Skimming of the budget main
topic of Senate meeting
By Alene Benz

Senator Joseph Donald made a motion to approve the budget of Home Economics Student Advisers and the Scholars Program.

The motion died because it lacked second. Due to the lack of a second, the motion was defeated.

By Joseph Donald

Finance Commission rejected the student senate proposal for the $35,000 cut from the budget presented by finance commissioner Roger Skraba.

The Spectrum budget was approved at great length. The proposed Spectrum budget, according to Finance Commissioner Julie Frith, will be funded on $35,000 cut from the budget.

Salaries for winter and spring quarters will be earmarked and held as a contingency fund. This was seen as an incentive for Spectrum to increase the average cost of salaries.

The motion to approve Skraba's recommendation for $35,000 cut from the budget passed unanimously.

By Joe Donald

The proposed Spectrum budget was approved with little controversy.

With projections from the administration, the commission budgeted a total of $10,000 for the coming year.

The $35,000 cut was a result of an overestimation of student enrollment last year.

With projections from the administration's office, an estimated amount was presented to the commission for budgeting. Julie Frith of the Finance Commission said.

"Two-thousand student activity fees were underestimated last year, and a projected decline in student enrollment for the coming year resulted in the cut," Frith added.

Even with the cut, Skraba doesn't believe there will be a decrease in any programs.

"Many organizations put their money in contingency funds," Skraba said.

The $35,000 cut from the budget presented by Finance Commission.

The commission budgets a total of $82,470 for student activity funds, which includes sports, music, and dramatics. Faculty members were evaluated for their contribution to the student body.

Skraba's report was accepted by the student senate at the Monday night meeting.

Martin named 84-'85 Outstanding Adviser
By Joseph Donald

Martin earned her doctorate in agricultural economics and 1984 winner of the Mortar Board.

Martin, as an associate professor in home economics education, received the 1984-85 Outstanding Adviser award presented by the Mortar Board during ceremonies April 23 in the Union's Ballroom. A member of the faculty since 1979, Martin currently has 27 student advisors and described her efforts in counseling SU students about their academic career as "very meaningful."

"I'm interested in each student as a person and find it rewarding to get to know something about them beyond what they're learning," said Martin. "I like to get to know the whole person. Then I can do a better job of helping them with their education."

In making the award to Martin, Greg Dolby, president of the Mortar Board, quoted briefly from a newspaper article about Martin's advising qualities. "She takes time to help evaluate your schedule. She's interested in the goals and achievements of her advisees which extends her interests far beyond the academic environment."

Martin earned her doctorate in home economics education in 1979 at Iowa State University and taught at Washington State University-Pullman before coming to SU in 1980.

The House committee recommended the award to Martin.

MSU hosts industry and business May 8

A free one-day conference on the latest developments in the business world will be Wednesday at MSU's Comstock Memorial Union.

Categorized as "Business and Industry Day," the program will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., featuring local specialists presenting information and materials on the latest ideas, technologies and opportunities in business.

The conference is being sponsored by the MSU Small Business Development Center, Fargo-Moorhead Convention and Visitors Bureau and the university's business administration department.

Featured speakers include: Kristy Makik, commercial loan officer for American Bank and Trust; Ron Blake, personnel director at MBM; and Norm Robinson, director of the C.L. Ross Agency, on assembling promotional materials; and Vivas Lindstrom, executive director of the F-M Convention and Visitors Bureau, on knowing the territory; Irene Van Edgworth, training assistant at Metropolitan Savings and Loan; and training and development; and Devon Krahnshauf, financial planner at Mormon Concept of Fargo, on financial planning.

A noon lunch break will feature a continuous statics workshop led by Kathy Decker and Tammy Linn from Great Falls.

Afternoon speakers include: Sharon Kruze from Blue Cross/Blue Shield, on management information systems; Sheila Fick'skey, vice-president of marketing at Great Falls Software, on strategies for growth; and Alan Voss, industrial manager at Steiger Tractor, on labor relations at the Lunds of Steiger Tractor, on labor relations.

A special food service department will be served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., with Ron Martin, manager of cafeteria operations at PO Folks Inc. of Nashville, who will share ideas on cost control.

The program is open to the public. For more information, contact Jody Braaten at the MSU Small Business Development Center.

CDFS is proposed title for the Home Ec merger

By Jody Braaten

Child development and family science is the proposed title recommended by the Academic Affairs Committee for the merger is the Home Economics College.

The courses are in the present two departments of Home Management, Family Economics (HMFE) and Child Development. Family Relations (CDFR) will be merged and carry the prefix of CDFS.

