Koob says cutbacks preserve SU's quality

Student senate sponsored the Commission of Student Organization concerning recognition of the Malaysian Student Association, MSA, in a group of 30 Malay-Asian students attending SU.

President Sue Niki and MSA member Koi Keng Leong told the senate Sunday evening why they want to be recognized.

Niki said in order for the organization to be recognized by the national organization, it must first be an organization at SU. Without recognition, the students cannot get information on happenings from Malaysia. The students also hope to get financial aid, briefs and speakers from their university to come to SU.

Commissioner, Loesha Jeneen, reported CIO destined to recognize MSA because guidelines for the recognition state the group needs to have for one year before being recognized.

Senator Lisa Oyen moved to approve proposal with a two-year probation period. Senator Adam Buchanan seconded.

Student court representatives Melissa Trembly distributed election posters for senators to post.

She noted the election literature had not specified a closing date for getting a candidate's name on the ballot.

Heupel urges that more attention be paid to this next year.

Dee Ewert, chair of the Board of Student Publications reported Lani Leichtberg had been elected next year's editor of the Spectrum on April 18.

See, Mike Silberman announced the "Mailbox," a student literary publication, is being distributed. Editor Dennis Presser is circulating 9,900 copies around campus.

Yearbook representatives Ross Heupel and surveys concerning student's acceptance of an 1886-87 yearbook will be distributed in mail boxes of acceptance of this yearbook, which is being distributed. Editor Dennis Presser is circulating 9,900 copies around campus.

Finance Commissioner Roger Shraub said the budget is still short and needs to be cut more. Mac's athletics presented its budget yesterday, and Shraub anticipated this would be one of the most difficult budgets to approve.

Dawn Walock, representative from the American Home Economics Association and Phil Cain, representative from Tau Beta Phi, an engineering organization, reported on student advisor programs both groups sponsor. These programs are helpful for new students, they said, and other groups were urged to consider them.

The next meeting will be Sunday at 7 p.m. in Minnesota Lounge.
The department is expected to have a slight shortage of teachers this year, according to Jacobson. "This year, we had 86 percent of the schools, and doesn't even say mom yet. The schools had 86 percent of the schools they were able to teach. The cost of maintaining the programs is a bargain because many graduates are staying in the state to find work, and small district schools in the state are able to pay salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees, but couldn't afford an instructor with a master's degree.

For example, there are about 38 teaching positions in North Dakota for teachers with this major. About half—45 percent—are filled by teachers with a bachelor's degree. said Pat Knutson, a 1984 graduate of the department. In addition, this region of the nation is expected to have a slight shortage of teachers in this field. Jacobson said.

We feel the information in the survey is four years old, and it's unfair to base their current evaluation on it. Students say the cost of maintaining the programs is a bargain because many graduates are staying in the state to find work, and small district schools in the state are able to pay salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees, but couldn't afford an instructor with a master's degree.

Stewart receives award for excellence, service

Dr. Earl Stewart, chair of the department of community and regional planning at SU since 1970, received the Teaching Excellence and Community Service award from the SU College of Architecture and Urban Planning at a recent faculty meeting.

Stewart served as a faculty member in architecture at SU for 11 years beginning in 1953. In 1964 he took a leave of absence at the invitation of the University of Iowa, where he developed a graduate program in planning. He was invited to return to SU in 1969 for the purpose of creating a graduate program in planning.

Stewart was instrumental in creating the department of community and regional planning in 1970, and has been chair of the department since it was created. From 1973 to 1975 Stewart served as director of the Louis Missouri Grasslands Study, a $250,000 interdisciplinary research project.

In the area of community service, Stewart served as director of Urban Renewal for Fargo from 1958 to 1964. He also served as Planning Coordinator for the City of Fargo from 1964-1971.

Anne Frank meet Reagan

Friday's issue and 5 p.m. Friday for Tuesday's issue.

The following letter was written by Melony Troseth of Cooperatives, N.D. It appeared in the April 25 issue of The Forum. I wish the ghost of Anne Frank would show President Reagan around the infamous death camps and open his eyes to the horror of it all.

"Oh, if that ghost of Anne Frank, the young girl who died of starvation in a Nazi concentration camp, could appear to President Reagan, just as the ghosts of Charles Dickens' 'Christmas Carol' appeared to Scrooge.

"Would she not show him the stacks of warning, emaciated bodies piled in front of the storage vaults of the infamous death camps of Bergen Belzen and Auschwitz?"

"We do not wish to show him the smoke-stacks of the crematoriums burning their human unassuming, by night and day, as they struggled to consume the earthly remains of the dehumanized victims of a mad dictator and his henchmen."

"All these atrocities were recorded on newspapers and viewed by millions of shocked, movie-goers worldwide in 1945. Most of us were too young to understand it, even as we are too old now to forget it.

"Men and women who died in battle at the call of their country, whether ally or enemy, should not be classified as victims, except for those who perished in the Mynded Massacre and other similar macabre incidents. The great communicator is sadly in need of enlightenment!"

