More contributions from alumni than of their efforts to raise money for advertisements for the campus, he said. "Hockey program we might break businesses," James Frey, a professor at the University of Nevada, said.

The combined $20,000 of the students' athletic teams never involve the school, contributions, said the baseball faculty accepted that big time athletic programs are partly justified because they bring in the audience.

"The only way to tell if spring is coming to SU is to look for the Union Mall Lake," said the head of the plant genetics program. In the future Sponberg feels SU will benefit from successful sports programs because they bring added prestige to the college's programs.

"There is a question at SU about adding varsity hockey to the SU," he said. Right now, funding and programs are balanced, but adding the hockey program we might break that balance. Then we have to make cuts in our programs.

"In the future, Sponberg feels SU will benefit from successful sports programs because they bring prestige to the college's programs," he said.

"As a matter of fact, contributions and donations have increased every year at about the same rate, but SJU this year has no revenue," said Sponberg, SU athletic director.

For example, Sponberg cited the $320 earned during the eight SU Super Bowl.

The majority of funding for the athletic department comes from the combined efforts of the Alumni Association and the SU Development Foundation, Sponberg said.

"Muscular Dystrophy Superdance set for March 23 at SU"

The total contributions to SU athletic programs were $160,000.

There is a delicate balance when dealing with fund raising, Sponberg said. That fine line deals with the number of programs versus total funding.

Gonorrhea not a burning issue at SU

Kari Neylor, head nurse at the State Health Center, said it really hasn’t ever been a big problem for us. We always see some but no real problems have occurred in our area. "It often is caused by the lack of information about the topic of sexual diseases, explaining the seriousness and prevention of it," Neylor said.

We discuss the situation with our patients and supply them with pamphlets explaining their situation in hopes of making them more aware of the disease and other social diseases, Neylor said. "We have had the same amount of cases reported this year as last year, no increase or decrease on our campus was found," Doris Haukebo, RN and nurse practitioner, said.

Statisticians, cases of gonorrhea reported here declined for the seventh consecutive year after reaching a recent high of 1,077 cases being reported in 1977, according to the State Health Department in Bismarck. A total of 846 cases were reported in 1984 in North Dakota.

In 1983 an all-time high of 1,280 cases of gonorrhea were reported in North Dakota.

Statistics may be misleading because of the characteristics of gonorrhea, problems in testing and the lack of historical data provided by the states. Dr. James Pearson, state epidemiologist at the State Health Department, said. There are a few things such as good reporting by the physicians and good follow up but the patients that make the doctors work with relatively small numbers.

Pearson said the departmental program to help cytology for detecting the disease itself and the "nongynecologists" who have attempted in circumventing gonorrhea patients and reach anyone who might be exposed to the disease inform them to be tested. Dr. Pearson credits the staff to help stop an increase.

Payment says that the large number of young people living in Fargo are probably the main factor in the increasing cases in the area.

"We often get asked by the local physicians about whether gonorrhea and other social diseases, Neylor said. "We have always seen some but no real problems have occurred in our area."

Cable TV in dorms

Bruce Bartholomew

Cable television on campus at SU? If housing administrators accept the proposal of Cablecom of Fargo, dorm residents may soon enjoy this luxury.

Cablecom of Fargo has offered to feed the entire bill of installing all equipment, provided SU agrees to terms of bulk rate service. Under bulk rate service, Cablecom will charge SU for service to multiple buildings rather than charging individual rooms. With single unit service, SU would be asked to pay a substantial outlay of cash for installation. SU really has no choice but to accept the bulk rate service proposal of Cablecom as it is the most economically feasible idea.

Under these proposals, Cablecom of Fargo would retain ownership of all equipment used and would be entitled to all of the revenue generated.

A five-year service contract is also a condition of the agreement. This seems unfair as it does not allow SU to participate more in the profit-making ability of cable television on campus.

How would SU bill dorm residents to each room? Probably just tack on the extra $5-14 per month per room onto each resident's bill. But then raise some questions on what kind of revenue SU might want to take from the provided service. Will SU raise rates to create some profit on the installation of cable? What about the students who have to pay for cable in the room whether it is used or not?

