a good job in setting up the present guidelines.

Sisterhood Hurts-

A recent survey of the 1985-1986 Delta Phi Epsilon chapter at NDSU shows that the Greek system is in trouble, it is largely due to external causes among them. Searching for external causes in the long run, counterproductive. If the Greek female sorority system replaces it, then it was because the Little Sister system was more flexible than the sorority system. I'm not against the sorority system. If there, in any way that I myself can help, I will. My own house is willing to help too.

What I have expressed is solely my opinion and not to be construed as the opinion of the North Dakota Beta Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Dell is to publish definitive study on cocaine

Cocaine...Physically non-addictive, but a proven killer in other ways. It has become the status drug of the 1980s. More than 13 million Americans from every walk of life—professional athletes to politicians—use cocaine each year and that number is expected to double within the next four years. The revenues generated by the underground cocaine industry—$40 billion annually—rival the profits of many Fortune 500 companies.

The cocaine phenomenon in America has received widespread attention in the media, most prominently in cover stories in recent issues of Time, Newsweek and Life. On March 5, 1985 Dell Books will publish THE WHITE STUFF: "The Holmes Line On Cocaine" by B.J. Plasket and Ed Quillen, a comprehensive and thorough study on the subject of cocaine, which includes an introduction by Dr. Bruce W. Jakob and Chairman of the department of otolaryngology at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center.

Beginning with the origins of cocaine in Columbia where the Incas considered it to be their "cure-all" for sickness, and chronicling the prominent figures who applauded its effectiveness through history (including Sigmund Freud, Thomas Edison, H.G. Wells, Jules Verne, Queen Victoria and Sherlock Holmes), the authors detail how cocaine made its way into the jet set, cocaine was seen as the drug "alternative"—non-addictive, no hangover, seemingly offering all the "fun" with no consequences: Stars like Richard Pryor, Flip Wilson, Linda Blair, John Belushi and Leslie Vaness became its better-known users, but it wasn't long before everyone—not just the rich and famous—had access to it, and cocaine became a staple on the job and in the bedroom.

It took millions of years to put a fish where it's never been before.

A simple fish can be a rarity or even a non-existent food source for many people in the world. Today, Peace Corps volunteers with biology degrees and fishery experience are being trained to successfully raise freshwater fish in areas of the world where there have never been fish before. And for the first time, people understand how to treat the fish and keep them healthy.

Some People's "Office" Is In The Heart of Others.

MISSIONARY OBLATES OF ABSOLUTE IMMACULATA

There is one world and one God but many ways to serve others. We are a community of Catholic priests and brothers who believe in sharing the love of Jesus and the spirit of the Gospel with those who are most needed. We are committed to serving others in ways that are compassionate, inclusive, and respectful of diversity. We strive to live simple lives and to be humble in our interactions with others. Our mission is to offer hope, healing, and grace to those who are in need. We believe that in serving others, we serve God. We welcome all people into our community and work to create a welcoming and inclusive environment. We believe that all people are equal in the sight of God and that we are called to love and serve one another. We are committed to serving others in ways that are consistent with our Catholic faith and values. We believe that in serving others, we serve God. Eisele is umpire for labor-management arguments

While he can't walk around in black and white stripes, Dr. C. Frederick Eisele, professor of business administration frequently finds himself in the middle of highly contested disputes as a labor-management arbitrator.

"An arbitrator conducts a hearing, listens, reads volumes of printed statements and arguments and makes a binding decision both the labor and management sides have agreed to accept," Eisele said. "Mediators try to bring both sides together but don't make binding decisions."

Numbering among cases handled by Eisele are those involving a news reporter laid off by a television station when his specialty reporting was no longer needed, an employee fired for allegedly threatening a mayor, an employee fired for taking gas from a company pump for use in his personal car, and a deaf woman fired for inadequate job performance.

Eisele, listed in the roster of both the American Arbitration Association and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, numbers among only a few North Dakotans certified to make decisions in labor and management disputes. He has arbitrated disputes in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois.