The present undergraduate major in HMFE will be retained, but renamed family economics. The present undergraduate major in CDFS will be retained but renamed child development and family science.

With the merger, some courses will be added and some dropped to strengthen the department curriculum. Because of new employment opportunities, new courses, such as consumer protection and financial analysis, have been added.

Peggy Wasik, HMFE department head, said the merger is designed as an efficiency move. Curriculums have been rewritten in both departments and Wasik feels the curriculums have been strengthened as a result of the merger.

The administrative change will go before the Board of Higher Education in July for approval. If approved, the department merger will go into effect this summer.

Leitch estimates an adviser spends 70 hours with each student, dropping classes, registering, giving scholarship and job references, and counseling students during the average four years a student remains in college.

"The greatest rewards from advising are the friends you make," he said. "I'll be turning out about 30 seniors as my friends this spring."

Also honored at the ceremony were Dr. Vernon Lohr, professor of agriculture; Dr. Karl Maurer, professor of mechanical engineering; Dr. Allen Fischer, professor in the College of Science and Mathematics; and John Trustow, associate professor from the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Dr. Ross Wilkinson, adviser to Mortar Board, spoke on changes in scholarship and job references, and Mentors, student leaders in the Turner Center.

That's a really good placement. More than half of the freshmen entering SU graduates from the Falls of 1981 and to 85 percent placement rate parents themselves. A recent study of several good reasons.

Lake college preparatory courses, admissions are tightening admission standards. In general, colleges want to get the best students.

AP courses are offered since 1981. These courses are very competitive. One researcher said students are aware of entrance requirements beforehand and apply where they meet the standards.

Mon colleges aren't likely to turn students away. CPS said because only a small minority are very competitive. One researcher said students are aware of entrance requirements beforehand and apply where they meet the standards.

The majority of students in some economics are female and single. Although what said 9 percent of the total enrollment is male.

In their admission standards for the College of Agriculture is not limited to a specific number of students, but those enrolled must maintain a C average in all required courses. The College of Agriculture is limited to 20 students but has a grade point average.

Kesler study said these types of admission standards provide an opportunity for diversity in a variety of programs.

The breaking of tradition

Many times tradition is broken, sometimes the change doesn't produce the desired result but many times it does. The courage to try something new is necessary to improving upon the old. Recently, there have been two occurrences of breaking tradition: Coke has introduced a new formula and student leaders were elected with little governmental experience. How many of these changes are ready for the better? Public opinion will be the deciding factor to this answer.

Coke. Why change a good thing after 99 years? In 1886, the Atlanta pharmacist John Styth Pemberton, was responsible for concocting Coke's highly guarded formula in a 30-gallon brine kettle in his back yard. The secret flavoring ingredient became known as Mentholine 7X. During the development of diet Coke, Coke's export test markets found a more pleasing taste than the old Coke. The company had two choices, do nothing and forget they ever developed it or change the past and produce a new Coca-Cola for the world.

Erich Robert Koziol, 53, became the chairman of Coca-Cola in 1989. Many changes have been introduced and proven successful. Diet Coke, caffeine-free regular diet Coke, and Cherry Coke have all been successful on the market. Maybe the new Coke will be successful, too.

One point to consider: If the new Coke tastes like the old Coke after the ice cubes are melted, how watered down will the new Coke be after the ice is melted?

People, new ideas are rarely welcomed with open arms in politics. Why is this? It is because of the old saying, "when you get something good, stick with it." Or is it because politicians don't always like to open their eyes to what the people's needs are?

Jack Maughan and Mike Frazier came into student government with a different viewpoint. They're not attack a nut, they've got an outsider's viewpoint of government operations. They can see problem areas many people in government can't.

Fresh ideas are needed in politics, not just at the student level. And all levels. It's time that governments start serving the people they represent rather than the politicians.

Joel Schroeder

Slavick feels coconut roller and banana eater unqualified

To the Editor,

I would like to address two issues: my agreement with Jack Raines and the recent student government election.

First, I agree with Jack Raines' April 26, 1986 comment that the Spectrum should take a week off end run 36 pages of opinions. Secondly, I was disappointed to hear of the Maughan/Frazier team winning the student body presidential-vice presidential seat. As far as I know, they had no platform. I did, however, see a campaign poster listing their qualifications: SX

Poll accuses Schroeder of beating the dead horse more

To the Editor,

My dear, dear bleeding, heart achecommittee Joel Schroeder and Marjorie Troesch. Thank you so much for beating the dead horse a little more. Yes, 6 million Jews were slaughtered like sheep. Yes it was terrible. Yes it was inhuman, and so end it.