In Cablecom's proposal, approximately 1,200 rooms will be wired for cable television service. If SU considers this the cheapest service, it would cost $8,000 per month. Imagine this scenario, if student government assumes an additional $4.00 per month on behalf of the students, leaving the amount to get even $1,000, how could this be done with that money. SU students might be able to benefit from additional classroom instruction on a student-run channel. Not only would this channel benefit those students whose classes are being taken over the air, but will also help those hand-crafted and engineering students who design an opportunity for interactivity.

Cable television in SU dormitories would be a possibility in the near future. I have a suggestion to the SU housing administrators, but the students who want cable television badly enough must work off-campus and make room for those students who need the studying space.

Former FFA secretary criticizes Governor Sinner's lack of action

To the Editor,

I believe in the future of farming, with a faith born, not of words, but of deeds.” Anyone who has been affiliated with the Farmers Union of America recognizes this as the first line of the FFA Creed. Our governor’s lack of deeds has spoken louder than his words. To my knowledge, no North Dakota governor has ever refused to sign the FFA Week proclamation.

Not all of a governor’s activities are as glamorous and noteworthy as inaugerals, budgets and kidney stone operations. Wouldn’t it be appropriate, though, for the governor of the most agricultural state in the nation to shake hands with FFA president and sign a congressional resolution? As inauguration week in North Dakota draws nearer, the governor may find himself struggling to fit in the schedule.

Nauseous North urges Bible beaters to stop constant driv

To the Editor,

I have always admired people such as Martin Luther King, Jr., who used their religion to advance the welfare of all people. However, the recent rash of letters by conservative Christians, who quote scripture as "proof" is "true," are making me ill. These writers try to prove their superiority by "proving" their beliefs. To my knowledge, no North Dakota governor has ever refused to sign the FFA Week proclamation.

Survey results in clearing of air in Library’s 24-hour study area

To the Editor:
The SU Library conducted a survey last fall concerning those of the 24-hour study room, located at the entrance to the building. This relatively small area gets very high student use, especially during hours when the Library is closed.

There is a demonstrated need for such a study space, and perhaps consideration should be given to creating other 24-hour areas on campus. The purpose of this letter, however, is to announce a new no-smoking policy in the 24-hour study.

The room’s smoky environment was the overriding comment on the student questionnaires, and both the Library and the Student Senate have repeatedly received complaints about this problem.

The room is now clearly marked for no smoking, and the air is cleaner. We urge hungry students to take their breaks in this room and not take food and drink to other parts of the building.

Anderson says students would be affected by Reagan’s cuts

To the Editor:
The Spectrum’s Opinion Poll in the Friday, February 10, issue noted some common responses to the Reagan administration’s cuts to federal financial aid to students. This idea of the student views of the Reagan administration cuts will affect your school next year? Students noted that poll indicated the proposed Reagan administration budget cuts would have an effect upon their educational goals because they were not receiving financial aid anyway. Actually, none of the students who responded with this answer had applied and indeed received a Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL). Loans are, in fact, federal financial aid, even though they must be repaid by the student. The federal government tax payer subsidizes the interest on the student’s loan which is approximately 10 percent per year while the student is in school and approximately 5 percent after the student has graduated. Interest rates are pegged to the T-Bill rate. If one examines the interest subsidy that is being granted on these GSLs and multiply that by the million plus students who are receiving these loans, you will realize the huge financial contribution that is being made by the federal government. Then add financial aid to those students who are seeking a higher education. It is also important to note that financial aid is not a siren that will attract students to state universities, since some states are not providing federal financial aid.

Anderson has been working on this problem for some time, and now the bill has received more than 5,000 signatures and has passed the House. If this bill is put into law, it will affect the student financial aid as well as the student financial aid that is being received by the student. It is also important to note that if financial aid is not available, the student will be forced to seek other means of support, such as working full time while attending school, which will affect his or her educational goals.

To further illustrate, one of the students in the poll has received more than $5,000 in grants and loans during the past three years. If the Reagan proposals were to be implemented, this student would have been forced to seek employment that would have provided at least $5,000 in financial assistance, this individual may not have had a different opinion on whether or not those proposed cuts would have affected their educational goals.