Eisele also serves as one of three permanent arbitrators or umpires for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company and the Communications Workers of America, and as an ad hoc negotiator in disputes involving public employees in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Although the term umpire is used infrequently in arbitration circles, arbitrators frequently call the term back to people who work in the field as a labor-management arbitrator.
Referee

Eisele acknowledges that there's more to arbitrator work than the arbitration. The work involves not only the formal process of hearing and deciding disputes but also the preparation and presentation of evidence and arguments. He has been involved in labor disputes for nearly 20 years, and has accumulated extensive experience in the field.

Eisele's experience in labor arbitration began in 1979 when he joined the faculty of the University of Nebraska as a professor of labor relations. He has continued to teach and practice arbitration ever since.

Eisele explains that the role of an arbitrator is to assist in resolving disputes between parties. He helps to bring about a resolution that is fair to both sides, and he is impartial and neutral.

Eisele also shares some insights into the process of arbitration. He says that the process usually begins with a hearing, where both sides present their evidence and arguments. The arbitrator then deliberates and makes a decision, which is binding on both sides.

Eisele further explains that the process of arbitration can be quite time-consuming, and that it requires a great deal of preparation and research. He says that one of the most important aspects of arbitration is the ability to communicate effectively and persuasively.

Eisele also acknowledges that arbitration is not always the best solution to disputes. Sometimes, a dispute is better resolved through other means, such as mediation or negotiation.

Eisele concludes by saying that he enjoys the challenge of arbitration and the opportunity to help people resolve their disputes. He says that he is proud of his work as an arbitrator and is pleased to be able to make a positive contribution to the community.
Norway and Sweden are destination for tour

An exciting summer tour exploring historical and cultural heritage of Norway and Sweden is scheduled as the Red River Valley Heritage Society's first study tour to northern Europe. The tour, guided "Heritage Tour of Norway and Sweden" leaves by Northwest Airlines for Munich, Norway, and returns by way of London on June 16. An optional 6-day tour in England is available from June 16 at the conclusion of the "Heritage Tour." The Andersons, specialists in Scandinavia, history and genealogy, lead three tours. The Andersons also led the Society's 1984 "Hjemkomst Viking Tour" of Denmark, Norway, and England, and the 1983 Genealogy Tour of Scandinavia. They have also led numerous other tours to northern Europe for Concordia College. After an overnight trans-Atlantic flight, the "Heritage Tour" begins in Bergen, Norway, goes through the Sognefjord area and the Valdres Valley to Oslo, then to Goteborg, Vaxjo, Stockholm, Uppsala and Mora in Sweden. Back in Norway, the tour continues to Geiranger, then to Flåm, before concluding the "Heritage Tour." The Andersons have also led the Society's 1984 "Hjemkomst Viking Tour" of Denmark, Norway, and England, and the 1983 Genealogy Tour of Scandinavia. They have also led numerous other tours to northern Europe for Concordia College. The optional tour in England includes London, Canterbury, Stonehenge, Stratford-on-Avon, Coventry, Blenheim Castle and Oxford, along with many other sights. These fully guided tours include the trans-Atlantic flights, chartered bus throughout the tours, numerous ferry and steamer crossings, hotel accommodations, all breakfasts and most dinners. Tour brochure is popular for personal reasons, or group tours may be arranged upon demand. The brochure originated about four years ago. Since then it has been expanded to include a new museum and Archie's West Unlimited. Among the areas of interest are the three area colleges, Bonanzaville, Anheuser Busch, the depot and many more. These brochures may be picked up at the Convention and Visitors Bureau and the three cities' Chambers of Commerce. For more information and literature about this tour, write to the Red River Valley Heritage Society, Box 733, Moorhead, Minn. 56560, or call 236-9140.

Preparation for Little International requires many hours of diligent work and the desire to do your best. But once the show is over, participants can breathe a sigh of relief and relax until next year.