From 1917 to 1953, the USSR had a total of 60 million citizens put to death in the name of communism. Iindia's Bhutto is currently killing anyone who does not conform to the same Islamic beliefs as himself. The Shia of Iran tortured and murdered countless thousands of innocent people merely because of their political status alone. For eight years Idi Amin of Uganda had a production line method of painting out "insurrections" and "terrorism" elections. U.S. president Reagan saw the campaign posters of thousands of Americans in his Dallas Curves and the infamous Trail of Tears.

Why all the heart, tearing and constant stomach-upset? Why David Hiller and the Jews aren't. Don't these students realize that they hold the power of life and death in their hands? They should just get on with it or perhaps regarded Helen ratings on previous Toleration.

Stevick says griping is easier than writing or contributing

To the Editor,

I've read the last several issues of the Spectrum with a great deal of interest, and it appears that a number of people there are getting stepped on.

This strikes me as strange. I have yet to see a byline from most of the people who are so outraged about coverage of recent event. Why don't you people put your talent where your mouth is?

The Spectrum is always looking for new story ideas and writers. As a former section editor, I am well aware of the headaches that accompany an impending deadline and so soliciting stories from busy students on this campus have enough pride in their school paper to contribute to it. It's no easy task to stand on the sidelines and gripe.

I have been a writer for the Spectrum for most of my college years and the rewards are questionable, not to mention the fact that you get paid. No, the paper is not perfect, but it's hard to get your best student government keeps trying to cut funding, and a handful of people are trying to hurt the paper out. It's an exciting time. I'm really sick and tired of the complaints from people who are contributing little more than gripe, or as the students now call it, "ins urections." Those of you who hate the coverage of Idaho's presidential elections or even Great for having something about it. Simply getting it written in the Spectrum and drop off your story where it belongs on campus. We're better qualified than any New York editor to judge and all that excess energy is something else. I'm not off the beaten path, but you can turn all that excess energy into something more constructive rather than complaining about something which isn't even involved.

Teenage suicide

It is very sad to think these teenagers have not been taught to use a gun. The paper out. It's not an easy ride, but it is a good one.

Opinion Poll

QUESTION: How do you feel about students informally addressing you by your first name?

Lois Richardson, Mass Communications
When I feel the student and I are really friends, first names are fine. But I'm not too happy when a student walks in the first day and calls me Lois.

Dr. Michel Brown, English
I prefer being addressed by my last name. Being on a first name basis indicates students and faculty are close friends, which really in most cases they are not.

Dan Klawon, Sociology, Anthropology
At my first class meeting, I indicate to my students that I call them Dan or use a first name title. If I did not do so, my first name title makes no more reasonable than the first name situation is felt in.

Lloyd Cohen, Mathematics
Whatever the student feels comfortable with sounds reasonable to me.

Alberta Dobey, Ph.D., Home Economics
I expect a formal address from undergraduates in teachable situations. They will soon be in such a situation where they need to expect some respect for their role and keep an environment conducive to learning.

Professor Sudhanshu Mehta, Mechanical Engineering
The student should address instructors by their professional rank out of respect for their position.

Cain believes laying of the wreath is show of acceptance

To the Editor:
For the past few weeks a debate has been raging over the United States and the role of the President to reconsider his position. Even the U.S. Congress has asked the President to reconsider his pro-Communist position. Many have called the President immoral for his decision, a few praise his. One simple fact emerges; more discussion is necessary.

The mass extermination of more than 6 million Jews, along with political activists is justly called the Holocaust. Hitler's "Final Solution" was carried out by the people of Germany, the SS, it was their duty to round up and process the Jews. In concentration camps like Dachau, the Jews were put to death. The atrocity of this action can not be underestimated. It should never be forgotten. Yet remembered, lest it happen again. On this many will agree. The people of Germany have preserved the death camps as a constant reminder of the world. The world has condemned the death camps and those who perpetrated the action. Sadly, it has continued.

The laying of the wreath is an important way of showing acceptance. The laying of the wreath in the German community, the President should show honor to the German people as a trusted ally. The laying of the wreath is important way of showing this acceptance.

SSA offers aid information for students for a fee

The rumor is a fact! Millions of Uars in scholarships, grants, fellowships and other financial aid are unused each school year because students simply do not apply!