Opinion

Anne Frank meet Reagan

President Reagan recently appeared to West German chancellor Helmut Kohl to drop plans for a joint visit to a military cemetery. I really wonder which of President Reagan's aides succeeded in getting him to try to cancel his visit.

Kohl rejected Reagan's plea, and the visit will go on as planned. Reagan will be visiting a military cemetery where Nazi SS troops are buried.

When the trip was first planned, many people didn't want Reagan to go because they felt he was just trying to be nice to the West Germans, I wonder if the Germans thought he was doing it for good public relations.

Opinion Poll

QUESTION: How well informed do you feel the community is on the availability of resources and information at NDSU?

Jeff Puhalla
Fargo-Moorhead is really lucky to have three good schools in the area but it is too bad people think their use is only for students.

Krista Wass
NOSU has been around a long time and the people who need to know about the resources do.

John Zink
The lack of communication from the school in general creates a barrier for the community to find out about it.

Susie Ellingson
The community is not aware of them, but the rural areas are because of the local extension services.

Roger Primus
They are not that informed, but if it were publicized more, the usage would increase.

Gayle Hermanson
Not very well because it is not as publicized as it should be.

Norway has changed because of its oil age

By Gremie Riehl

Norway has had more dramatic improvements in the level of living in the past 30 years than most countries in the world. However, the people of the country have paid a high price. For例, social problems, divorce rates, alcoholism and crime have all increased. The changes have been good, but not all.

Many of the immigrants are from Pakistan and encountered numerous problems. Hale said most have been successful. Due to the "oil age," Norway has changed. Hale addressed a group of about 35 people at SU Tuesday night.

Hale said Norway used to have one of the lowest per capita population densities and was largely a rural community. Less than three percent of the area can be cultivated, and the lack of land caused a large emigration to the urban areas, especially south of Oslo.

The people of Norway were basically a cohesive group because of the rigors of rural life and had to rely on each other to survive. In addition, the people were highly nationalistic. Hale said this was probably due to the struggle to gain freedom from Denmark, Sweden and Nazi Germany. Hale called the people of Norway a much more pluralistic group now, certainly due to the "oil age." The people were highly nationalistic.

Four changes have occurred since 1960. Fishing used to be the pillar of the economy, but it has been surpassed by offshore oil. Family cohesiveness has also changed. Hale said, "One out of two children is born outside of wedlock, and 25 percent of all pregnancies end in abortion. In addition, one-third of all marriages fail."

Other changes have occurred. Norway used to have one of the lowest divorce rates in the world, but today, 50 percent of all marriages fail. During the post-World War II baby boom, many women dropped out of the work force. Today, 50 percent of women employed outside the home, and it is an uncommon to have children in the work force. Hale said there are relatively few violent incidents, but opinion polls show considerable racial prejudice. The Danes and Americans make up the largest percentage of foreigners, but are accepted in nearly every aspect of Norwegian life.

Alcoholism in Europe is a problem. Hale said that the average number of alcoholics per 100,000 is 9,000, but in Norway, the number is 90,000. Hale said that, in addition, there are about 6,000 addicts, and one out of four children is born out of wedlock.

Alpha Gamma Delta goes to bed for young diabetics

By Diana Olson

The women of Alpha Gamma Delta Beta Beta chapter attempted to sleep 30 hours April 16 and 17 for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation as its yard of the Alpha Gamma Delta house occupied by at least two girls said, "Besides being a lot of fun, the sleep-a-thon requires some sacrifices from every Alpha Gamma. It takes time to go out and get the sponsors and to do the sleeping. It's cold out there in the middle of the night. It's a good thing I had my teddy bear."

"But, actual planning was started the end of winter quarter and during spring break," Sprenger said. "I think the sleep-a-thon is a great idea because it makes people aware of the fact that sororities are in a failure though. The sleep-a-thon for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation was a huge success, but not too many of the AGDs actually slept during the sleep-a-thon.

They had a waterbed in the front yard of the Alpha Gamma Delta house occupied by at least two girls for the entire 30 hours. Miss from most of the 90 Activities took turns guarding the women as they dwindled away the 30 hours watching a television placed in a yard of the Alpha Gamma Delta, a women's social fraternity, named the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation as its Alumnae chapter occupied by at least two girls said, "The cast has five to six costume changes, and with 33 members, that's a lot of costumes."

"This production is the biggest, as far as costumes, for at least 10 years," she said. "The cast has five to six costume changes, and with 33 members, that's a lot of costumes."

"We knew the theater was going to present 'Camelot' last year," she said. "This year, which would beat last year's total of $800," Sprenger said.

"Our goals for this sleep-a-thon are the fact that sororities are in a failure though. The sleep-a-thon requires some sacrifices from every Alpha Gamma. It takes time to go out and get the sponsors and to do the sleeping. It's cold out there in the middle of the night. It's a good thing I had my teddy bear."
