

Safeguard Community

The redevelopment of the Stanley R. Mickelsen Safeguard Complex into a new community is a multifaceted initiative that encapsulates a vision of transformation and revitalization. Once a sentinel of national security during the height of the Cold War, this complex now stands as a testament to history, awaiting a new purpose that resonates with contemporary needs and aspirations.

At its core, this redevelopment project is about more than just repurposing physical structures; it is about reimagining the very essence of the site. The expansive grounds and sturdy infrastructure provide a solid foundation for the creation of a modern, sustainable, and thriving community.

Urban planning plays a pivotal role in shaping the layout and design of the new community. Careful consideration is given to factors such as land use, transportation networks, and green spaces to ensure a cohesive and functional environment. Mixed-use development may be incorporated to create a dynamic blend of residential, commercial, and recreational spaces, fostering a sense of vibrancy and activity.

Environmental sustainability is a key priority throughout the redevelopment process. Efforts are made to preserve and enhance natural habitats, minimize carbon footprint, and integrate renewable energy sources. Green building practices and eco-friendly amenities are incorporated to promote a healthier and more sustainable way of life for residents.

Economic considerations are also carefully weighed to ensure the long-term viability and prosperity of the new community. Job creation, business opportunities, and property values are all factors that are taken into account to promote economic growth and stability.