Perhaps student financial aid is taken for granted, like freedom, and would be missed if it was no longer available.

BJone claims District 45 is well represented by Nalewaja/Berg

To the Editor:
Representatives Donna Nalewaja and Rick Berg recently won re-election by a large margin, which is a testament to their dedication and hard work. It is important to note that Nalewaja and Berg have successfully worked to protect the interests of their constituents.

It is also important to note that Nalewaja and Berg support a Senate bill requiring smoke detectors in all rental properties. This bill has been introduced to ensure the safety of tenants.

Nalewaja and Berg have made it clear that their efforts to protect tenants and landlords are crucial to the well-being of their constituents.

District 45 is well represented.

Cobber orchestra slates its Spring pops concert

Candlelit tables, poppers, soft drinks and a program of light classical and popular music set the mood for the Spring "Pops" Concert by the Concordia College Orchestra at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Center of Excellence Center on the campus of Concordia College.

Performing with the orchestra, conducted by Dr. J. Robert Hanson, will be saxophone soloist Gail R. Hall, assistant professor of music at Concordia. In addition to light classical and popular music, the concert will feature Broadway show tunes.

Hanson founded the Concordia College Orchestra in 1968 and has developed the organization from a small ensemble to a full-fledged symphony. He is also conductor of the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony Orchestra, a position he has held since 1974.

Hall, a nationally and internationally acclaimed saxophonist, has performed as a guest artist with major orchestras throughout the world. In June he will give a recital at the World Saxophone Congress in Washington, D.C. The congress is the Washington area, including the Smithsonian Institution. Hall has been a member of the Concordia College faculty since 1973.

Fiction draws people into unknown

Keith A. Edner

Fiction writing is one of today's most effective ways to entertain an audience. Many people get involved in writing fiction by reading fiction. According to Larry Block, an English instructor at SU and part-time author, writing fiction is a hobby if you have the drive and imagination to accomplish it. Writing fiction involves taking a lot of talent, time and effort, and there is still a long wait before you'll be good enough to be published. Writing fiction, it does not make any difference when it was written. Fiction that is worth while to read is fiction that was entertaining, whether it was written 400 years ago or written today," Block said.

Block said science fiction is a good example of fiction writing because it is a story that was written in the past but good enough to be published. Science fiction writing is not for everyone. It involves taking a lot of time and effort. A lot of talent, time and effort is put into it, and there is still a long wait before you'll be good enough to be published.

Writing fiction, it does not make any difference when it was written. Fiction that is worth while to read is fiction that was entertaining, whether it was written 400 years ago or written today," Block said.

"When writing fiction, it does not make any difference when it was written. Fiction that is worth while to read is fiction that says "What you write is like reading fiction." It draws you out of the real world into an imaginary world. This is what you write for to let people be drawn into the imaginary world you have created," Block said.

School has never played an important role in Block's writing. He has written fiction, but he has written science fiction. Here's a society that could exist, if the type of government just after World War II, say Stalinist Russia, were to dominate the world. That is what the world would be like. In a way, this is science fiction because it did not really happen. What he was trying to do is make an imaginary world out of a contemporary society in 1984 when he wrote it."

"When talking about the concept of imagination versus correctness, he feels imagination takes precedence over correctness in fiction writing. A lot of established writers give advice to young writers who are just starting to write. Block's advice is, "Make what you write important to you even if it is not the best, because if you feel good about what you wrote, then it is going to have meaning to someone else."

"When you write for different magazines and companies you can not write what you want to write, you have to take into consideration the tone of the magazine or company and the type of audience they attract. Then you get the background you need and write the article," he said.

Intramural Guidelines

Eligibility
All currently registered NSU students, faculty and staff are eligible for intramural activities.

Members of any varsity team (including freshman teams) may not participate in the corresponding intramural sport during the same school year.

All intramural members or pledges who are students at NSU may play for the intramural program. The only exception would be for a team roster in a corresponding sport, which is limited to one semester per sport.

