Rally attempts to draw attention to SU’s plight

By Rick Olson

About 100 students from at least seven of North Dakota’s colleges and universities, including 20 from SU, participated in a March 15 rally to protest cutback proposals from Gov. George Flaherty and the state legislators for higher education in the 1985-86 session.

Before assembling in the Capitol building, the students and members of the North Dakota Student Association talked about the budget for higher education as it currently stands compared to what they believe it should be.

"I know that we’re going to do an introspection of ourselves,” said Connie Cleveland, member of the North Dakota Student Association. "What the North Dakota Student Association is setting their priorities for this year, financial aid is number one. We are still waiting on the state to fund more for guaranteed student loan programs.”

House kills bill that would have slain reciprocity with MN

By Karen Nalewaja

Rep. Richard Yazzie, R-New Town, opened an amendment to House Bill 1558, which would have expanded the current reciprocity agreement between Minnesota and North Dakota schools at the lower tuition rates.

"It is a no-brainer," said Yazzie. "Most businesses don’t want to cross the border to Minnesota. It is a no-brainer for us that if we have to go to Minnesota, we are going to go to Canada because of the border."

According to State Rep. Donna Hesselbarth, "We have been working on this issue for years. We have more than 50% of the students from Minnesota. This is a good bill for us to have."
The SU two-year associate degree in nursing program has received high marks and is awaiting reaccreditation, according to SU President L.D. Loftsgard.

The National League of Nursing (NLN), said Loftsgard, is reviewing the SU program as part of the NLN Board of Review.

The NLN board noted the following strengths of the SU program: its report: strong administrative support; a friendly and open relationship with the dean of pharmacy, open lines of communication with faculty and students, a strong chairperson; enthusiastic faculty, highly motivated students, strong community support, a wide variety of available clinical experiences, a good relationship between the program and clinical agencies and strong student support services.

Only two areas of concern were cited: (1) The potential effects of continued statewide financial restrictions due to "budget freeze" on the nursing department's ability to attract and retain well-prepared faculty, and (2) Not all faculty hold an advanced degree in nursing.

Hummel pointed out that a number of nursing faculty members are currently pursuing master's degrees in nursing, which will be required to teach in the projected four-year program. She anticipates admission of the first new students into the program by 1990.

"It has been noted there has been an almost too low reserve in the general fund no matter what is done. Selling old furniture and fixtures while we have thousands of dollars in the bank, we have not been able to keep students on campus. That is the problem of the legislature," Hummel said.

"The SU associate degree program has been a limited enrollment program since it began in 1965. Only one in four applicants has been accepted to the program in the past few years, allowing us to take the cream of the high school graduates with 800 or more on the SAT exams," Hummel said. Only 85 new students have been allowed into the program each year, and Hummel anticipates that member number will drop to 55 when the cooperative program with Concordia becomes operational in about two years.

Glad to be American

Konstantin Chernenko's death wasn't really a surprise to the people of the United States, but it was so to many Russians. Many of the Russian people weren't even aware Chernenko was ill, or if they did know, they didn't know how serious it was.

An article in the March 26 issue of Time magazine, the reporter asked Russians for thoughts of their former leader and how for the future.

By American standards, their responses were pretty apathetic. Most of the respondents didn't know of his death until quite awhile after it happened.

One of the people said they (Russians) assumed he was ill, but nobody knew how serious it was. He said it wasn't America and they had to get their news from the government.

Another person said he used to be involved in politics when he was younger, but now he can take it or leave it because they don't affect his leaders.

When I hear about countries and attitudes like these, it makes the feel much stronger about being an American citizen. We may complain about our government and our leaders, but if we stop and look at the worldwide, we've got it pretty easy. At least with a democracy, we have some input as to our leaders and laws.

The Russians seem to be pissed that they have someome younger in office, but they don't bring any drastic changes to be made. Every time we elect a new leader, age is an issue. But seems like an older man is always elected. Maybe this says America is willing to pull up with some of the aging elephants for more wisdom.

As long as I'm right, you give your government representatives some input. If you choose to forfeit this right, you may as well move to Russia.