One of the best ways to celebrate the stimulation of Little I is with the annual Dance in the Chips. The dance provides an opportunity to blow off steam and practice your twotiy, polka or jitterbug.

According to Teresa Topp, a member of the entertainment committee, the J.B. Ferguson band will provide the music. The band plays a variety of country and country-rock. The band consists of former members of the award-winning Sheyenne River Band. Member Dave Kirby said two other members were a part of the group that won the Wrangler Country Showdown, a nationwide country music talent search they placed second in the national competition.

The dance is scheduled to begin at 10 p.m. on Saturday. Admission is $3 per person or $5 per couple.

Topp said people look forward to the dance as much as they do the actual show. The dance is held in arena, hence the name "Dance in the Chips."

Fun of 1st apartment is scarred by problems

By Coreen Stevick

Moving off campus to your first apartment is an exciting event. However, several confrontations with an obnoxious landlord, a week without hot water, and neighbors who blast their stereos until 3 a.m. may make you question your temporary insanity when you decided to move.

What legal rights do tenants have? According to Fargo attorney Paul Legler, there are many statutes pertaining to the rights of both tenants and landlords.

One of the biggest problems arises from the security deposit, Legler said. Now, the amount is limited to one month's rent. However, bills in the state Legislature may change that. One bill introduced would increase the amount to one and one-half times the amount of monthly rent. For example, if you pay $300 a month, you would have to leave a security deposit of $450 with the landlord.

Two bills introduced seem to contradict each other. One proposes that the landlord must pay interest on the security deposit if the tenant is there more than nine months. The second proposed bill would not make the owner pay interest.

"That could result in a product they are passed," Legler said. "Legally, the security deposit would increase, so the landlord wouldn't have to pay interest.

"He could possibly encourage landlords with many buildings to raise the security deposit, raise money in the bank and keep the interest for himself."

Section 47-16 of the North Dakota Century Code deals with security deposits. Legler said the law is too bad now, but he gets many calls from tenants about the deposit.

Super Job!
Anoka sprinters lead track team with talent

By Bamson Fadipe

The SU women's track team is off to a winning start, and according to head coach Sue Patterson, this year's team won't settle for anything less that repeating as North Central Conference champions.

"They are a very talented group, and we've got stronger this year than last year because our depth is much greater," Patterson said.

This year's team consists of 1,500-meter runner with a time of results.

When the two were seniors in high school track at Anoka, Minn., they led their team to the state championships. The team has had three individuals so far this year, and because all these meets were invitational events, Patterson doesn't know exactly how they placed as a team, but she does know that individual accomplishments have been outstanding so far.

"Individual performances are way ahead of last year at this time," Patterson said.

Patterson included Mankato State University 400-0 meter relay team which still holds one of the top times in the nation.

Now, five years later, they are leading SU's track team in a possible second consecutive championship.

The two seniors feel their friendship has really played a part in their success on the track because they both run similar events and can give each other help when it is needed.

"There are times when one is up and one is down, but that's when we help each other out the most," Rutt said.

Two reasons why the seniors are so helpful are the contributions of sprinters Debbie Rutt and Lisa Swan, who have been running together since seventh grade and are now leading sprinters for the conference meet," said Bison women's track coach Sue Patterson.

Scoring against one another in practice, they have each contributed success to the other and to the team.

"It helps because we can push each other to do the best we can," Swan said.

Another team leader is distance runner Nancy Dietman who is a three-time All-American and was this year's runner-up in the national country run.

"Individual performances are way ahead of last year at this time," Patterson said.

Patterson included Mankato State University, South Dakota State and Nebraska-Omaha as the Lady Bison's track team with talent competitors for the title this year, we can use the same strategy as last year because our depth is much greater," Patterson said.

The Bison women, along with many track teams, will have to be good enough to win this year, but with the depth we have this year, we can use the same strategy as last year because our depth is much greater," Patterson said.

The Bison women's track team has been having good meets, with the best of talent coming from Southeastern students.

The seniors are an excellent group of leaders in both talent and leadership skills," she said.