According to the Regional Director of the National Student Service Association (NSSA), the amount of aid which is missed by the public is enormous. How much aid is missed each year because of the time limitation of the student to research the huge amounts of offers in financial aid each year, is not known.

According to the NSSA, practically all students, regardless of scholastic achievement, family income, or quality year are offered financial aid. The SSA Regional Center has more than 13 billion dollars in its data base available for students to use, even if they are non-traditional students. According to the NSSA, students who apply for aid receive, on average, 40% more aid than those who do not apply. Financial aid is used to meet the unmet need of parents and students. Students can qualify for aid, regardless of their completion of financial aid applications.

Financial aid is available for freshmen, homestay and graduate students. The financial aid office of the SSA guarantees results in financial aid for undergraduates or the processing fee is refundable. For more information write to NSSA, 52, Bourbonnais, Ill. 60914.

The Board approved the increases averaging 11.2 percent for faculty and administrators (all staff), and 5.5 percent for classified employees.

By delaying the salary increase until July 1, we end up with an increase of 11.2 percent in average salaries over 12 months instead of 9.5 percent over 16 months, which has been the effect of running the base now and for two years from now," said H.D. Stockman, vice president for financial affairs.

The dollar amount is the same, but the base upon which future salary increases will be figured is increased.

A 4 percent increase in faculty salaries has been approved for July 1, 1986. Stockman indicated the board will allow individual institutions to allocate the salary increases to meet their own needs.

A series of meetings with deans and department heads and the administration on a one-to-one basis will be used in determining how the salary money will be allocated.

YMCA of NDSU to sponsor the Kite Festival Sunday

By Julie Linn
SU students will be flying high at the third annual YMCA of NDSU Kite Festival Sunday at 1 p.m., Sunday, at the field east of Longfellow Elementary School.

The Kite Festival includes a team competition. A kite team consists of 10 people or less.

Program coordinator Mary Jaschke said, "A team can be from a dorm or just a bunch of friends."

The best church team will be judged at 1:30 p.m., the best school team at 2:30 p.m., and the best campus organization at 3:30 p.m.

The individual competition has three categories judged each hour for the most unusual kite, most colorful kite, and the kite with the longest tail.

Judging times are at 2, 3, and 4 p.m. for the individual competition.

Prizes consist of cash, kites, and t-shirts. Ribbons will be given to everyone.

The Q98 rock wagon will broadcast live at the Kite Festival.

A special attraction at the Kite Festival will be a kite fighting demonstration at 2 p.m., sponsored by Lamplighter Kite Shop.

The kite fighting demonstration will feature more of the Lamplighter Kite Shop's expensive kites, according to Kurt Stenerson, manager of the Lamplighter Kite Shop.

"You can buy a good kite for $8, and it should last a long time," Stenerson said.

People can expect to see stunt and dragon kites with a strong wind on Sunday," he said.

The Lamplighter Kite Shop will have kites for sale at the Kite Festival.

The Kite Festival is sponsored by YMCA of NDSU, Campus Recreation, Campus Attractions, Rough Riders of Kiwanis and the Lamplighter Kite Shop.

Problem solving is much of maintenance

By Marjorie Dobervich

"Just call me a problem solver," said Larry Gette, SU's supervisor of custodial and maintenance services. "In fact," continued Gette, "it's the part of my job I like the most!" Gette has 100 employees under his direction.

He gives his staff a lot of credit. It is their job to clean, maintain, wax, polish and generally do whatever is necessary to keep over two million square feet of space, encased in the 76 buildings across campus, shining and neat.

"Everyone on the staff makes an important contribution. We strive to maintain high standards," Gette said. Included among Gette's assistant problem solvers are six area supervisors: Dave Olson, Student Union; Keith Davis, New Field House; Richard Drinka, Old Field House; Gordon Saywfort, Housing areas; Keith Rhodes, Arkansas Hall and Ann Zimmerman, Reineke Music Building.

Each supervisor oversees a custodial staff. Additionally, Richard Burt is in charge of Executive Housing, and Doreen Smith supervises hauling of excess properties.

Gette relies on daily meetings with the area supervisors. "Every morning we get together here in my office in rap sessions over the day's events, solve problems, anything that might come up. It keeps the lines of communication open."

"I call the meetings preventive maintenance sessions because many times, they prevent problems before they have a chance to occur," he said.

Gette conducts monthly building inspections himself. For a man who said he enjoys solving problems, Gette said he has had a couple of them he could have done without since he came to SU in 1981.

"I got a phone call one morning that there was four feet of water in the Morrill Hall basement from a water main break the night before. The flooding soaked down everything means of copy, agricultural demonstrations, furniture and equipment.