Schriner points out Bjone's interests were business related

To the Editor,

In the March 15 issue of the Spectrum, Jodie Bjone, an employee of the local property management company, wrote a letter to the editor defending Representatives Donna Nalewaja and Rick Berg's voting record on landlord-tenant issues before the state legislature.

Jodie is misinterpreting the point of the resolution that has been directed toward Nalewaja and Berg. The issue is not their support or lack of support of tenants' rights laws, but one of what is best for the people of the district it represents.

"Robert" 9-1-73, sponsored by Nalewaja and Berg, included a resolution that would require property owners to request their tenants by 90 days in advance of raising rent, or to provide a written notice of the rent raise.

This is the resolution that was amended out of the bill, but the benefit is the many living in these districts, major interests of the measure would have been Berg and your constituents in this real estate business.

The Spectrum welcomes letters to the editor.

The Spectrum is printed by Southern Printing.

Letters intended for possible publication must be typed, double spaced, no longer than two pages.

We reserve the right to accept or reject any or all letters.

Deadlines for submission are 5 p.m. Friday for Tuesday's issue.

Leader of discussion group sleeping giant should awake

To the Editor,

Once again it is time for SU students to get our dancing shoes and join Tau Kappa Epsilon and Q-98 in raising money to help fight muscular dystrophy.

This year's MDA Superdance, "Dark Dance," is being cosponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon, the arranger of the dance, and Q-98, who will run public service announcements during the dance. Q-98 will also supply a disc jockey for the dance. The dance will be tomorrow from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the SU Old Field house.

The proceeds raised through packages and the Muscular Dystrophy of South Dakota and Minnesota. They will be put to good use in the future.

We are in the middle of our spring and taxes. Filing taxes is the same as every other year—April 15. If you are a month away from being late, you may already be feeling that pressure. However, there is hope! If you haven't already done so, you will want to figure it all out. Whether or not you have, you will have some help in the form of Tele-Tax, the IRS offers an information service designed to give you tax information available through a toll-free telephone, walk-in assistance and an outreach program..

Tele-Tax is available for push-button (tone signaling), rotary (dialing) and push-button (pulse dialing) phones. The brochures give the rest of the tape listings.

To use Tele-Tax, simply select the number of the tape or tapes you wish to listen to—your choices are 100 to 240. Call the service and listen to the directions. The brochure advises having a piece of paper and a pen or pencil handy so you can take notes as you listen to the tapes.

There are several tapes which can apply directly to the student. These include:

100 - IRS help available - volunteer tax assistance programs, toll-free telephone, walk-in assistance and an outreach program.
106 - Problem resolution program, which provides special help for problem situations.
104 - Public libraries—tax information tapes and reproducible tax forms.
109 - Who must file?
111 - What form to use?—1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ?
112 - When, where and how to file.
114 - Filing as single.
120 - Dependent—who can be claimed?
121 - Dependent child—divorced or separated parents.
127 - Should I itemize?
207 - Scholarships, grants, and fellowships.
211 - Tips.
227 - How long they should take?
228 - Medical and dental expenses.
234 - Contributions.
238 - Educational expenses.
240 - Tax table.
316 - Refunds—how long they should take?
320 - Extension for time to file your tax return.
325 - Form W—what to do if you don't receive it.

This is just a sample of the tapes that are available through Tele-Tax. The brochure gives the rest of the tape listings.

Tele-Tax is available for push-button tone signaling, rotary dialing and push-button pulse dialing phones.
Architects invited to design art center for cash prizes

The Society of American Registered Architects (SARA), has invited architecture students to design a community cultural arts center for $4,000 in prizes in its 1985 annual Student Design Competition. The annual competition traditionally involves a design project in the city where SARA holds its annual convention. This year's SARA convention, scheduled for San Diego in November, will serve as a showcase for architecture schools throughout the country, with students invited to design a community art center in the downtown redevelopment area of San Diego.

"The project, "A Community Cultural Arts Center," will be a new attraction planned for the display and study of the visual arts," said Ray Studer, chairman of SARA Students, Sixteenth Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

"The center should provide an atmosphere of cultural and intellectual activity, and provide facilities for the display of art and for arts-related activities from the performing arts to art works from public collections and traveling exhibits.

