Learning Theory & Technology

- Constructivist: (Mayer, 2003): Learning first
- Chickering & Ehrmann (1996): 7 technology principles:
  - (a) Interaction, (b) Cooperation & Reciprocity, (c) Active Learning, (d) Feedback, (e) Time in Learning Process, (f) High Expectations, & (g) Diverse Learners
- Beldarrain (2006): communication & interaction
- Connectivism (Siemens, 2004): social network of learning
- Rogers (2002): technology effectiveness
- Pflaum (2004): learning effectiveness
- Fletcher (2004): link instruction theory & research
- D’Angelo & Woosley (2007): relevance for learning
Technology & Diverse Learners

- Oblinger (2008): Value for Learning
- Vaidhyanathan (2008): Generational Focus?
- Kelton (2008): technology vetted for value
- Jonassen (2004): Virtual Technology for Institutions
- Kingsley (2007): Problem Solving & Creativity
- Wepner & Tao (2002): Content over Technology
The Internet and Web 2.0

  - “isolation to interconnectedness”
- Richardson (2006): Tim Berners-Lee: “a collaborative medium, a place where we [could] all meet and read and write” (p. 1)
- D’Souza (n.d.): importance of human thought
- McLoughlin & Lee (2007): “Pedagogy 2.0”:
  - Knowledge & Information
  - Social &Technological Change
  - Lifelong learning
Weblogs: Definition & History

- “An easily created, easily updateable Website that allows an author (or authors) to publish instantly to the Internet from any internet connection” (Richardson, 2006, p. 17).

- Warlick (2007): History:
  - 18th Century?
  - Pamphlets: Common Sense
  - 20th Century: Electronic Media
  - Early web development
  - Content Management Systems (CMS)
Weblogs

- Goodwin-Jones (2006) Student-centered focus on:
  - Literacy skills
  - Media applications
  - Collaboration
  - Space for Creativity & Reflection

Academic Journals and Weblogs

- Nackerud & Scaletta (2008): 10 Years
  - The Chronicle of Higher Education
  - “forms of academic production or a vehicle for scholars to become public intellectuals” (p. 71)
  - Old media metaphors: “journals”, “op-ed pieces”, personalized “web indexes”, and “vanity sites” (p. 71)
  - Blogging: “merges and conflates a variety of genres, motives, and audiences” (p. 71)
Academic Institutions and Weblogs

• Nackerud and Scaletta (2008):
  - University of Minnesota “Uthink” blog started in 2004
  - “the anything-goes medium at the heart of the campus” (p. 85)
  - “an official promotional front to the campus, as well as supporting individual, even guerilla, self-expression” (p. 85)
  - “valuable communication tool to all of its constituents, while capturing a fascinating historical record of university and thought that is as varied and complicated as the university itself” (pp. 85-86).
Weblogs & Higher Learning

- Richardson (2006):
  - Large audience
  - Critical, Analytical, Creative, Intuitive, Associational, & Analogical thinking
  - Access & Exposure to Information
  - Solitary Reflection & Social Interaction
  - Critical reading & writing skills

- Solomon & Schrum (2007):
  - Writing thoughtfully
  - Learning from each other
  - Peer editing
  - Finding community interested in topic
  - Communication & Professional Development
Weblogs & Course Management

- Flatley (2005):
  - Stand alone or in conjunction
  - Journal assignments
  - Announcements, quizzes, polls, links

- Goodwin-Jones (2006):
  - Student-centered
  - Connections outside of the classroom
Educational Functions

- Richardson (2006):
  - Archive and Information Portal
  - Functionality of LMS at lower cost
  - “Online Portfolio” or “Digital Filing Cabinet”
  - Collaborative Learning to Enhance Interest
  - Institutional Communication
Integrating Weblogs into Instruction

- Richardson (2006):
  - Connective writing
  - Cross disciplines and cultures
  - Instruction in other languages

- Solomon & Schrum (2007): writing instruction
  - Brainstorming, organizing, writing, revising, peer review

- Colombo & Colombo (2007): enhance science instruction
  - Expand instruction time by reinforcing concepts, strategies, review for tests, and provide enrichment

- Kaider & Bull (2004): Eighth grade language arts
  - Journaling (accessibility, audience, and immediacy)
  - Relieves intimidation of the empty page
More Integration Ideas

• Beldarrain (2006):
  - Audience for exploration
  - Portfolio and record
  - Learner-centered knowledge construction

• Flatley (2005):
  - Peer review and group work
  - Writing process reflection
  - Integrate feedback into planning

• Flierl & Fowler (2007):
  - “Digital discussions”
  - “Workplace for collaborative projects”
Weblogs & Scholarly Conversation

- Gregg (2006):
  - Cultural studies:
    - “information wants to be free” (Gregg, 2006, p. 154)
    - Knowledge: facilitated, discussed, & improved; not guarded
    - Debate & Critical Thinking

- Graduate students:
  - Solidarity
  - Collegiality
  - Interest
  - Feedback
  - Enthusiasm
  - Motivation
Skepticism within Academe

• Gregg (2006):
  – Worthwhile and Scholarly?
  – Writing Skills & Efficiency
  – Opposing Viewpoints

• Hooks (1999):
  – “All academics write but not all see themselves as writers. Writing to fulfil professional career expectations is not the same as writing that emerges as the fulfilment of a yearning to work with words when there is no clear benefit or reward, when it is the experience of writing that matters” (p. 37).
Further Studies with Weblogs

- ED 767: Organization and Administration of Higher Education (Dr. Kathy Enger)

- Course Design:
  - Interactive Video Sessions
  - Blackboard Course Management System
  - Wimba Presentations
  - Course Discussion: reflection upon required texts
  - Course Blog: The Chronicle of Higher Education

- Reflection and Transformational Learning
Recommendations

- Education must begin with the learner
- Technology must be relevant
- Assess technology effectiveness
- Interaction & Collaboration

Weblogs:
- Access & Engagement
- Explore role of Weblogs as LMS
- Further study is required