"We hustled and tackled this trundled of items, all warped by raised by the water. Then started the cleanup process of floors and walls, all covered with sludge," Gette said it took months before everything returned to normal.

...in the custodial staff management of his job boils down to one thing: "The people I work with make it worthwhile," said. "I just love it here," he added.

Zimmerman gives a lot of credit to the custodial staff in the place. "If I were to want for the kind of people I work with and work under, I wouldn't be here," he said.

Gette said the part of his job he enjoys most is the custodial staff she supervises. "We used to have 397 windows, 30:16, and Kathy Kelly in the 100 meter, Janis Thompson in the shot put, and Vicky Johnson of Division I Nebraska with a career best of 36:20. They were part of women's and men's track team, they returned to Fargo with a day day basket full of outstanding individual performances.

According to women's coach Sue Patterson, it was one of the best teams in women's track history. "It was one of the best teams in women's track history. They were more than just a team; they were individuals," she said.

Last month, former Bison football coach Don Morton left SU for a head coaching job at Tulane, Ohio. With the multitude of talent he left behind, he also left behind a couple of important shoes to fill.

Those shoes were filled by former Bison defensive line coach Carlie Solomonson, and according to the players reactions, he is the best choice Athletic Director Ade Spornberg could have made.

Even though the Bison gridders have lost a man who led them to the NCAA Division II Championship last two years, they know they are getting a man who has also been in the locker room and on the field with them on the way and has played an important part in their success.

Ken Maskenber, defensive tackle for the Bison from Mahnomen, Minn., is excited about playing for head coach Solomonson and feels the coach's energetic style will help fire up the entire team.

"He really gets intense and likes to show his emotions that get his players fired up to play," Maskenber said.

Muckenhirn feels that the biggest difference between Morton and Solomonson is the way Solomonson lets his feelings show more. He feels it will bring the team closer together, and they will be able to work better.

"He cares about the players on and off the field, which makes us respect him more as a leader," Muckenhirn said.

Defensive tackle Phil Fleming from Madison, Wis., feels the adjustment is going well and thinks that Solomonson's positive attitude and that of his staff will reflect a positive image to the players.

"The practices and the brand are similar, but the attitude seems to be more positive than before and the new coaches are more complimentary," Fleming said.

Fleming agrees Solomonson's closer ties to the team will benefit their ability to play together. He feels the intangible factors Solomonson projects will make it easier to work on the problems that arise because it's easier for the players to relate to somebody they know well.

"He treats you with a lot of respect and the makes you want to give that much respect back to him," Fleming said.

Fleming feels thinking of Solomonson as more of a dad than a boss will help make their work easier for the coach to make him proud.

Maskenber and Fleming are used to beating up offensive linemen under the watchful eye of former coach Solomonson. But other Bison players, including running back James Molstre of Dickinson, N.D., are new at experiencing the leadership of head coach Solomonson.

"Molstre thinks the new staff is working as well with the players, which should help the Bison to once again be the team to beat in the North Central Conference.

"He is a very good leader, and he certainly has proven himself on defense," Molstre said.

With things looking up once again for the Bison football team, there should again be able to enjoy the success of their team next fall.

Intramural Action

In intramural sports action this week, the water polo intramurals were held with Waterlogged winning the championship game over Century Chis and Alpha Gamma Deltas. The team of Alpha Tau Omega and Kappa Deltas dented the Delta Upsilon team for third place honors.

Here are the scores for the Thursday night Co-rec softball league.

The Ultimate 21 - The Team 4

SU sports trivia to grace Spectrum's back page

Here's something new for the last page of the Spectrum. It will test your knowledge on the past history and success of the Bison sports program. You can use it to test your friends and roommates in what you know personal knowledge bank, or use it to line the bottom of your birdcage with or whatever else you want to do with it.

Bison wide receiver Stacy Robinson was drafted in this week's National Football League draft. He was picked in the second round by the New York Giants, the 46th overall pick.

SU has never had a first round pick. Who was the only SU football player to be chosen in the second round of the NFL draft? Former SU linebacker Ron Nelson was chosen by the New England Patriots in the second round in 1974. He was the top overall pick of that year's draft, and he is still active in the NFL playing for the Patriots.

The last SU player to be chosen in the NFL draft was Dave Peipko in 1980. He was chosen in that year's draft by the Cleveland Browns in the first round.

In 1980, Revis Denny was chosen in the seventh round by the Los Angeles Cardinals.