Teams automatically forfeit a game for any of the following reasons: - using an ineligible player - failing to provide officials or scorekeepers - bringing alcoholic beverages or any illegal substance to activities.

Protests
- The Intramural Office has the sole responsibility for posting game winner.
- Teams are allowed to play with one less player than the minimum allowed. For example, a team of four could play a basketball game.

Postponements
The CPR office has the sole responsibility for postponing games.
- Teams are allowed to play with one less player than the minimum allowed. For example, a team of four could play a basketball game.

Health and Injury Policy
- Students are responsible for their own health and safety.
- The CPR office may suspend players if they are deemed unsafe.
- Physical exams are the sole responsibility of each participant.

IR Point System
- Points are divided into major, intermediate and minor point divisions with consideration given to number of players entered for a sport. Points are awarded to teams based on the following criteria:
  - Number of points awarded to winning team
  - Number of points awarded to losing team
  - Number of points awarded to third place
  - Number of points awarded to fourth place

Awards
- Winners in each event receive a plaque and spiral bound copy of the Intramural Sports handbook.
- All participants receive a special T-shirt.
Open Recreation
Directed by Bob Bock
All facilities, including the pool and handball courts, are generally available for use during Open Recreation. Specific times and special activities are announced over the bulletin board. 277-6617 is the Field House schedule. Participation is limited to NDSU students, faculty, and staff, with one guest allowed per person. A valid NDSU ID is necessary to enter the Field House and check out equipment.

Family Night
Monday night is a special family night for NDSU faculty, staff, and students. At least one parent must accompany children at all times.

Racquetball Court Reservations
Reservations are taken in person at the Campus Recreation Office for students and faculty.

Equipment Checkout
Volleyballs, rackets, basketballs, and various other recreation supplies are available to campus groups on a request checkout basis. The equipment room is located at the north end of the Field House. A valid NDSU ID is needed.

These freshmen will never earn degrees

The Four Freshmen is a vocal group that has been in existence since 1947. In 1947, four freshmen at Butler University in Indianapolis organized a quartet. These freshmen, who never became sophomores, chose instead to pursue careers in music. Their approach to vocal music was a modern, inventive concept unlike anything heard before. In 1950, modern music pioneer Stan Kenton caught their act and the Four Freshmen were on their way. In 1952, their version of "It's a Blue World" swept the country, launching what was to become a spectacular recording career for the Four Freshmen. Their versions of "Day by Day," "Candy" and "Girl From Shrewsbury" brought them critical acclaim.

Throughout the 1950s, the Freshmen performed on the Ed Sullivan Show and in a parade in New York City. They have been honored with four Grammy Awards for Best Vocal Group and have made numerous appearances on television and radio. They have also performed with many famous musicians, including Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, and the Andrews Sisters.

BisOn baseball pops back from Texas

There's something special about taking the field in a new venue. The BisOn baseball team, which took on a southern swing, returned from its southern swing to enter the second half of the schedule against North Dakota and Minnesota teams. On opening day, the team faced off against LSU in a game that would set the tone for the upcoming season.

Bison to host first NCAA basketball tournament at the Fieldhouse

The Bisons will host the first NCAA basketball tournament at the Fieldhouse, marking a significant milestone for the program. The women's basketball team, coached by Sue Patterson, has earned a berth in the tournament and will face a tough challenge against other top teams in the country. The tournament will showcase the talent of the Bison women's basketball team and provide an opportunity for them to compete on a national stage.

Reuer cites ways college sports differ from others

By Nathan Cooper

Motivation is the biggest difference between high school and college athletics, BisOn assistant coach and pitching coach Hubert H. Humphreys said. "I picked it because of the opportunity to work with kids and coach at the college level," he added. At Page, he tried to develop the team at the college level. But winning is not the only thing that has earned the Bison program a Tom Deis will be the Bison's men's and women's track teams captured the Central Conference title. The Bison are due to host the upcoming North Dakota state meet. St. Mary's University was next in the MIAC, followed by Concordia of Texas. The Bisons committed several mental errors that may have cost them the game. St. Mary's was at the seventh, 5-4.