Details of the program and entry forms can be obtained from Ray Studer, 3049 Sixteenth Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20009. The competition is open to all students attending accredited schools of architecture who have completed their studies. Each student submitting an entry will receive a computer-student membership kit in SARA.

Students not treated as most valued customers

Lori Lechtberg

A great percentage of Fargo-Moorhead businesses are frequented by students. Yet students are not treated like good customers.

In waiting lines at restaurants businesses often make it a point to put the names of older diners on their waiting lists. Businessmen invariably look past students, to seat older people.

Why isn't a student's business appreciated? Do older people eat more when they dine outside of the home? Do they leave bigger tips? Students are more likely to know what a grueling job it is to wait on tables and often if they have the means they will leave it. Students may also be more sympathetic about service. They have possibly worked in such establishments recently and better realize the fact that food servers don't get the food and drinks themselves and are not responsible for everything in a restaurant.

As a former waitress, I can say that some people get more impatient and stingy with time.

Students aren't only shafted in restaurants though. At movie theaters department stores it seems the workers have a hard time making up past students (none only make eye contact with customers older than 25).

Businesses need to incorporate a fairness code. We students are the next wave of people who will reach that 'over 27 age group' and businesses should be recruiting our business and working for our loyalty now.

FMCT needs potential felons for spring play

Big top tent comes to SU's gallery through April

By Jane M. Kuhn

Step right up! Enjoy the excitement and amazement of the circus!

"A Circus for Matthew" is a sculpture exhibit by Terry Jelsing in Gallery 1 in the Union.

The show is dedicated to his son, Matthew. It is a "celebration of life" about the relationship between father and son.

One famous circus act depicted in Jerry Jelsing's "A Circus for Matthew" is the unicycle on the high wire.

Applications for elected Student Government positions will be available in room 204 Old Main on Wednesday March 27th.

The following positions will be opening up.

- President & Vice-President
- Board of Student Publications Member
- Board of Campus Attractions Member
- Senators for all colleges
- Senators for all residences
- Senator for graduate school
- Senator for married students
- Senator for off-campus
- Senator for Greek houses
The circus depicts a whole series of problems solving. Jelsing was concerned that the relationship of motion in the tent be filled with a circus feeling.

Jelsing helps viewers "not isolated with the natural object." He looks for "an interview of pieces that creates the atmosphere and the theme." Jelsing said. There is an intersection of space and time in the gallery.

But as American brewers practically all beers were fire-brewed beers could be made by a century of standards. Fire-breathing died out. Some, looking backwards, wanted to change it.

In 1981, The Stroh Brewery Company bought one of the world's largest beer brewing companies for $15 million. The brewery of Europe.

For centuries, the finest beers were fired brews over direct fire. They lasted thousands of years. The show has taught Jelsing he must be concerned that the relationship of motion in the tent be filled with a circus feeling.

Jelsing is originally from Rugby, Nd, an old brewery that has helped him create a physical representation of fantasy more suitable to the actuality of sculpture than the illusion of painting.

Jelsing wants his sculpture to be a stimulus of many varied meaning, to temporarily remove the viewer from the real world.

Jelsing began his formal art training at USD, where he studied painting and stage design. He was awarded a scholarship to study abroad, and went to the Institute for European Studies in Vienna, Austria. While in Vienna he studied art history and studio art with faculty from the Vienna Academy and Hoch Schule fur Angewante Kunst.

Jelsing is originally from Rugby, ND, and now lives with his wife and son in Albuquerque, N.M.

The exhibit will be in Gallery 1 through April 18. The gallery hours are Monday- Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Thursday and Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 1 to 5 p.m.

A Guide to the NDSU Religious Organizations

This guide is designed to provide information about the religious organizations on the NDSU campus. In its commitment to the education of the whole person, the University considers the formation of religious values and the expression of religious experience to be important elements in total personal development. The student religious organizations described here provide a variety of opportunities to search for spiritual meaning and to find fellowship.

The traditional denominational churches are represented by three well-established centers: the Newman Center, the United Campus Ministry and the University Lutheran Center. The persons in leadership at these centers form the Campus Ministry Staff.

Philosophies of the Campus Ministry Staff:
The purpose of the NDSU Campus Ministry Staff is four-fold:

1. To improve communications with the university community as well as among campus ministers.
2. To provide a channel whereby the Campus Ministry Staff can be solicited, as a whole, in the support of various programs.
3. To provide fellowship among its members, valuing our different traditions, yet recognizing our common bonds in the service of our Lord and mission to the university.
4. To promote leadership and programs with regard to individual and community issues in the best interest and tradition of higher education.

The NDSU Campus Ministry Staff attempts to sponsor several workshops or seminars every year with regard to community issues.

At Christmas, the CMS sponsors an ecumenical Christmas worship service.

The NDSU CMS meets weekly. For further information call 235-0872 and ask for Rori Ziegler.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST
Campus Crusade for Christ is a movement of students telling other students how to be sure of a personal relationship with God. Through talking with hundreds of students each year, we find many people who would like to be sure of being a Christian but don't know how.

Our weekly large group meetings explain principles of how to live the Christian life. The weekly meeting is called Thursday Night Life.

Our small group Bible studies provide an opportunity for honest discussion and learning of Biblical topics. The groups are informal and there is no official membership.

CCC works with students of all denominations. There are 16,000 staff members on 125 campuses in 150 countries. The movement began in 1951 at UCLA through Bill Bright, a businessman, and has grown since then to be not only a movement of college students but high school students, business people, congressmen, athletes and prisoners. There are all people who have one thing in common—an exciting relationship with Jesus Christ.

TIME AND LOCATION OF MEETINGS:

Spring fashion trends are very androgenous

By Jean Hoaby

As of Wednesday, the spring season is officially here. This season's clothing choices are especially geared for the ease and comfort many college students desire. From shirts to jewelry, the spring's new lines will give individuals the chance to put together what might seem to be an outrageous combination of materials and colors and come up with a very unique and exciting outfit.

The lines of clothing this spring have borrowed ideas from the opposite gender. Clothing for women is directly from the men's line with oversized shirts and untailored blazers. The men this season are featured in skirts, so the men and women alike may break the rules of fashion intentionally.

According to Kay Eide, salesclerk at West Acres, most clothing choices are practical with a lot of layering and a lot of comfort. "The skirts are long, and the shirts are oversized and in floral prints," she said. "Many of the materials are natural ones."

Hawaiian prints and large floral prints are bigger than ever this year for both men and women. Bright colors, from yellow to purple, are splashed all over any type of clothing piece. Shirts, hats, cropped pants and full dresses for women feature these flowers. "Flowers can be bought in jewelry, belts and necklaces," Eide said. "There are a lot of accessories this spring."

Almost every apparel line this spring is cut big. The oversized shirts, as well as blazers for the career woman, are all boxcut and very big. Blazers are turning away from the traditionally fitted cuts, with buttons, to the wrap-around blazer featuring a sash. The main idea behind the shape of the spring line is for less constriction, keeping style-comfort in mind.

Shirts, whether they be the tailored type or the polo, are over-sized. The tailored shirts are usually tied at the waist or worn every manchur shirt and long ties. These shirts are buttoned at the top or just at the bottom and are worn as a dress. The idea that simplest is the richest is well defined in this area of the spring line.

Opinion Poll

QUESTION: Do you believe people who become the victims of muggings or holdups have the right to take matters into their own hands?

Scott Nowatzki
Yes, I think the law should handle it.

Matthew Phelps
You should be able to take the law into your own hands only when the law provides loopholes to try the criminal from prison.

Rachid Eikhatib
To an extent, but the police should help.

Kim Koste
Yes, I'd definitely protect myself. If it were them or me, I'd survive.

Handbook causes suspension

(CPS)-University of Florida officials have suspended a fraternity and are likely to probe all the fraternity programs on campus after one house started selling racist handbook to students.

The handbook names various groups, students, and recommends how many beers it takes to persuade them to engage in sexual intercourse.

Pics not by the Beta Theta Pi house and also for $2 a copy, the book also auctions the sexual experiences of women.

The fraternity said the book was intended as a joke, but university administrators aren't buying.

"Whether it was meant as a joke or as a National Lampoon, we don't think it's funny," said assistant student affairs dean Thomas Douglas.

"It's extremely inappropriate." The booklet also calls some students "sand bags and pointy heads," and makes anti-feminist references to others.

In a prepared statement, the fraternity president said the handbook is not as official publication and is not endorsed by the fraternity.

The handbook is in poor taste, and Thomas Beeman, the national Beta Theta Pi organization, national fraternity officials can't recall seeing similar handbooks at other schools.

But the head of a group monitoring frequently having practices says she has been told of dozens and dozens of similar publications.

"I'm hearing more and more of this type of thing," said Ellen Bovay of Bayville, N.J., who found the Committee to Halt Unfair College Killings after her son was a fraternity initiation failure.

But, Stevens said, "this is the first time one has been sold publicly.

"At least now, however, thieves never see the light of day because the girls are embarrassed, the members don't talk about it publicly and there is a secretive network, serving what we call as individual chapters," she said.

In this case, Florida suspended Beta Theta Pi for the remainder of 1985, and its little sister program for an indefinite period.

The university also may review all such programs at the school.

Little sister programs try to involve female students in activities of a fraternity. Most often the females are not members of any fraternity.

But the Fraternity Executives Association has little sister programs that are not exclusive because they distract members from fraternity goals.

Stevens said the programs frequently lead to exercising of female members who do not have the fraternities' little sister members ask of them.

One U? Little sister told the student newspaper she is treated, like a maid.

Dean of Student Affairs James Scott is to decide within the week whether to launch the campus-wide probe of little sister groups.

Herd thunders toward the conference title

By Ron Owen

This is the second straight year both teams have the conference indoor title and both coaches earned the best coach-of-the-year honors. According to women's track coach Patterson, the hard plan is to carry on the winning tradition and are looking forward to taking the outdoor conference crowns this year.

"We are going to carry the winning success of indoor to the outdoor," coach Patterson said. "The women's teams finished second in last year's conference meet at Omaha."

Three All-Americans will lead the Bison this outdoor season. Frankie Skene will participate in 800-meter and 1,500-meter run. Dietman was the NCAA Division II indoor champion in the 3,000-meter run this past season.

Freshman Lisa Selkon will be the SU's main decathlete and Eric Ben son will take on three events including shot put, javelin, and discus. Selkon finished second in the high jump, and Benson was fifth in the shot put during the national meet at the New Field House last week.

Freshman Lori Toney will take Benson in the javelin. Talley was the North Dakota State champion in that event. Rasky Kelly will compete in the 110-meter hurdles.

What are Patterson's secrets to success? She said hard work and a lot of time contributed to her winning spirit. "We demand a lot of time from our kids and we spend a lot of time working on strategies," she added.

A winning spirit built by confidence among team individuals in each other, both mentally and physically.

Patterson sees her team as one of the best in the NCC. The two Bison teams were able to record something of a personal accomplishment in Vermillion.

Intramural activities provide good way to get in shape, yourself go for awhile, out to take a break from the book. Intramurals have been a successful program at SU in winter quarter, total of 1,890 participants in winter quarter playing men's and women's basketball, men's keey hockey, winter's continues wrestling, women's racquetball, broomball, and volleyball had the largest number of participants with 145. The club in women's racquetball led by Anderson, while "the boys" in women's basketball had the best team in the last round. Because the men had the best team, the men's division "liners" to the basketball team," the "city" took top honors.

Men's basketball was not won either, but 125 and Coni were two remaining teams left to win the title.

In 12th round ball George Skene and Harland was the basketball title, Coni edging out 121 to win, but ahead of it by today.

The men's winning margin is to be completed this handball and the tournament action.

Spring plans for intramural activities cover softball, tennis, men's and women's basketball and take water polo.

For the men there will be racing events to participate in, including motorcycle, softball, and basketball. For the women there will be table tennis, racquetball, softball, and basketball will be offered to women.
